

GRAPES AND NATIVE WINE.

I am pleased to see signs throughout a large portion of the South, of a growing interest in the culture of the grape. The opinion expressed years ago, by discerning Lordiculturists, that the climate and soil of the Southern country would be propitious to the vine, is now being verified by actual experiment. In our own State, (South Carolina) several gentlemen have entered with commendable spirit upon this new branch of industry, and more than one district has given proof of capability to contribute righly towards placing the enterprise upon a sure footing. Seeing that this department of horticulture bids fair to assume, at no distant day, a prominent place among the industrial elements of the South every indication of awakening attention to *its establishment and advancement is fit matter for congratulation. Dr. McDonald and Mr. DeCaradeuc, near Aiken, were, perhaps, among the first in this State to experiment with vines upon an extensive scale. After ten or twelve years of close attention to this culture, and after considerable outlay of means, they have now under cultivation about eighty acres, comprising a large variety of grapes, of which a good part has been imported from the North or from Europe. The principal wine grapes, however, cultivated by them, are the Isabella, Catawba, Warren, and Burgundy. I had the pleasure of visiting their vineyards week before last. The vines in their full spring bloom presented a scene of all without and within is dismal, cold and rural beauty such as the eve is unaccustomed to, even in our Southern region of sorrows, which the world knows not, and rich feliage. The vineyards are, in part, laid out upon level platforms reaching back from the brow of hills, but they are seen most effectively in those portions which, rising from the undulating slopes of valleys, sweep gracefully up the sides of the hills. and cover them, apparently, when looked at from a little distance, with an impenetrable layer of the most luxuriant verdure. Closer inspection did not diminish the charm of the scene. Blended with the fresh leaves were countless numbers of bunches in embryo, pleasing to look at in their delicate blossoming, and evidencing, by their full promise, the capacity of the soil for this most fascinating branch of horticulture. The vines are trained to perpendicular | Until you get to stakes not exceeding five feet in height, and, in some instances, I counted as many | Where every one runs to get as sixty and more bunches to a single stock. The yield will be great; for the experience of passed years has shown that, unless attacked by rot in consequence of protracted nains at the ripening stage, the present appearance of the vineyards may be taken | every article sold by us is WARRANTED, or as an earnest of what the result will be, as | money returned. to quantity, at the time of vintage. Repeated experiments have shown that wines of a most delicate and palatable flavor can be made of the juice of these grapes. These wines, though not yet fairly introduced into market, have met with the commendation of connoisseurs; and I was pleased to see that the proprietors are making ample preparations to dispose of the rich abundance Porte-Monies, Pen and Pocket which the vintage will probably yield. It is to be hoped that the success which has attended the enterprise of these gentlemen will be emulated in other sections of the State; and thus result in elevating the vine into what climate and soil conspire to render it-a new source of wealth and a wholesome stimulus to intelligent labor .- [Correspondence of the Charleston Mercury.

 MUTTON.

We mean to report at least a thousand times, or till what we say has some effect on our countrymen, that a pound of lean, tender, juicy mutton can be raised for half the cost of the same quantity of fat pork; that it is infinitely healthier food, especially in the summer season; is more agreeable to the palate, when one gets accustomed to it; and that those who eat it become more muscular, and can do more work with greater case to themselves than those who eat fat pork. We know nothing more delicate than smoked mutton hams of South-down time to punctual dealers. breed of sheep-venison itself is not superior. Sheep can be kept in fine growing order where other domestic animals will scarcely exist; and thousands of acres in the State, under an enlightened system of sheep husbandry, may be made to pay a good interest where now they are nearly dead property in the hands of their present owners .- [Amer. Agriculturalist.

A Mr. Shipman informs the Editor of the "Worcester Palladium" that he has planted polatoes in the usual manner, then covered them to the depth of about six inches with straw; after this no further cultivation was to which he asks the inspection of purchasers. required-the straw kept down the weeds, and the potatoes were not disturbed until friends. they were dug. Not only has this method produced him a very superior potato, but it last year brought him an extraordinary yield-four bushels to the square rod, or at the rate of six hundred and forty bushels to the acre. He has tried this collection, those who are indebted to me in. mode of culture for three years past, and has, in every instance, found it to bring settlement by April Court, if not sooner. results superior to the common method .-This year he has planted at three different times, with the following results: Early in April he planted Meshannocks in both ways, and Pinkeyes under the straw; all were in the same kind of ground. HE WILL NOT WOO AGAIN.

Tis but a word, a careless word, In pride and passion spoken; But with that word the chain that bound Two loving hearts was broken. The hasty wrath has passed away: The bitter words remain: In vain the lady weeps and sighs;

No other love may light her path, No other move his heart; Yet changing seasons come and go, And find them still apart.

He will not woo again.

Her once bright cheek is paler now; His bears a trace of pain: Their eyes are sorrowful, and yet

He will not woo again. They meet as strangers, calm and cold; As calmly, coldly part; And none may guess that tranquil mien Conceals a tortured heart. To him the world hath lost its light; For her all joys are vain: Nor hope nor memory brings relief, He will not woo again.

