CHARLOTTE.

Tuesday Morning, Nov. 11, 1856.

THE RESULT. JAMES BUCHANAN elected PRESIDENT,

JOHN C. BRECKINRIDGE Vice President As we confidently expected from the commencement of the campaign, we have the gratification to announce the success of the democracy in the late election. This result is cheering to every national man. It certainly is to every democrat, and ought to be so to all men who are for maintaining the rights of the States.

We are not disposed to crow over our opponents in the South, especially those who acted against us from honest convictions. Many of them no doubt would have acted with the democratic party had they not been deceived by their leaders and presses in regard to the true state of the fight. We warned them, and every democratic speaker told them, that the contest was between Buchanan and Fremont-that party leaders informed them otherwise and thus deceived them. Fillmore receives the vote of but one State-Buchanan and Fremont get the balance.

We annex a list of the States, with the number of electoral votes given to each of the candidates:

Senator Douglas telegraphs to Washington that Illinois has certainly gone democratic. So that Buchanan would be elected without either Tennessee or Louisiana. THE CLOSING MEETING.

On Monday night before the election the democracy of this place and vicinity held the last meeting of the campaign. Notwithstanding the rain and mud, a large number of the "unterrified" turned out. Short speeches were delivered by R. P. Waring and Pollock Lee, Esq'rs,-the latter declaring that he was going to cast his first vote for James Buchanan.

The proceedings in the Court House were closed by a speech from Dr. H. M. Pritchard, President of the Democratic Club. He spoke feelingly and eloquently, and was frequently cheered and applauded. The doctor is a leader that any party might be proud of-energetic, persevering and intelligent, he is ever ready for duty, and entirely competent to give a reason for the good faith that is in him. As a reliable politician he has few superiors, and none more zealous in the cause of democracy and southern rights.

a torch-light procession was formed under the direction of Mr John Townley, chief marshal. There were several transparancies with appropriate mottoes. The one heading the procession was surmounted with a pair of buck horns, and encircled by a floral wreath, presented to the club Fillmore was out of the question-but their by Miss Amanda E. Shaw. [In another column a friend makes due acknowledgment for this beautiful present.] The procession moved through the principal streets, and at a reasonable hour adjourned.

The party is indebted to Mr Townley for the display of transparencies.

The Mechanic's Brass Band, led by Messrs Marshall Frazier and Geo. Warren, enlivened the occasion with excellent music, as they did at previous meetings of the thanks to the Band for their services.

MECKLENBURG COUNTY AGRI-CULTURAL FAIR.

We again remind the citizens of thi county of the Agricultural Fair to be held in Charlotte on the 20th and 21st of this month.
