DEAD.

Believe me, reader, there is no spot on earth where one's courage is wound up to the same painful pitch of intesity as in a grave-yard at midnight, while engaged in the jackal trade of the resurrectionist. The deep silence of the scene; the darkness; the whispered word of consolation; the fear of interruption; 8 800 the white monuments about you; the open grave at your feet, and the shrouded corpse within it, all combine to send a chill to the stontest heart. And now, sitting safely in my office, how deep a events of that night, and day, and night again, which I am about to relate for your benefit. We were "bound to have that subiect." As Seth said, it was "gone up;" and it was ridiculous, nay more, it was ungenerous and mean in the citizens of - to keep watch and ward over the grave of one whom they knew not, save as a stranger, passing through and dying in their town. So, with an experienced party of four, besides our trusty old dinter, (most trusty when most drunk.) we set out at an early hour in the evening, our object being to do our In this we succeeded.
