POETIOAL.

From the Greensboro Times. I WISH SOME BODY'D COME. BY MATILDA.

The flowers are blooming on the lawn, As bright as they can be; And every thing is full of life "And happiness but me, The flowers look very dull to-day, They are shadowy like my dreams, And very lonesome seems to me The sunlight's golden gleams, As for the birds, I heed them not, They had as well be dumb-They can not charm my soul to-day-

I wish some body'd come! I take my knitting in my hand, My knitting case and all, But, oh my needles one by one, Keep running through my ball, And yonder on the stairs untouched, My needful sewing lies;

But it would be a useless task, To try to use my eyes, And gently slips my knitting down, Unnoticed from my thumb; 'Tis vain for me to try to work-I wish some body'd come.

I've tried my music and my books, I've tried them o'er and o'er; But, pshaw! I can not see my notes, My eyes keep wandering so, Unanswered notes before me lie-I'il count them; one, two, three, And here are letters for me too, But what are they to me? My books are stale, my music sounds Discordant as a drum;

My voice is very hoarse to-day-I wish some body'd come. The sun is setting in the West, And twilight deepens now, And night comes forth, an ebon queen,

With jewels on her brow, The cat lies purring on the hearth, The bell has rang for tea And not a single soul has come-What can the reason be?

I've looked for Willie all day long, And now I'll look no more-There Fanny! don't you hear that step? Some body's at the door!

THE RIGHT TRAINING OF WOMEN.

The Church of England Review has an article on female education from which we take the follow-

Much remains to be done in winnowing out of people's minds ridiculous ideas of a certain purely factious style of living without which it is impossible to keep house. There are plenty of young men who have to unlearn the loppery of expenses disproportioned to their means, and the sordidness | the people is to give us a trial, and we are confident we of luxuries which feed, not self-respect, but gluttony and pride. The possibility must be secured to daughters and younger sisters growing to be rational appreciative companions; girls who if they are ever married, will choose and value their husband for what he is, and be interested in his calling and his opportunities of observation-women who will estimate the grave and sweet realities of wife and motherhood, beyond any accident of precedence of superfluity. By dismissing false and foolish notions of respectability, by refusing the cheap fascinations of a paltry education of display, by discountenancing restraints misdirected or too rigorous, by cultivating an intelligent and unassuming mode of intercourse, by a careful foresight in assisting young people to prepare themselves for the exertion and cost of one day being the centre of a peaceful, hospitable home; in these and other ways much may be done to remove obstructions to that gradual acquaintance and that unaffected respeet and attachment which lead on to a happy

In the meantime, it will be well to think with not only the sympathy, but the veneration they deserve, of many among those who will never marry, to assist in multiplying the too few occupations suitable to women, or to open to them, above all, not to preach, by implication or otherwise, that women's life need never be dwarfed to a negation, tract, and John A. Lemmond, Henry Sheill and others. or consumed miserably away, by causes completely out of her control. There are women strong enough to keep their footing in the world singly without a loss of womanly dignity and sweetness, and to organize around them the moral elements at all events, of an independent existence. They whose steps are feeble need the more to be helped rather than bindered in the struggle with their fainting and more yielding self. If they fall here, is it at all certain that in wedded life their lot would have been auspicious? Also! how many a faltering will has been bent and "given" beneath sanguine, unfulfilled resolutions to reclaim and humanize the husband, who has pulled the wife down instead to his own mean and wretched level! Marriage is not a lottery, but it is mere wilful blindness to forget that in all its higher aspects it may be wofully inverted or appallingly debased. Not all the grand provisions of tender ties and gracious instincts which surround one of the greatest of divine ordinances will make people pure or happy who insist on being peevish or frivolous or worldly, sensual, or devilish. Wedded life is a great and a holy mystery, and a source of power for good, often far Levond estimation; but unless there be at least one soul filled with unselfish love, and strong in an unflag- that is scarcely elsewhere to be met with ging faith, the formal union between two persons is no guarantee whatever for a will ennobled, or hands of Mr H. DON,T USE A CHECK REIN .-- The New England 'Farmer,' speaking on the subject, says:

"Any peason whose attention has been called to light check rein, ought to have his own head placed in a similar position to that to which he has cruelly subjected the horse. If I were the 'Grand Sultan,' every man who torments his horse with a check rein should hold his arms at right angles with his body for an hour at a time, once in twentyfour hours as long as he continued the check rein. Of A. Dickson's make, constantly on hand and for sale The practice of drawing in the heads of team at REDUCED PRICES. horses by means of this pernicious strap, is especially cruel. The horse, in endeavoring to expend his strength, needs the free, natural use of his head and neck. The cramping position now enforced is alike severe and injurious to horses, and in any business and should be eased off till nature is at free play."
