MESSAGE

President JEFFERSON DAVIS.

Received at Telegraph Office, Feb. 26, 1862. | Received at Bulletin Office, 5:00 p. m. RICHMOND, Feb. 25 .- The President has sent his Message to Congress. He says since the delivery of the last Message. events have demonstrated that the Government attempted more than it had the power successfully to achieve, hence in its effort to protect the whole territory and seaboard, in and, it has been so unfortunate as recently to encounter serious disasters.

At the formation of Government, we were great in extent, but destitute in the were main, and North and our first object was to establine necessary manufactures, and in the mean our purchase in Europe as far as practicable, purchase in required for the public defence.

In April last, active military preparation in Europe interposed many obstacles to the procurement of arms.

He says he has no official report of the discomfitures at Roanoke and Fort Donel son. Enough is known of the surrender at Roanoke to make us feel deeply humiliated, however imperfect may have been the means of defence. He still entertains hope that our reported loss at Fort Donelson was greatly exaggerated, in-as-much as we were not only unwilling but unable to believe that a large army of our people would surrender without a desperate effort to cut their way through investing forces, whatever may have been their number, and endeavor to make a janction with other divisions of the army. But, in the absence of official reports, premature statements were accredited. In the meantime strenuous efforts were made to forward reinforcements to the army at posithe bitter disappointment we have borne is moving the people to still greater exertions, will speedily secure results more accordant with our position and as favorable to our cause as those which marked earlier periods of the war. He says the reports of Secretaries of War and Navy, exhibits resources to conduct the war have accumulated, notwithstanding serious difficulties, against which we have contended, fully equal to meet future wants. He condemns the policy of short enlistments, and considers that it partly contributed to the recent reverses.

When the war broke out the general opinion was in favor of short enlistment hence the people were naturally averse to long enlistment. Now the war will probably continue through a series of years and our high spirited and gallant sathers, while generally re-enlisting, secompelled in many instances to gr nome and make arrangements for Meir families during their protracted sosence.

Queas of new Regiments for the war at all the States are in rapid progress of organization. The whole body of new levies and re-enlistments will, probably, be ready in 30 days. The number of Regiments in the field is four hundred infantry with a proportional force of Cavalry and Artillery.

Notwithstanding great difficulties have been encountered, the report of the Secreta ry of the Navy exhibits a satisfactory comletion of vessels of a number and class, on which we may confidently rely for contesting the vaunted control of the enemy over our waters.

The financial system adopted had proved adequate to supply all the wants of the Government, which had no floating debt. The credit of the Government was unimpaired. The total expenses for the year, in round numbers, were $170,000,000,

The President says that the report of the Postmaster General shows an improved condition of his Department, which will soon be self sustaining. He also recommends the organization of the Supreme

The other business in Congress to-day was unimpartant in character.

Ex-Gov. Pennington Poisoned. The sudden death of Ex-Governor Pennington, of New Jersey, has already been aunounced in our telegraphic column .-The following particulars of his death we gather from a correspondence in the New York Commercial Advertiser William Pennington, of Newark, late Speaker of the House of Representatives. died from the effects of morphine taken by mistake. A prescription was written for quinine, and sent to the drug store of Dr. C. W. Badger, on Broad street, Newark. The prescription, directing powders, was dispensed, and labelled "quinine." Shortly after the powder was administered to the Governor. In the course of a few minutes it was discovered that there was something wrong, and on examination the powders were discovered to be morphine, eight grains of which had been taken. The afticulars will be made public. The wife of the deceased is now lying dangerously ill of a complication of disnot expected to recover.

LATER FROM EUROPE. The steamship Arabia, with Liverpool dates to the 9th, arrived at Halifax on the

The policy of the British government, adopted in February, 1861, is very forbearing, but it would take care to let the gov ernment which multiplies provocations for quarrels, understand that the forbearance of England sprang from a consciousness of strength and not from timidity or weakness.

Lord Russell's answer to Mr. Yancey says that England will observe strict neutrality. Her Majesty cannot acknowledge the independence of nine States until the fortunes of armies, or more peaceful modes of negotiations, shall determine the respective position of belligerents.

