A New Canada Grievance against the United States.

We can hardly suppose that the attention of Lyons has been directed to a custom prevailing in the Federal States of compelling British subjects, making temporary visits there, to pledge allegiance to the United States. A case of this kind has been brought under our notice.

A respectable resident of this city went to see his son at St. Louis, and he was only allowed to return to Canada on signing the following declaration, which binds him to bear allegiance to the United States, and not, under any circumstance, to take up arms against them.

OFFICE OF PROVOST MARSHALL, ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2, 1861.

DESCRIPTION OF PERSON.

Name _____ Age _____ Color of eyes _____ Nativity _____ Residence, Upper Canada _____ I hereby acknowledge that I accept this pass upon my word of honor, solemnly pledged, that I will ever bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America, and that I will consider such allegiance as paramount to that due to any other Power, Sovereignty, or State whatever; that I will never take arms against the United States or those acting under its authority, or give aid, information or comfort to its enemies, and that I will do all in my power as a citizen to discourage the present rebellion and preserve the Federal Union.

Judging from the number of this certificate, which figures up over 75,000, this practice is being carried into effect upon a prodigious scale. We are charitable enough to suppose that a large proportion of those from whom this pledge is exacted are not British subjects, but Americans travelling from one part of the States to another. The case before us, however, shows that British subjects are not exempted from this degrading ordeal. It might not be unreasonable to demand from all persons travelling in the States their parole d'honneur that they would not take part in this contest with the Southern States. But to compel British subjects, resident in Canada, and temporarily visiting the States, to subscribe such a declaration as the above, is an outrage that demands the intervention of the imperial authorities. We trust the fact may not escape the attention of the British Ambassador at Washington, in order that the matter may be properly represented in the right quarter.

The News.

From the N. O. Crescent.

There are two points in the Confederate States which, so long as they remain in our possession, will render all the conquests of the Lincolnites barren of results. Those points are Columbus and New Orleans. Our own Beauregard commands at Columbus, and Gen. Lovell at New Orleans. Upon those two men there is a mighty responsibility resting, and it they successfully defend the great river and its dependent valley, the glory they will achieve will last for all time. As long as the enemy is kept out of the valley of the Mississippi, the Southern Confederacy will be as safe as ever was, even if the enemy occupied every principal city on our seaboard, and if even it should be wrested from our control, the end of the war would be the same, although it might be more disastrous and protracted.

We see no reason for despondency, even if Fort Donelson has been surrendered and Nashville occupied by the enemy. When the facts reach us we predict it will be found that the armament of the gunboats of the enemy rendered the fort untenable. The enemy can defeat us everywhere on water, but there is great consolation in knowing that the time must shortly come when they will be obliged to make their appearance on dry land a sufficient distance beyond the protecting guns of their ships to enable our troops to fight them on equal terms. Let us await the opportunity that will be shortly vouchsafed us with patient hope and unflinching confidence.

We are glad to note that the disasters instead of dispiriting our people, have aroused them to the highest pitch of warlike excitement. Our whole population are eager for the fray, and all they want is a leader and arms. They are resolved to defend their gloriously beautiful land to the last, and will do so. The same spirit, we are sure, animates the entire people of the Confederate States, and when they turn out en masse, as they shortly will, the enemy will find an un conquerable foe to encounter. The possession of leading points will not give them the country. The occupation of the principal cities of the South will eventuate in no lasting advantage to them.

Our people will retire into the interior, and in their mountain and swampy they will maintain a warfare which must ultimately prove successful. The great Napoleon held, through his magnificent armies, every leading city in Spain, for a number of years, yet the country was by no means conquered. The guerilla war which the Spaniards waged against him was nothing in comparison to the war we can wage.

Therefore, let none be downcast. We must expect reverses. War is no child's play. We cannot reasonably look for success all the time. But, if we all turn out as one man, animated by one spirit, as we ought, we shall win the victory and establish our independence on foundations that cannot be shaken.

