MILITARY ANECDOTE.—At the siege of York, Knox and Hamilton, with some American troops, occupied a redoubt. It was provided with hogheads, filled with sand, and called "blinds," which served as a protection against shells. A general order had been issued, that when a shell was seen, they might cry out, "a shell!"

Cof. Hamilton remarked that it seemed to him unsoldierlike to cry out "a shell!" While General Knox contended that the order was wisely given by General Washington, who cared for the life of his men.

While they were discussing the point, two shells fell and struck within the redoubt, whereupon there was great scrambling and jumping to reach "the blinds," and get behind them. Knox and Hamilton united in action, however differing in opinion, both got behind "the blinds," and Hamilton, to be more secure held on behind Knox; Knox being a very large man and Hamilton small. Upon this, Knox struggled to throw Hamilton off, and in the effort, himself (Knox) rolled over and threw Hamilton off towards the shells. Hamilton, however, quickly scrambled back again. The shells now burst and threw their missiles in every direction. "Now," says Knox, "now what do you think, Mr. Hamilton, about crying 'shell!' but let me tell you, not to make a breast work of me again."

A PUZZLE.—The Milwaukee Sentinel having placed upon its bulletin board an announcement of the Pacific's arrival, on which was written, "War in statu quo," two men from the country walked up to the board, and, after reading very demurely, "War in statu quo," said one of them, "where in thunder's that?" "I don't know," said the other, "it'll spread all over the world yet." Shouldn't wonder if it did, said the first. This reminds of an anecdote of a person who affected profound information upon every subject, while listening with a crowd of companions to the reading of "The latest from France," hearing the words, "the French have taken umbrage," and wishing to show his superior knowledge, broke in with, "Ah, indeed! taken umbrage have they? I knew they had been besieging it for some time."

CINDERELLA'S SLIPPER.—The Dublin University Magazine, gives the following account of the glass slipper:

Two centuries ago, furs were so rare, and, therefore, so highly valued, that the wearing of them was restricted, by severe sumptuary laws, to kings and princes. Sable, in those laws called vair, was the subject of countless regulations. The exact quality permitted to be worn by persons of different grades, and the articles of dress to which it might be applied, were defined most strictly. Perrault's tale of "Cinderella" originally marked the dignity conferred on her by the fairy, by her wearing a slipper of vair, a privilege then confined to the highest rank of princesses. An error of the press, now become inveterate, changed vair into verre (glass,) and the slipper of sable was suddenly converted into a glass slipper.

SENSIBLE DOCTOR.—A handsome young widow applied to a physician to relieve her of three distressing complaints, with which she was afflicted.

"In the first place," said she, "I have a little or no appetite. What shall I take for that?"

"For that, madam, you should take air and exercise."

"And doctor, I am quite fidgety at night, and afraid to lie alone. What shall I take for that?"

"For that, madam, I can only recommend that you take a husband."

"Fie! doctor. But I have the blues terribly. What shall I take for that?"

"For that, madam, you have, besides taking air, exercise and a husband, to take—the newspaper."

Sensible doctor, that.

FRENCH SAYINGS.—The following are extracts from D'Autographe:

The friends of the wicked are always cowards.—Dramanoir, the Dramatist.

France asks but for three things—novelty, novelty, novelty.—Corneille.

The talent that we aspire to, spoils that we have.—The Prince, de la Moskova.

Photography is to nature what street organs are to music.—Annie Fauguel.

What woman is that who knows not what she says? She who swears that she will never love, or that she will love forever.—Charles Brifant.

Mau is an intelligent creature, embarrassed by his organization.—Fastoret.

I know that flattery is flattery, but I like it all the same.—Bisio.

When I love, I love to be loved as I love.—Sophie Crueville.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Tuesday Morning, April 4, 1865.

New Advertisements.

Wanted at once—L. J. Handy. Masonic Notice—S. L. Riddle.

We are under obligations to Maj. Gen. Lovell, for a copy of the Columbia Phoenix, dated 1st inst.

We are indebted to Gen. J. A. Young for late New York and Philadelphia papers.

The South Carolinian, which has been issued from our office for some time past, has been removed to Chesterville, S. C. The first issue from that place, dated 2d inst., is at hand. We wish the enterprising proprietors success.

AMBULANCE COMMITTEE.—Dr. E. Nye Hutchison, director; Col. J. A. Young, E. H. Britton, John Rigler, J. S. Phillips.

Mayor Harris received last evening the following dispatch which we are permitted to copy:

To S. A. Harris, Mayor of Charlotte.—Stoneman's forces were at Yadkinville yesterday, supposed to be five thousand strong. His raids are destroying factories, &c. He has fourteen pieces of artillery. JOHN L. SHAVER, Mayor of Salisbury.

TAX LIST TAKERS.—The following persons, says the Democrat, were appointed by the County Court to take the tax lists in Mecklenburg for the current year:

Charlotte—Western part, Dr E Nye Hutchison; Eastern part, W M Matthews; Providence, J S Reid; Morning Star, Robt McEwen; Clear Creek, A C Flow; Crab Orchard, Wm McCombs; Mallard Creek, R L DeArmond; Dewesse's, H P Helper; Lemly's W B Withers; Long Creek, A M Barry; Paw Creek, Stephen Wilson; Berryhill's, G W McDonald; Steel Creek, W H Neel; Sharon, D M Lee.

