WOULD THAT WE MIGHT MEET AGAIN.

Ah! would that we might meet again, Nor part till life's decline; For know that thou a golden chain, Doth bind this heart to thine; A chain whose tendril will entwine While on this earth I rove-Which nought but love can e'er dissolve, The magic chain of love.

Ah! would that we might meet again, For lone and dreary are The hours, when thou art far away; Yet love's my guiding star; And still amidst the darkest hours, "Twill sweetly point to thee; For thou this heart's hest treasure art, And thou shalt ever be.

Thy smile I fain would see: But dost thou, when, 'mid other scenes, Still east one thought on me? Both thy fond mem'ry e'er recall The hour when first we not? The hour with joy and gladness fraught, This heart can ne'er forget ?

Yes! would that we might meet again,

Ah! would that we might meet again; I would the hour might come That "where thou goest I may go," And there shall be my home. Yet stiff, as days slide swiftly by, Though joy or sadness reign,
This hope I'll fondly cherish still— That we may meet again.

COURTSHIP.

There are few married men who could not, if they would, relate some interesting incident connected with their courting experience, and there are few unmarried folks of either sex who do not take naturally to just that style of narrative. Every body expects to be married at one time or another, and consequently every body is anxious to know how every body else has crossed the matrimonial Rubicon, managed the ticklish business. "J. W. M." explains to us how he came to be

"It may be funny, but I've done it; I've got a rib and a baby. Shadows departed-oyster stews, brandy cock-tails, eigar boxes, boot jacks, absconding shirt buttons, whist and dominoes. Shadows soothing syrup, rhubarb, senna, salts, squills and doctors' bills. Shadows future - more nine pound babies, more hive syrup, &c., &c.-I'll just tell you how I got caught,

"I was always the darmlest, most tea-custard. bashful fellow von ever did see; it was kinder in my line to be taken with the shakes every time I saw a pretty gal approaching me, and I'd cross the street any time rather than face one; 'twasn't because I didn't like the critters, for was I behind a fence looking through a knot hole I could not look at one long enough. Well my sister Lib gave a party one night, and I staid away from home, because I was too bashful to face the music. I hung round the house whistling 'Old Dan Tucker, dancing to keep my feet warm, watching the heads bobbing up and down behind the window curtains, and wishing the thundering party would break up so I could get to my room. I smoked up a bunch of eigars, and as it was getting late and mighty uncomfortable, I concluded to climb upon the door post. No sooner said than done, I soon found myself snug in bed. Now, says I to myself, let her rip-dance till your wind gives out; and endling under the quilts, Morpheus grabbed me. I was draaming of soft shelled erabs and stewed tripe, and was having a good time, when somebody rapped at my door and waked me up. 'Rap,' again. I laid low. 'Rap, rap, rap. Then I heard a whispering, and I knew there was a whole raft of girls outside. 'Rap, rap, rap,' then Lib sings out: "Jack, are you in there?"

"Yes," says I, and then came a roar of laughter.

"Let us in," says she. "I won't," says I, can't you let a poor fellow "Are you abed?"

"I am." "Get up." 5 701 54005

"I won't Then came another laugh. By thunder, I began to get riled. "Get out, you petticoated scarecrows," I cried; "can't you get a beau without hauling a fellow out of bed? I won't go home with you. I won't-so you may clear out; and sending a boot at the door, I felt better, but presently, oh, mortal buttons! I heard a still small voice, very much like sister Lib's and it said : "Jack, you'll have to get up, for all the girl's things are in there.'

Oh, what a pickle! Think of me, all covered over with shawls, muffs, bonnets and cloaks, and twenty girls outside wanting to get in! If I had stopped to think, I should have fainted on the spot, as it was, I rolled out among the bonnet wire and ribbons in a hurry. Smash! went the millinery in all directions. I had to dress in the darkfor there was a crack in the door, and girls wil peep-and the way I jumped about was death on straw hats. The critical moment came. After running my hands all over my clothes to see that every thing was right and tight, I opened the door and found myself right among the women. "Oh, my leghorn " cried one.