A Spy Arrested.—A Quartermaster in Lincoln's army, formerly of Memphis, was arrested in this city. He was pretending to be engaged in smuggling goods from St. Louis, but was really sent here, probably from some point on the Tennessee river, to spy out the defenses to this city, and other things advantageous to the Federals. We have no doubt there are other persons hereabouts engaged in the same business. Look out for them.—Nashville Patriot, 14th.

CAPTURE OF SECESSION FLAGS IN BALTIMORE.

From the Clipper, of the 20th inst., we extract the following: Yesterday morning a squad of policemen visited the Maryland Club House, No. 72 North Calvert Street, and seized two secession flags which for the past three months have occupied prominent positions over the front windows. They were taken to the office of the Provost Marshall and consigned to the tomb of the Capulets.

CHARLOTTE.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1862.

The New Cabins.

Passengers by the North Carolina Road, direct from Richmond, informed us yesterday morning that it was currently reported in Richmond on Sunday that President Davis had determined to invite Gen. Floyd to take charge of the War Department. We sincerely hope the report is correct, for we believe it would be the best appointment His Excellency could make—it would be the right man in the right place. The War would be prosecuted with vigor, and result in brilliant victories and a speedy establishment of peace altogether advantageous to the Confederate States.

Resolution in Relation to the Minis.

The following Resolution, in relation to the Minis by a Assay Office in the Southern Confederacy, was unanimously passed and ratified in open Convention on the 6th day of February, 1862, at Raleigh, in North Carolina: Resolved, That in the opinion of this Convention, it is of the highest importance to the interests of the Confederate States, that the Minis, situated within their limits, should be placed in operation at the earliest practicable period, and that the Senators and Representatives in Congress be requested to use their best exertions to attain that object.

Correspondence.

MOUNTAINEER, N. C., February 21, 1862.

Mrs. Dewey.—Enclosed please find $100.00, which apply to the Soldiers Aid Society, of which you are Secretary and Treasurer, and oblige, Yours, &c., JOHN TATE.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Feb. 22, 1862.

Editor Bulletin:—The Treasurer of the Soldiers Aid Society takes pleasure in acknowledging the above handsome donation of one hundred dollars, from Mr. JOHN TATE, of Mountain Island, for benefit of our Society. Mrs. B. L. DEWEY, Sec'y & Treas.

The Next Great Battle.

It is now conceded by all, says the Suffolk Sun, that the next grand battle will be fought in the vicinity of Suffolk. The enemy will attempt to cut off Norfolk by taking the railroad at this point. We admonish our troops to be cool, and be determined to defend their homes to the last. There has, thus far, been no panic here.

We repeat what we said last week, that we see no impropriety in the leaving of women and children for a point less liable to be attacked, but not a single man should leave who is able to use a gun, a hoe, an axe or a spade.

It is not necessary or proper that we should report the strength of our forces, or any thing about our means of defence, but we may say to friends at a distance that every thing is in motion, and we shall be prepared for a strong defence.

Our disasters at other points should not make us desponding here. The tide may turn exactly at this point. Let us look to the Lord for help, and relying upon His strong arm determine to do our whole duty.

Defenses of New Orleans.

The New Orleans Picayune, referring to the defenses of that city, says they are all such as, of themselves severally, and as forming a combination of defense against the assault of the enemy, are eminently deserving of the most unqualified praise, and that, constructed as they have been, under the superintending care and direction of General Lovell, General Duncan, and Major Smith, the works are of such a character, in every particular, as to create the strongest confidence of the citizens in the impregnable of the city, if the people do but discharge their duty faithfully in its defence.

The Convention.

