

From the South Carolina Agriculturalist. THE USE AND PRESERVATION OF TURMIPS.

As we promised an article on this subject in the July No., we proceed to give our views and experience for the benefit of those who only plant this valuable crop of small quantities. We would be glad to have the idea practically adopted, that the turnip erop is indispensable, and should be largely grown on all the plantations of the South. That it would be profitable, is, to us, no matter of doubt. In England, this is the farmer's great crop; for on it he feeds his sheep, fattens his oxon, and even learns his horses, in a great measure, to live on rutabagas. If we were to adopt a turnip mania with the violence with which we see our planters take the humbugs in the staple commercial crops, we would soon see marked changes in our farm stock for the better, whilst the milk pail and the butter churn would testify to the comfort and producing qualities of the root. We have grown 800 bushels of rutabagas upon an acre, and the cost of this culture did not exceed $20 .-As ample directions have heretofore been given for the cultivation of the crop, we will treat, at present, only of the uses which we have usually made of them, and their preservation. We feed them to all our domestic animals-horses, mules, cattle, sheep, goats, swine and poultry. For horses and mules we simply wash the roots clean and throw them in the manger along with the corn. The horses will eat to satiety, and the best effects will follow, as to condition and appearance. Some horses will not readily eat them, but they can be trained in half a day to do so. We usually take all the food out of the manger, and cutting the turnips into pieces, tempt the horse by putting portions into his mouth .-This soon induces him to lay hold and do justice to the fare. Added to grain and fodder or bay, the turnip supplies the lack of green food in winter, and thus is particularly beneficial to very old horses and colts. We usually chop them into pieces and steam them for our milch cattle, but feed them entirely raw to those not giving milk. We regard this as more congenial to the nature of animals than to steam them, as the deficiency of green food is thus supplied in winter. Steaming banishes the turnip flavor from butter. For caives, we chop them very fine, and mix them with meal .-A liberal allowance of hay, with a mess of turnips and meal, will keep a calf all winter, and all the milk can be taken from the cow for demestic purposes. We boil turnips with meal for our fattening hogs, and this brings them rapidly forward for the pickling tub. Our stock hogs are fed a bate of raw turnips every other day as long as they last, with the best effects. To sheep and goats, we feed them whole and without washing, except to very old ewes. For those we chop them in sizes not larger than a walnut, as their front teeth will not permit them to munch out the roots, as younger sheep will do. Last winter, our lambs all came in the depth of the snows and ice. and by the aid of turnips, and covered only by a small open shed, we saved every lamb yeaned. We fed our ewes liberally on turnips and hay, alternating every other day with cotton seed. Independently of suckling the lambs, our sheep came out of the winter in fine condition and have since thriven most remarkably. We, therefore, have good grounds for a strong recommendation of this crop as an adjunct to sheep growing, and believe no one can succeed without it. We have also made extensive use of turnips in feeding our poultry. We cut them up in fine shreds and pour boiling water over them. Ducks and chickens relish them when thus prepared. For geese, we use the small turnips, which we throw to them whole, as they generally cut them up with their sharp teeth. We regard no poultry yard as furnished with suitable food for winter, unless it has an ample store of turnips, as they supply to the poultry all that is required in the way of green food. These uses for animals, being so beneficial, when we come to an appreciation of their value as an article of human fcod, we are convinced that no crop of more value in these particulars and essentials can be grown on the plantation.

Several years since, we published a recipe for properly cooking turnips, which a distinguished agriculturalist avowed was worth one hundred dollars. We now give it for less than a thousandth part of that sum. Turnips, after being cooked with nice, half cured pork, or boiled in water and properly seasoned, should whilst simmering, quantity of the best sugar added to them. The quantity is to be determined to suit the taste-a spoonful or two will be sufficient for a dish for half a dozen persons. This takes away all the turnip flavor, so objectionable to most palates, and renders the turnip a delightful and inviting dish. It also fits it for delicate stomachs, which | 250 Acres, known as the Rea Mine Tract. This otherwise could not bear this kind of food.

