From the Farmer and Planter. CALHOUN COTTON SEED.

The following reliable statement from our friend Cupt. Byrd is recommended to the consideration of our cotton planting readers, especially in the upper part of our Southern States, for if we must attempt raising cotton where we ought not, it is altogether important to have the earliest maturing varieties:

MR. EDITOR :--- When I saw you on your return from Columbia from the State Agricultural Society, I gave you a description of the Calhoun Cotton, and in answer to various inquiries from different sources, I have thought it advisable to answer through the Farmer and Planter, and give the information desired. A few years since, Dr. E. R Calhoun, of this place, obtained a few seed from a gentleman travelling from the West on his way to North Carolina. He planted them in the spring, and from the seed this species of Cotton was introduced in the neighborhood. I obtained some of the seed York Herald, of whose physiognomy he from the Dr. to plant on halves, and I was speaks as follows : so well pleased with the yield, that I gave him 100 bushels of wheat, for 100 bushels of thing ought never to be painted or daguerthe seed, having made 12 heavy bales from 15 acres, one half of the land planted being offence to make anything so revolting to all very poor-since then my neighbors have our ideas of propriety. For thoughts, like waves that glide by night, 'Yes,' rejoined the lady, 'but you are so time, if I only had the text.' 'Oh, if a text is all you want,' said the parsom, 'I will furnish that. Take this from Solomon: 'It is better to dwell in a corner of a house-top, than with a brawling woman in a wide house.'

'Do you mean me, sir ?' inquired the lady, quickly.

'Oh, my good woman,' was the grave response, you will never make a good sermonizer -- you are too qujck in your application?'

tor, I propose to send to the address of any responsible gentleman 10 bushels of the Calhoun Cotton Seed, sacked and freight paid to any point on the Greenville and Columbia Rail Road on the following conditions, that he plants it on good land, and if he is pleased with it he pays me ten dollars on the first day of November next, and if it proves a humbug, all I require of him, is to give me one half of the seed, and he to oblige himself to sell them for me. I make this proposition with every confidence, believing that I can benefit others as well as myself. and thereby add to the productive wealth of the State.

I am yours, respectfully,

THOS. R. BYRD. Greenwood, S. C., Dec. 2, 1855. Capt. Byrd's proposal, if we understand him, seems to be a fair one. It is, either to give him one dollar per bushel for the seed received, or one-half the seed made from the first crop. But a friend objects to the clause binding him to sell for Capt. B. hi half of the seed-price not stated. To this objection we answer, we presume the price is one dollar per bushel, but at any rate, it you object to selling the seed for Capt B. keep them and pay him the ten dollars for the seed you have received from him-for his half of the seed produced will be worth more to you than ten dollars, even to put on your wheat, oats or corn. "We would say in conclusion, we think one dollar per bushel not an extravagant price to pay for a few bushels of the Calhoun Cotton Seed, in order 'to get in the seed.""

WHO WAS CAIN'S WIFE

How often has this inquiry been made? To a certain class of minds such aquestion nvestigations in theology. Brother Weaver of St. Louis, in answer to a correspondent, thus responds through the Herald and Era to the inquiry "Who was Cain's wife !" A subscriber asks this singular question. We answer, she was Cain's wife. That's all we know about her. That is all the acnother of Enoch. It is said that Cain went into the land of Nod ; and we suppose that he took his wife with him, as any good husband would. In the land of Nod they had Enoch, and probably other children not a few, and grand children, for they built a city there. The city probably was not so large as St. Louis is, but it very likely was a large household, of which Cain was patriarch. It might have been his own and the families of his children living in separate dwellings.

What Cain's wife's name was, and who her parents were we are not certified. She might have been the daughter of Adam and Eve, or some of their children. She was probably closely related to Cain, or a sister or a niece, or something nearer than cousin. Cousins marry in our day when the world is full of strangers. It wouldn't have been so great a wonder for Cain te marry his sister, when there were no other girls in the world, and no laws of marriage, and nobody else to claim her affections .--The command was to marry and multiply and replenish the earth. And we presume t was pretty well employed, for it seems well eplenished now, and likely to be.

We know nothing about the number of hildren and grand-children the first pair had. No doubt it was a goodly number, both of male and female ; else who inhabited Cain's city, and who were the wives of Enoch, Irad, Mehujael, Methusalah and Lamech the bigamist ! We havn't got the whole story of those days; only a drop in ner, and found it superior to any bought the bucket, as it were. We have the deslast year. We would rather pay one cent cending line of generation from Adam down-