Lord Lyons stated to Seward in December, 1861, that in case of war, Great Britain would willingly abolish privateering between the two nations, if Lincoln would make a similar agreement.

In the House of Lords, much indignation was manifested about the arrest and imprisonment of Shepherd, an Anglo-Canadian. It was urged that the government should not be satisfied with Seward's remonstrance, but demand satisfiation.

In the House of Commons, the subject of the blockade was brought up, and will be discussed. Gentlemen said it was a violation of international law to recognize a paper blockade.

Federal Commander Arrested on a Charge of Treason.

The Chicago Tribune, of the 10th, gives he following particulars concerning the arrest of Gen. Stone, and his imprisonment in Fort Lafayette: Gen. Stone, the slave catcher, has been brown in his command and sent to Fort Latayette under arrest. He is charged with holding asonable correspondence with the rebels. As long ago as the latter pert of Decemper we received a printed letter from well-informed gentleman in Washington, see, ting in substance that testimony had been elicited by the Senate committee on the conduct of the war-B. F. Wade, chairman-implicating Gen. Stone in treasonable doings. The writer placed us under injunctions of secrecy until the matter became public by his arrest, which would take place as soon as the committee had tained some other links to complete the hain of proof of his guilt. The letter stated that Stone had given asses to certain persons to go through his

there was a wooded island in the river in front or in the vicinity of his quarters, which was a place of meeting between emissaries from the rebel Aines and persons from his lines; and that in addition to letters and papers being conveyed to the enemy, it was believed that quinine, gun caps, and other articles highly important to the traitors were taken to the island and passed into the hands of the enemy.

That Stone was constantly compelling his soldiers to catch and return disloyal slaves to the Secessionists, was shamefully notorious. To such a degree did he carry on this infamous business, that Gov. Andrew, of Massachusetts, appealed to the Secretary of War to have a stop put to it, so far as Massachusetts soldiers were concerned .-Sepsior Sumner introduced a resolution in the Senate on the subject, and it will be recollected that Stone wrote him a scurrilous letter about it. But the measure of the villain's iniquity is now full, and he is incarcerated among parricides in a fortress.

Gen. Chas. P. Stone, it grieves us to say, s a native of the noble and patriotic State of Massachusetts. He is a West Pointer, bitten by the rattlesnake of slavery, which corrupted his blood and destroyed his loyalty to his Government. He was born in Greenfield, Mass., where his mother and sisters still reside. He entered West Point in 1841, and upon his graduation, in 1845. was appointed assistant professor of ethics, in which he continued until the Mexican war. He served throughout that war, being breveted 1st Lieutenant at El Melino. and Captain at Chepulterec. After the var, he was employed as military engineer. He resigned his commission in 1856, and devoted himself to civil pursuits, we believe, in the South. Being in Washington at the fall of Sumter, he offered his services to the Government, and was assigned to the command of the District militia, then hastily organized. In June, when the new army regiments were made up, he was appointed Colonel of the 14th Infantry; and in August he was further promoted to a brigadiership, with fifty-nine who were confirmed at the extra session. He has been constantly on the Potomac since April, commanding the division at the Chain Bridge and Edward's Ferry, numbering from 15,000 to 20,000 men.

THE COTTON IN AUGUSTA, GA .- We understand that ample arrangements are made for the removal, by the Railroads, of all the cotton in Augusta, to interior places of greater security, in case our city becomes endangered by the advance of a hostile force. This announcement will, we hope, quiet discussions as to the policy of burning up the cotton in case of danger to the city .- Chronicle & Sentinel.

AUGUSTA IN THE NEW YORK HERALD .-We understand that a late copy of the New York Herald contains a full description of Augusta, its founderies, distance on the Staves, Hoop Poles and Cord river, depth of water, &c. It also says that there are 100,000 bales of cotton here. fair will be fully investigated, when par- | Sawney, of the Herald, is very fond of ex aggerating, and his estimate of the cotton in Augusta is in his usual style. There is nothing like the amount stated in this city, Chrenicle & Sentinel.