PRESERVING TURNIPS, &c .- As soon as Potter road. the frost has stopped the growth of the plants, and there is reason to apprehend their freezing, begin to take them up. We feed off the lying on the waters of Paw Creek, in Mecklenburg tops to our cattle as rapidly as they will county, containing 106 Acres well watered, and tol eat them, though if left in the field in small heaps they will keep in feeding condition a long time. For our turnip roots, we elevate a bed and store them in long conical ridges, over which we erect a roof of boards, covered with earth to the depth of six incovered with earth to the depth of six in-ches. what we regard as better, three inch laths nailed round a head piece four inches square. These will leave a small slit all the way through the heap, up the four corners of the tube, and the impure gasses will readily escape. During very cold weather, the op must be closed by a triangular cap, made of two pieces of boards saddled over the cone of the roof upon a wisp of straw. Those which we wish to save later in the season, we put into conical mounds covered in as sweet potatoes usually are. We put from twenty-five to forty bushels in a heap, and when we break it, we use the contents immediately. With these precautions, we have frequently kept turnips till we had no further use for them in the Spring, and the pastures were green with

A SCENE IN VIRGINIA.

At Culpeper Court House, in Virginia. soon after the formation of the county, Dick Hardy, then a good humored, gay young bachelor, the favorite of both sexes, was called upon to carve the pig at the court dinner. The District Judge was at the table, the lawyers, justices, and everybody else that felt disposed to dine. At Dick's right elbow sat a militia Colonel, who was tricked out in all the pomp and circumstance admitted by his rank. He had probably been engaged on some court martial, imposing fifty cent fines on absentees from the last general muster. Howbeit Dick, in thrusting his fork into the back of the pig. bespattered the officer's regimentals with some of the superfluous gravy. "I beg your pardon," said Dick, as he went on with his carving. Now these were times when the war spirit was high, and chivalry at a premium. "Beg your pardon" might serve as honor, but did not touch the question of the greased and spotted regimentals.

The Colonel, swelling with wrath, seized a spoon, and deliberately dipping it into the gravy, dashed it over Dick's prominent

All saw the act, and with open eyes and mouth sat in astonished silence, waiting to see what would be done next. The outraged citizen calmly laid down his knife and fork, and looked at his frill, the officer, and the pig, one after another. The Colonel, unmindful of the pallid countenance and significant glance of burning eyes, leaned back in his chair, with arms akimbo, regarding the young farmer with cool disdain. A murmur of surprise and indignation arose from the congregated guests. Dick's face turned as red as a turkey gobbler's.

He deliberately took the pig by the hind leg, and with a sudden whirl brought it down upon the head of the unlucky officer. Stunned by the squashing blow, astounded and blinded with streams of gravy, and wads of stuffing, he attempted to rise, but blow after blow from the fat pig fell upon his bewildered head. He seized a carving knife and attempted to defend himself with olind but ineffectual fury; and at length, with a desperate effort, rose and took to his heels. Dick Hardy, whose wrath waxed hotter and hotter, followed, belaboring him unmercifully at every step, around the and is yet. Also, table, through the hall, and into the street, A good Gin House and Screw, extensive the crowd shouting and applauding.

We are sorry to learn that among the erowd were lawyers, sheriffs, magistrates with a Well of and constaoles; and that even his honor tion, shouted in a loud voice, "Give it to him. Dick Hardy! There is no law in Christendom against basting a man with a roast pig!" Dick's weapon failed before his anger; and when at length the battered Colonel escaped into the door of a friendly dwelling, the victor had nothing in his hands but the hind legs of the roaster. Here-entered the dining room flourishing these over his head, and venting his still unappeased wrath in great oaths.