Alas, that love, long tried and warm, Should wither in an hour! Alas, that pride o'er human hearts Should wield such fearful power! Oh! weep thou not for those who die-For them all tears are vain; But weep o'er living hearts grown cold,

Who ne'er may love again.

BRIGHT HOURS AND GLOOMY .- Ah this beautiful world! indeed, I known not what to think of it. Sometimes it is all gladness and sunshine, and heaven itself lies not far off; and then it suddenly changes, and is dark and sorrowful, and the clouds shut out the day. In the lives of the saddest of us there are bright days like this, when we feel as if we could take the great world in our arms. Then come gloomy hours, when the fire will not burn on our hearths, and dark. Believe me, every heart has its secret oftentimes we call a man cold when he is only sad .- [Long fellow.

A REAL HARD SHELL.

We don't refer to the religion, but to the physical shell of the old negro whom a correspondent of the Baltimore Patriot met in the cars from Chicago, Illinois, a few days ago, and thus describes :

"Far back towards the corner, sat an aged colored man, quite in character .-Neither old Hagar, Moses Small, nor Barnum's Mark Anthony, could rival him. He had passed through nearly one hundred years, wore a wig of Indian hair, black as et, beneath which was a beard white as driven snow. A more complete representation of an Egyptian mummy could scarcely be imagined. All of a sudden the old fellow struck up a hymn, in a clear shrill voice, thus attracting general attention. It seemed as though he "played on a harp of a thousand strings." In his hand was a petition asking aid to purchase his home in Missouri. Narrating briefly his history, he said: "I was born, Massa, in Norf Carolina, near de Cape Fear, one hundred years ago. My Massa tuck me to Missouri, where he died and lef me free. I got ligion on de forf ob July, eighteen hundred, and hab been preacher, bress Gor, I'se hard shell Baptist, and spects to congreat power and hopes to do good." DROFESSOR WOOD'S HAIR RESTORA TIVE, is, no doubt, the most wonderful hiscovery of this age of progress, for it will restore, permanently, gray hair to us original color, cover the head of the bald with a most luxuriant growth, emove at once all dandruff and itching, cure all scorfula and other cutaneous eruptions, such as schaldhead, etc. It will cure, as if by magic, nervous or periodical headache; make the hair soft. glossy and wavy, and preserve the color perfectly, and the hair from falling, to extreme old age. St. Paul, January 1, 1855. Professor O. J. Wood—
Dear Sir: Unsolicited, I send you this certificate. After being nearly bald for a long time, and having tried all the hair restoratives extant, and having no faith in any, I was induced, on hearing of ours, to give it a trial. I placed myself in the hands f a barber, and had my head ruched with a good stiff brush, and the restorative then applied, and well rubbed in, till the scalp was a glow. This I repeated every morning, and in three weeks the young hair appea.ed, and grew rapidly from August last till the present time, and is now thick, black, and strong-soft and pleasant to the touch; where as, before, it was harsh and wiry, what little there was of it, and that little was disappearing very rapidly. I still use your restorative about twice i week, and shall soon have a good and perfect crop of hair. Now, it I had read of these things-and who has not? but have not seen hitherto any case where any person's hair was really benefited by any of the hair tonics, etc., of the day; and it really gives me pleasure to record the result of my exper ience. I have recommended your preparation to others, and it already has a large and general sale throughout the Territory. The people here know you sent us, as wholesale agents for the Territory is nearly exhausted, and daily inquiries are made or it. WM. DYER. Brookfield, January 12, 1855.

PROFESSOR WOOD-Dear Sir: Having made trial of your HAIR RESTORATIVE, it gives me pleasure to say, was becoming gray, to its original col used no other article, with anything like the same 1 have pleasure and profit. Yours, truly, J. K. BRAGG.

Dear Sir: I am doing an extensive travel in the West and South-western States, as general agent for Adams' American Liniment, and would be glad John King, Jr., S. G. R. R. Agent, Charleston. FESSOR WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE, as I feel assured that I can introduce it in many places where it is not known, as my head is a living testimony of its valuable property, in restoring the hair to its natural color. I am forty years old, and my hair was almost white; but after using three half pint bottles, my hair is as beautiful auburn as it was at sixteen, and much improved in appearance, and I would not be without a bottle on hand for the price or ten. I should be very glad to attend to any matter connected with the HAIR RES. TORATIVE. I have been for fifteen years engaged in the same business, and will be glad to hear from you soon. Very respectfully, WM. B. BROOME. 87 Sold at 114 Market street, St. Louis, Missouri, 316 Broadway, New York, and by Scarr & Co., Charlotte, N. C., and by Druggists everywhere.—All kinds of family patent medicines for sale, on the best possible terms, at Professor Wood's establishment, 114 Market street, St. Louis. April 8, 1856.

There is a man in one of the up town boarding houses so mean that he wishes his landlady to reduce the price of his board because he has had two teeth extracted. I say, nigga, how you sell dem brooms cheaper dan dis inderwidual can do, when,

between oursebs, I steal de stuff!" "You big fool, Pomp, I steal mine ready manufactured."
