

Gen. Dockery and Mr. Clingman.

We have been satisfied from the outset, says the last "Ashville News," that the political principles enshrined by Gen. Dockery are at war with those upon which a majority of the people of this District have heretofore acted...

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, June 19th, 1854.

MY DEAR SIR:—The inquiry in your letter is one which I have several times had occasion to answer to friends in the District, as well as in conversation with different persons at this place...

It is known that Gen. Dockery took the same positions that Col. Gaither did in the canvass against me in 1851. He avowed publicly that he was ready to vote men and money to coerce South Carolina, or according to the newspaper accounts, even North Carolina, in the event of her seceding for what she might deem a sufficient cause...

In the late Presidential contest, too, his sympathies appeared to be with the Northern or anti-slavery section of the Whig party. In fact, there are few public men with whom I differ more thoroughly than with Gen. Dockery.

With respect to the distribution of the proceeds of the public lands, I would, perhaps, say that there has not, as far as I can remember, been any serious attempt to get through such a bill during my whole service in Congress. At least for many years past no such movement has been made...

The circumstances that Gen. Dockery was nominated by a respectable body of gentlemen called a Whig Convention, does not give him any additional claims to my support. That Convention was mainly controlled by influences hostile to me, both politically and personally...

Gen. Dockery's course in some other respects gives him no claims on me individually. During the Presidential canvass in the autumn of 1852 there was a publication in the form of an editorial in one of the Scott papers, I do not remember which, saying in substance that Gen. Dockery had declared in some speech that no one at Washington could find out up to the close of the session of Congress whether I was for or against Gen. Scott...

Very truly, yours, T. L. CLINGMAN.

An extract from a private letter to the Editor, says: "Bragg is the game we are going to play in Watauga County, this summer, and huzza for the Western Rail Road! How is it with old Mecklenburg?"

Mr. Jefferson as a Lover—Personal Description of Him.

BY HENRY S. RANDALL, L. L. D. Extract from the Life of Jefferson. With Mr. Jefferson, the lover succeeded the schoolboy in the due and time-honored order, as laid down by the "melancholy Jacques."

Mr. Jefferson's proposals seem to have been clogged with the condition that he must be absent for two or three years in foreign travel, before marriage. Whether for this, or because her preferences lay in a different direction, Miss Burwell somewhat abruptly married another man in 1764.

Mr. Jefferson was generally, however, rather a favorite with the other sex, and not without reason. His appearance was engaging. His face, though angular and far from beautiful, beamed with intelligence, with benevolence, and with the cheerful vivacity of a happy, hopeful spirit.

His conversation already possessed no inconsiderable share of that charm which, in after years, was so much extolled by friends, and to which enemies attributed so seductive an influence in moulding the young and the wavering in his political views.

Mr. Jefferson's temper was gentle, kindly and forgiving. If it naturally had anything of that warmth which is the usual concomitant of affections and sympathies so ardent, it had been subdued by rational control. Yet, under its even placidity, there was not wanting those indications of calm self-reliance and courage which all instinctively recognize and respect.

There were 98 fatal cases of cholera in New York city last week.

The War News.

Affairs in the war quarter appear to have undergone little change since the sailing of the last steamer. The Turks, though hard pressed, managed to retain possession of Silistria.

On the 10th of June the Russians made another unsuccessful attack of the place, but as hitherto, were repulsed. Prince Paskiewich received a severe wound in the right leg, and was obliged to temporarily resign the command of the Russian forces to Gen. Gortschakoff.

The report that Marsa Pasha, the Turkish commander at Silistria, had been killed, turns out to be incorrect. The Turks recently made an attack on the Island of Wraken, but were repulsed.

The English transport ship Europa was lately burned while in the vicinity of Gibraltar. She had a large number of troops on board, twenty-one of whom were lost, the remainder made their escape in boats.

Three British steamers attacked Brahatstad on the 30th May, and destroyed the ships, dock-yard, stores and other property, the whole damage probably amounting to three hundred and fifty thousand roubles.

On the following day, the 31st, the steamers destroyed the ships, dock-yard and stores at Sveaborg. The damage in this instance being estimated at four hundred thousand roubles.

At last dates the Baltic fleet was within thirty miles from Helsingfors. The Russians were collecting a strong force on the shores of the Gulf of Bothnia, in Finland, and were otherwise making threatening demonstrations against Sweden and Norway.

Much excitement existed in Berlin respecting the change of the Russian headquarters to Jassy. This move is considered ominous of the intentions of the Czar towards Austria and Prussia.

Col. Manteuffel was despatched with the summons of Austria, demanding the Czar to evacuate the Principalities. He will be followed by another Envoy from Prussia to St. Petersburg, whose duty it will be to support the Austrian summons.

The recent conference between the Emperor of Austria and the King of Prussia resulted satisfactorily to the allied powers. A declaration of war by Sweden against Russia was daily expected.

Intelligence by the Baltic represents that the Russian troops are greatly disheartened by their late reverses, and the pride of the nation is humbled. It is believed that the evacuation of the Principalities is designed to facilitate the formation of a league between Russia and the German Powers.

The English papers are demanding the immediate bombardment of Cronstadt, in order to humble Russia before the declaration of peace, an event which is now looked upon as probable before winter sets in.

THE TURNIP CROP OF THE SOUTH.—One of England's profoundest statesmen has said, England could better bear the loss of the great Bank of England than to lose two successive crops of turnips.
