THE LIVERS INVIGORATOR!

Compounded entirely from GUMS.

IS ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER ME DICINES now before the public, that acts as a Cathartic, easier, milder, and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cirhartic, but a Lirer remedy, acting first on the Lirer to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feelings experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the semetime that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses, will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

A WESTERN DESPERADO.

Wysocking, Sept. 24.

NATHAN, Esq.

One of those lawless men to be found frequently in the far West, who set at defiance God, humanity In the Corner Store recently occupied by L. S. Williams, and law, was shot down in Louisiana last month. The desperado's name was Lebleu. A Louisiana paper gives an account of the assassination:

A great criminal offender, Paulin C. Lebleuthe cold-blooded murderer of Ewing and Parsons -the gold-hearted wife seducer and kidnapperthe lawless desperado of the parish of Calcasieur, who once dared and did force his own negro slave to sit on the bench of the District Court of that parish during Court time, and in derision of the presiding Judge-has at last met with that fate he so richly deserved. As to the particulars of his death we are indebted to S. Belden, Esq., who has just returned from the Court of that parish: and we here give them as communicated to us by that

On Monday, the 13th inst., the District Court commenced its regu ar session at Lake Charles, the seat of justice in the parish of Calcasieu. Everything about town indicated that a deep under-current was at work for some purpose unknown to strangers; for the western wing of the Hotel displayed in fine order and good keeping many doublebarreled guns, pistols and bowie knives. Like implements of warfare were also conspicuously vissible in the Court room. Things remained in that state until Wednesday morning, at which time Paulin C. Leblicu, coming in from the country, rode up to the track of the hotel, descended from his mule, and started towards the house, with a pair of heavy dragoon pistols across his arm, besides a repeater and a bowie knife in his belt. He the same steps, four different times, by a man named Eugene Foux and several others, who all had been the victims of the lust and other depravities of Lebleu. Each discharge was deadly. His right arm was awfully mangled; four buck shot penetrated through his neck, one through his right breast, one through the lower part of his abdomen. and the balance—as he turned at the fire—took effect in his shoulders and back. It appears that he received from thirty-five to forty buck-shot through the most vital portions of his person. Lebleu expired almost instantly. And thus closed the life of one whose early career has been stained with blood and ruin, all of which could have been prevented, if those intrusted with the administration of justice in that parish had only performed their duty fearlessly and regardless of consequences. We are told that from his manhood Lebleu prided himself in the violation of the laws of his country in the most outrageous manner. and that none ever dared to arrest him for doing

STREET BEGGING.

There is some stir now in Philadelphia and New York, among the authorities, to put down street begging, especially by children. It has long been against the law, and one of the instructions to the police has been, to arrest every such offender. But arrests are not made, and the streets, hotels, stores and dwellings are beset by legions of men, women and children, who make piteous and importunate appeals for charity. People of kindly sympathies are apt to listen to such appeals only until they become familiar with the cities, and find, as they soon do, not only that they are against law, but that they are universally regarded as being made by persons altogether unworthy of relief. There are charitable institutions in New York for every class of sufferers, and those who are worthy know Their feelings are not outraged, but the relief is granted kindly, promptly and systematically, whilst it is needed. The street beggars are those who know that they have no real claim upon charity, and that they cannot pass that ordeal of inquiry and examination to which all who ask relief of the charitable institutions are subjected.

A poor woman, for instance, has to go out to wash or sew for a day. She cannot carry her little child with her, but she takes it to this institution, where it is watched and which attracted her attention. nursed or fed, and returned to her at night. For this a charge of a sixpence is made, not for profit, but to prevent imposition. Or orphan children are taken and reared without cost till they are old enough to do something for their own support, receiving in the meantime a good plain education. Many mothers who carry their children there are themselves hired to take care of there own and other children. The first ordeal to which they are subjected, on entering, is the bath-cleanliness being an indispensable rule. Sometimes that pronees rebellion; people who have all their lives lived in dirt being unwilling to be clean. But when submitted to, the effect is manifest upon am in a hurry."

body and mind. The institution contains some hundreds of children, and numerous women to take care of them. Its immense building is always full. It was begun upon a very small scale, by a few ladies. Its success made it other friends. The State gave it $10,000, and individuals have taken care that it should never want. A lady of this place who and neatness and order which pervaded it. Honesty.-We occasionally receive notices from Postmasters that a subscriber at their offices has not taken the paper from the office for six months or a year, or several years. And all efforts to get information as to who did take it from the office are generally fruitless. Postmasters make themselves liable by neglect to inform Editors in such cases, or by taking the paper themselves; but they seldom admit their liability. We have before us an instance of honesty in such a case that deserves to be recorded, as an example to some other Postmasters in like cases. Wm. D. Farmer, Postmaster at Joyner's Depot, Edgecombe county, N. C., writes us that one of our subscribers at that office had not taken the paper from the office for three years. But Mr. Farmer encloses to us the amount of subscription for those three years. He has our thanks, as well as the approval of his own
