NEW YORK, April 24.

The Liverpool correspondent of the Herald wrote to that paper an hour before the Nashville sailed, that great excitement had been caused by a private despatch from London, stating that a great battle had been fought at Eupatoria, in which the Russians were defeated, with the loss of 5000 men, and Omar Pasha killed. The story is doubtless a fabrication.

Democratic Tendencies in England. If there is anything that denotes progress with the people of England, it is their growing opposi tion to official parade and extravagance ; and upon this point an article in a late number of "Frazer," entitled " Gilt and Gingerbread," deals some trenchant blows in speaking of the mummeries attending the inauguration of the Lord Mayer of London. We give an extract : " In the name of common sense we must and do protest against all this fuss and to do, this absurdity and expense, this feasting and rejoicing, because a respectable citizen, * * * having gone through the regular gradations of councilor and alderman, becomes a Lord Mayor, with just as little effort or merit of his own as the grub becomes a caterpiller or the caterpiller a butterfly." Again : "Think of misery at home, of warlare abroad ; of a nation's duty and a nation's destiny, and join in the outery · · · to devote the money thus shamefully lavished, to some higher and nobler purpose than the ty in $10,000. mummery of a pageant, the degradation of a debach-fit amusement for a baby, fit indulgence for a beast," &c. Speaking with reference to present national extremities, and alluding to the shameful fact that the common council had discussed the question whether the gift of the city to the Patriotic Fund shoull be reduced from £2,000 to £1,000, in conclusion, he says : "As with individuals, so with nations : 'He who striveth for the mastery must be temperate in all things." · · · This is no time for feasting and mummery -no time for the wine-cup and the dance-no time for pageant and tom-foolery."