The company reassembled, and finished their dinner as best they might. In reply to a toust, Hardy made a speech, wherein he apologised for sacrificing the principal dinner dish, and, as he expressed it, for putting public property to private uses. In reply to this speech a treat was ordered .-In these good old times folks were not so virtuous but that a man might have cakes and ale without being damned for it. It is presumable the day wound up in a spree.

YOUNG AMERICA.

On Saturday evening, a little boy not over four years of age, while going down Broadway, N. Y., was stopped by a crowd of men, seated in front of the Broadway Hotel. One of the company, who had during the evening made repeated efforts at wit, said to the boy:

"Sonny, does your mamma know you're

The little fellow very coolly answered: "Yes, sir, my ma gave me three cents to buy a monkey-are you for sale?" and passed on, leaving the crowd convulsed with laughter.

THAT all the bald and gray can be restored perfectly to original growth, so far as their ocks are concerned, does not admit of a doubt; be sides it will cure every possible disease of the sea p, whether developed as dandruff, i ching, or in the hape of cutaneous eruptions-even scald-headand in no possible case will it fail of coring, as a by magic, nervous or periodical headache, and i used twice a week by the young, regularly, it will preserve the color, and keep the hair from taling, to any imaginable age. Read and judge Messrs. O. J. Wood & Co.: GENTS:- Yours of the 13th came duly to hard Enclosed, please find thirty-eight dollars, it being the amount for Hair Restorative. I have sold it all. * If you choose, you may send its dozen bottles Hair Restorative; I think I can sell it. It has worked miracles in this place. I soli a man six $1 bottles, that was bald, and it fetched new hair out all over his head.

Yours, respectfully, M. H. GRIDLEY. Yours, respectfully,

C. R. R. Office, Vandalia, June 21, 1851. DEAR SIR: I take pleasure in bearing volunts y testimony to the excellence of your Hair Restorative. Three months ago, my hair was very gray. It is now a dark brown, (the original color.) smooth and glossy. The only application I have made to it, has been the Hair Restorative prepared by you, and which, from the result in my own case,

I can most cordially recommend to others, Respectfully, yours.
EDWARD WOLCOTT.

Vincennes, Ia., June 21, 1853. PROF. O. J. WOOD:-As you are acout to Hair Restorative, I will state, for whomseever it may concern, that I have used it, and known others to use it-that I have, for several years, been - 13 cts. in the habit of using other Hair Restoratives, and that I fi d yours vastly superior to any other I know. It entirely cleanses the head of dandrift and with one month's proper use, will restore any person's hair to the original youthful color and texture, giving it a healthy, soft and glossy appear ance; and all this, without discoloring the hand that apply it, or the dress on which it drops. would, therefore, recommend its use to every one desirous o having a fine color and texture to hair

Respectfully, yours, WILSON KING. St. Louis, June 29, 1853. FROF. WOOD:—As you are about to prepare and vend your recently discovered Hair Restorative and as you request my opinion of it, I will state, that my hair was, a few months ago, very gray and after using two bottles of your Hair Rest in tive, it resumed its original color; and since its application, all dandruff has desappeared from my head, and I have been troubled with no disagreesble itching of the scalp. I am satisfied, that those ance of having been recently oiled. I am prepared, therefore, to recommend its use to all who are desirous of having a beautiful head of hair. E. L. STEWART. I am, sir, yours, etc.

PROFESSOR WOOD-Dear Sir. My hair had, for several years, been becoming prematurely gray, accompanied by a harshness which rendered the constant application of oil necessary in dessing it. When I comment ed using your Hair Restorative, about two months ago, it was in that condition; and having continued its use till within the last three weeks, it has turn's to its natural color, and assumed a solucie at a lustre greatly to be preferred to those produced by the application of oils or any other preparation have ever used. I regard it as an indispensable article for every I dy's toilet, whether to be used $5 Hrir Restorative, or for the simple purpose of diesting or beautifying the hair. You have permission to reter to me all who enteriain any doubt of its performing all that is claimed for it.