Hon. William A. Graham, Chairman of the Legislative Committee of this body, has submitted a report, which makes some very important amendments to the Constitution of the State. As heretofore, the Legislature will consist of two houses; but instead of House of Commons, it will be called "House of Representatives." The election of members is to be biennial, but Legislature will meet every year, the members not to receive pay for over forty-five days. The Senate to be composed of fifty members, and the House of one hundred and twenty. No person eligible to the Senate under 25 years of age, and must be worth a freehold of the value of $1000, and have been a resident of the State three years, and one year in the district preceding the election. For the House, must be 21 years of age, a resident of the State two years, and in the county one year preceding the election, and possess a freehold estate of $500.—Clergymen ineligible as now, and no person who has been a Treasurer or receiver of public moneys in the past or future, by collection or disbursement, shall be eligible until he shall have fully accounted for and paid into the Treasury all moneys due from him. No President, Cashier, or Treasurer of any corporation in which the State is interested, shall be eligible to a seat in either House.—Salisbury Watchman.

From the West-Hollins Fleet.

The Nashville Baptist says that the last desperate stand for the preservation of Nashville, from present appearances, will be made upon a line of fortifications within four miles of the city. The same paper, of this day week, says that it learns from an entirely trustworthy source, that Com. Hollins, with the Massachusetts and a fleet of twelve iron-clad gunboats, are on their way to Cairo, having already passed Memphis. Besides the fleet a force of fourteen thousand men is also on its way to Columbus from New Orleans, as a reinforcement to the garrison there.

From New Orleans.

New Orleans, Feb. 21. News from the Rio Grande to the 7th inst., states that a British steamer, loaded with cotton at Matamoros by British merchants, was seized at the mouth of the Rio Grande by the Federal war steamer Portsmouth, and sent to Key West or New York, in charge of a prize crew. The commander of the Portsmouth declared that he would seize any vessel leaving the Rio Grande with cotton.

From Savannah.

Passengers by the Savannah railroad train yesterday afternoon report that the heavy firing heard in that direction on Saturday was the firing from the enemy's gunboats on one of Commodore Tatnall's steamers whilst making a trip to Fort Pulaski. The blockaders off the coast fired a salute on Saturday in honor of Washington's birthday. A report was in circulation on Friday that a skirmish had occurred at Gardner's Corner. We could not learn particulars. [Charleston Courier.]

BRITISH OFFICERS.—The Mercury of yesterday says:

A report was current on the streets yesterday that four British officers had arrived in Savannah and tendered their services to General Lee.

Aid for Mobile from the Interior.

The Mobile Register and Advertiser of Saturday says:

A deputation has reached this city bearing offers and proofs of a generous sympathy and fraternity from the city of Montgomery to the city of Mobile. What they are we are not at liberty to say at present. They are such, however, as to be most gratifying to Gen. Bragg, to whom the overtures are made for the defense of the city, and such as to illustrate the prompt and patriotic liberality of our fellow-citizens of the interior. Their good effects will soon be visible.

Besides these offers of practical and substantial sympathy, we are not restrained of the pleasure of announcing that a full company of what may be termed "the old men" of Montgomery have offered their services to the commanding general to aid in repelling the attacks of the enemy upon Mobile. Gen. Bragg has accepted their services; and they will be down in a few days, one hundred strong, self-equipped and well armed with the best double-barreled guns. Our old friend and fellow-citizen, Col. T. B. Betha, is the bearer of the tender in behalf of the corps to which he belongs.

TO ARMS! TO ARMS!

Mr. Editor.—In the face of the terrible war that is now being waged upon our borders, I wish to raise a company of gentlemen of grit for the war. Who among the many that are listening of the misfortunes that surround us, will come forward to join? Skulks and land pirates I don't expect to volunteer—they will be settled with hereafter, but the true patriot, whether he is high or low, rich or poor, will cheerfully respond, now that a necessary appeal, I have no doubt. I don't want to be Captain, or hold any office in said Company, but I want you fellow citizens, to come forward and wipe out the taint that, North Carolina is a "strip of land between two States." I am ready, and can be found at the store of Mr. Moody opposite the Court House from day to day until the Company is raised. H. M. FRITCHARD. Feb 12
