I wish he would make up his mind ma, For I don't care much longer to wait, I'm sure I've hinted quite strongly

That I thought of changing my state; For a sweetheart he's really so backward, I can't bring him out, though I try; I own he's very good tempered, But then he's so dreadful shy !

When I speak about love and a cottage, He gives me a glance of surprise; And if I but nint about marriage,

He blushes quite up to the eyes! I can't make him jealous-I've tried it-And 'tis no use my being unkind, For that's not the way, I am certain, To get him to make up his mind.

I've sung him love sonnets by dozens, I've worked him both slippers and hose, And we've walked out by moonlight together,

Yet he never attempts to propose. You really must ask his intention, Or some other beau I must find; For indeed I won't tarry much longer, For one who can't make up his mind.

WHAT WILL MRS. GRUNDY SAY

NEARLY one half the world is ever revolving the question-as to what the other half will think and say of contemplated actions. In all things this must be answered before decisive steps are taken. All such are miserable serfs-bond slaves to the opinions of others. They have no selfgovernment rule-they are destitute of the freedom of opinion. The ubiquitous and busy Mrs. Grundy, is their model and their mortal fear, who shapes their household, their feasts, their garments, their sociability their morals, their religion, their all! Poor string-halted souls! there is a wheeze of apprehension in every breath they draw. They are living examples of the science of nose-leading!

If half the world are not so led, society WILLIAM H. McKEE, M. D., President. at least furnishes an abundance of such slaves. They are wonderfully plentyplenty as blackberries. "What will Mrs. Grundy say?" drives them in flocks. To be found standing alone in some independent J. A. WADDELL, M. D., Vice-Principal. position subjects the individual to a terrible fear and torment. It is something of a social perdition from which the poor, uahappy mortal is ever struggling to escape. WHO IS TO BLAME FOR THE INCREASE OF cided improvement, are not only instructed in the ordinary branches of a common education, BACHELORS !- A correspondent of the New York Evening Post, in answering this inquiry, thus speaks a timely word for the needle-work, bead-work, and suitable handicraft liberal patronage bestowed upon us, and if women. He indignantly says:

Is the blame for the extravagance in be paid to their religious, moral and physical improvement, and every effort will be made, not only to render them comfortable, but to promote this country? Certainly not. We speak their highest welfare. Pupils should by all of the extravagance of the female portion of mation in regard to the Institution, address the community in carpets, pianos, &c., but do not mention Fifth Avenue palaces, costly horses and vehicles, and splendid churches. Certainly the women are not to blame for these. Look at the expenses of our young men in fashionable dress, brandy, mint juleps, oyster suppers, Spanish cigars. I think if the account were balanced, it is doubtful which side would preponderate. 1 apprehend that the fault in extravagant living pervades the whole community, both sexes being equally to blame. Even our funerals here become so costly that one can hardly afford to die. You may be sure that our young women are as careful about entering into matrimony with the other sex, and quite as unwilling to make themselves wretched by marrying thriftless and dissipated young men.

FASHIONABLE WOMEN.

Fashion kills more women than toil or sorrow. Obedience to fashion is a greater transgression of the laws of woman's nature, a greater injury to her physical and mental constitution, than the hardships of poverty and neglect. The slave woman at her task will live and grow old, and see two or three generations of her mistress pass away.