"My dear winter velvet!" eries another, and they pitched in they pulled me this way and that, boxed my ears, and one bright-eyed little piece-Polly, her name was, put her arms around my neck, and kissed me right on my lips. Human nature couldn't stand that, and I gave her as good as she sent. It was the first time I ever got a taste, and it was powerful good. I believe I could have kissed that girl from Julius Casar to fourth of July.

"Jack," says she, "we are sorry to disturb you. but won't you see me home?

"Yes, I will," and I did do it, and another smack at the gate, too. After that, we took a kind of turtle-doveing after each other, both of us sighing like a barrel of new cider when we were away from each other.

'Twas at the close of a glorious summer daythe sun was fast setting behind a distant hogpenthe chickens were going to roost-the bullfrogs were commencing their evening songs-the pollywogs in the native puddles were preparing themselves for the shades of the night-and Polly and myself sat upon an antiquated black log, listen- to merit patronage and support. her hair with an orange peel hue, and showing off my thread bare coat to a bad advantage -one of my arms was around Polly's waist, my hand resting on the small of her back-she was toying with my auburn locks of jet black hue-she was almost gone and I was ditto-she looked like a grasshopper dying with the hiecups. I felt like a mud turtle choked with a codfish ball. 'Polly,' says I, in a voice musical as the dying swan, will you have me?' She turned her eyes heavenward, clasped me by the hand, had an attack of blind staggers, and with a sigh that drew her shoe strings to her palate, said

"Yes She gave clear out then and squatted in my lap she cork-screwed and I curflumixed and rolled in. I hugged her till I broke my suspenders .-Well, to make a long story short, she set the day and we practiced every night for four weeks how we would walk into the room to be married, till we got so as we could walk as graceful as a couple of Largest, Neatest and Cheapest muscovie ducks. The night the company and the minister came, the signal was given, and arm in arm we marched through the crowded hall. We were just entering the parlor door, when down I went kerslap on the oil cloth, pulling Polly after me. Some cursed fellow had dropped a banana skin on the floor and it floored me. It split an awful hole in my cashmere right under my dresscoat tail. It was too late to back out, so clapping my hand over it, we marched in and were spliced. Taking a seat, I watched the kissing the bride operation. My groomsman was tight, and he kissed her till I jumped up to take a slice, when, oh, horror! a little six-years old imp had crawled behind me, and pulling my shirt through the whole in my pants, had pinned it to the chair, and in jumping up I discovered to the admiring gaze of the astonished multitude a trifle more white muslin than was pleasant. Women g ggled, the men roared, and I got mad, but was finally put to bed, and there all my troubles ended.

Eye-Lids.

The delicate structure of the eyelid renders it peculiarly liable to disease. When, from any cause, it becomes affected, the inner membrane rapidly inflames. and the eyelid evinces the strongest predisposition to attract to itself humors from all parts of the body. Hundreds of persons of scrofulous habit are disfigured by rawness or redness of the eyelids, commonly called sore eyes, and tortured with apprehension of impaired vision, who, by using this BALSAM, may obtain almost immediate relief. In all cases, the earlier this remedy is upplied the better.

READ THE FOLLOWING EVIDENCE: New York, July 15, 1856. Messrs SANDS-Gentlemen-I have been troubled for years with an affection of the eyelids, and have tried a number of remedies without experiencing any decided benefit. A few weeks since I obtained some of your Roman five-Balsam, and applied it according to the directions. I had not used it a week before my evelids were entirely free from inflamation, which had not been the case before for many years.

I tried all the remedies I could hear of, both North and South; none of them effected anything-like a permanent cure, and many failed to give even temporary relief. Hearing of your Rhenmatic Annihilator, as a last resort I procured two or three bottles, used it according to directions, and I am happy to certify that in a remarkably short time it has entirely cured me, effecting such a thorough cure too, that I believe there is not a vestige of the disease now left in my system.
