brought about the armistice, and says that the sideration and for future reference: great neutral powers exchanged communications with the belligerents, offering their mediation, but were unsuccessful until the French fleet was about commencing hostilities against Venice, and a conflict before Verona was imminent. At this point, Louis Napoleon, anxious to prevent further bloodshed, ascertained the disposition of the Emperor of Austria, and finding him willing to agree to a suspension of hostilities, the armistice was concluded. The two Emperors had an interview at Villa Franca.

The London Times claims that England brought about the armistice; other authorities give the credit to Prussia.

A Verona telegram says that the armistice was concluded after repeated requests from the French. and after Austria had obtained all she asked for. It is reported that Kossuth has proposed a monarchical government for Hungary.

The following is the telegram from the Emperor Napoleon to the Empress announcing peace:

"VALLEGIO, 11th .- A treaty of peace has been signed between the Emperor of Austria and myself on the following basis: An Italian confederacy, may be estimated as follows: to be under the honorary presidency of the Pope. The Emperor of Austria concedes his rights in Crop of 1859, Lombardy to the Emperor of the French, who Consumption 5 bush. per head, transfers them to the King of Sardinia. The Emperor of Austria preserves Venice, but she will form an integral part of the Italian confederation."

The London News says that the hopes of Italy are utterly deceived by this peace, and that history will call Napoleon to a strict account for having made war under false pretences, that leaves Austria impregnably fortified in the heart of Northern Italy, and commits the central portion to the patronage of the Pope.

The London Morning Post says that the Pope is deprived of the substance, but keeps the shadow of supremacy.

ARSENIC EATERS IN AUSTRIA .--- In lower Austria and Styria it appears to be a common custom among the peasantry to consume every morning a small portion of the deadly poison in the same manner as the eastern world consumes opium. Dr Tschudi, the well known traveler, published an account of several cases which had come to his knowledge. The habit seems not to be so pernicious in its results as that of opium-eating. It is commenced by taking a very small dose, say somewhat less than half a grain every morning, which is gradually increased to two or three grains. The case of a hale, old farmer is mentioned, whose morning whet of arsenic reached the large quantity of four grains. Arsenic-caters grow fat and ruddy upon this dainty food. It strengthens the lungs, and relieves the head, whilst undergoing severe fatigue, and entering in a more rarified atmosphere. -On Thursday morning, says the Cleveland (Ohio) Democrat, the packet Union arrived from Port Stanley, Canada, with sixteen fugitive slaves, limbs and body he commenced the most frantic at the negro settlement of Chatham, Canada West. It appears from the above that the Republicans are getting ready for a fresh agitation on the Kansas question. If such a clause is inserted in the Constitution of Kansas, nobody can doubt that the object of it is to defeat its admission in the Union as a State, for that will certainly be the effect. There are enough nullifying States already in, without admitting any more. The Republicans to keep the Kansas issue alive until after the Presidential election. The admission of the State is to be made secondary to political ends. This