SOLDIERS IN HOSPITALS.

We understand there are about 1,100 sick and wounded in the hospitals in and around Charlotte, and that there has been inquiry made for the accommodation of 3,000 more. Our people are doing all that they can to aid in the matter; but the constant demand since the commencement of the war for provisions of all kinds for refugees, with the absence of valuable planters, farmers and overseers, and the recent devastations, may render it impossible to supply from, this immediate neighborhood, the urgent wants of such an increased population. Cannot the Commissary and Medical Institute departments aid, by some expedient changes in rations, to supply the demands of enfeebled and feverish patients, who have earned attention by their services in the field?

A ration of baker's bread, a morsel of bacon and a little rice may satisfy a hungry and healthy soldier; but such articles do not approach the requirements of feeble, worn-out, sickly stomachs. The surgeons in charge can only supply what the rules and regulations of the service offer, but there are exceptional cases which demand special attention from higher authority.

Could not some of the corn at the depot be converted into meal for mush or corn bread and some of the bacon take the form of a fresh cow, to provide milk, butter and the greatly craved buttermilk? Is there no tea or sugar at the Institute, for occasional use, to refresh a weary traveler and revive his hopes of reaching home? Cannot molasses be provided by the commissary to add flavor to the rice or dry bread?

A good soup prepared with vegetables, poultry, rice and bacon, would be much more acceptable to wearied men, than the common ration they express themselves fatigued by.

Some may think a decent cook, and a milk cow strange prescriptions for an hospital; but many an old soldier has known the benefit of each, and there are numerous patients who require no other physic or physician.

We trust the people of the country will continue to send of their means and provide cooked victuals occasionally for the sick.

Let each do what he or she is able to perform—those who have nothing else to offer, may attend to the cooking.

Send books to the wounded and visit them cheerfully.

If the commissary has any sound tobacco, a ration now and then will, no doubt, be acceptable.

HOSPITAL COMMITTEES.

The committee appointed to assign the ladies to the different hospital yards, have divided the names on the lists submitted to them as they best could.

The ladies on each list are requested to organize themselves in such a way as may best promote their efficiency in aiding the sick in the hospitals. It has been suggested that each committee of ladies should appoint one or two Directresses as their head, and that they should call upon the Ambulance Committee, through their chairman, or the members on duty, for any aid or advice they may require.

The ladies are requested to meet on Tuesday at 3 o'clock at the following places:

STONEMAN'S RAID.—For some days past rumors have been current in this place, about a raid from East Tennessee in this direction, or Salisbury or Greensboro. It is said that the Yankee Gen. Stoneman has some four or five thousand cavalry under his control, and that he was in Caldwell county on Thursday last, and burnt Patterson's factory Thursday night. The latest news states that the enemy had entered Iredell county and burnt Eagle factory. It is also reported that a part or the whole of the force occupied Salem on Saturday last. If this is so (and we learn that the news is authentic) the design of the enemy is to reach Greensboro or Danville, or cut the railroad running from Greensboro to Danville. And it may be that a portion of the command will attempt to reach Salisbury. We learn that preparations are being made to defeat the enemy, whatever his designs may be.—Democrat.

The Petersburg Express says that fifteen monitors and forty iron-clad vessels, and a large fleet of smaller boats, are now in the James river. Commodore Porter is in command of the fleet.

An eye-glass has been well defined as a toy which enables a coxcomb to see others, and others to see a coxcomb.

TABLES OF DISTANCES.

RYE STRAW FOR BRAIDING.—A writer in the Edgefield Advertiser gives the following directions for preparing rye straw for braiding:

The rye must be cut while in bloom. Cut as carefully as possible to prevent breaking, early in the morning, and bundle it immediately, before the sun has much power on it. It must then be taken to a kettle of boiling water, and each bundle steeped three minutes, then open the bundle and spread out to dry and bleach, a clear sun being almost indispensable to the color. After it becomes perfectly dried, put into a bundle again, to be kept in a dry place, where the dust cannot soil it.

We are requested by the editor of the Fayetteville Telegraph to announce, that all mail matter intended for Fayetteville should be directed "via High Point," for the present. The editor hopes to resume the publication of his paper in a short time.

Rev. J. T. Leftwich, of Wytheville, Virginia, has received a call to become pastor of the Presbyterian church, of Charlotte, N. C. It is understood he has signified his willingness to accept it.

[Raleigh Confederate.]

The Rev. M. D. Conway, the pioneer abolitionist of Massachusetts, and editor of the Commonwealth, is now out in favor of the recognition of the Confederacy. He says that, as slavery is now out of the way, there is no pretext for continuing the war on the South.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

IN OPERATION.—The Fulton county papers mill, six miles from Atlanta, has commenced work through the exertions of its indefatigable superintendent, Capt. G. J. Farcade. The Federals did not injure it.—Chronicle & Sentinel.

MARRIED. In the city of Petersburg, on Thursday, 30th March, by Rev. Thos. Hume, Mr. JOSEPH B. SYKES to Miss BETTIE A. DAVIS, both of Norfolk, Va.
