POETIOA L.

BE A WOMAN.

Oft I've heard a gentle mother, As the twilight hours began, Pleading with a son, on duty, Urging him to be a man. But unto her blue-eyed daughter, Though with love's words quite as ready, Points she out the other duty, "Strive, my dear, to be a lady."

What's a lady? Is it something Made of hoops, and silks, and airs, Used to decorate the parlor, Like the fancy rugs and chairs? Is it one that wastes on novels

Every feeling that is human? If 'tis this to be a lady, 'Tis not this to be a woman.

Mother, then, unto your daughter Speak of something higher far, Than to be mere fashion's lady, "Woman" is the brightest star If ye, in your strong affection, Urge your son to be a true man, Urge your daughter no less strongly,

To raise up and be a woman. Yes, a woman—brightest model Of that light and perfect beauty, Where the mind, and soul, and body, Blend to work out life's great duty-

Be a woman-naught is higher On the gilded list of fame, On the catalogue of virtue There's no brighter, holier name.

Be a woman—on to duty,

Place high in the social heaven Virtue's fair and radiant bow. Lend thy influence to each effort That shall raise our nature human, Be not fashion's gilded lady, Be a brave, true-hearted woman

Raise the world from all that's low,

PERFORMANCE OF DUTY. Translated from the Italian.

No man can drive from his mind the idea of duty; he cannot avoid feeling the importance of this idea. Duty is inevitably tied up in our being; our conscience tells us this, as soon as we have hardly attained the use of our reason; and the more reason develops itself, the more do we feel the importance of duty. All, and everything around and about us, brings it to our minds, because all is governed by a harmonious and eternal law; everything has a destination, that of showing the wisdom and executing the will of that being who is the beginning and the end of all things.

a nature. He wants to be what he should be, Caps & Ready-made Clothing. lest he be esteemed neither by others, nor by himself and be not happy. This nature of man has to aspire at felicity, to comprehend and to prove, that, in order to attain this, he must be good, to wit: he must be what is required for our real welfare, according to the system of the universe, according to the views of God.

If, in the heat of passion, we were tempted to Bleached and unbleached Domestics at New York prices call our welfare that which is opposed to the and the prices of all other Goods kept in store will be welfare of others or to the existing order of things, we, nevertheless feel our wrong; conscience will cry out: "you forgot yourselves, your duty," and as soon as passion is abated, we will shudder at our opposition to the welfare of others only for self-interest.

The fulfillment of our duty is so essential to our well-being that even pain and death, which appear to us, the worst that can befall us, change into pleasure for the generous soul when convinced that he by them can be useful to his fellow-men, Cash on hand and in Bank or when he knows that it was by the decrees of Cash in hand of Agents and in transit, the Almighty that he had to suffer either of them. To be what we should be, is, therefore, the definition of duty, and at once that of felicity. Religion illustrates, in a sublime way, this truth, by saying that man is made after the image of 100 shares Bank of the State of Missouri, God. Man's duty and felicity are to be that State and city Bonds, 6 per cents, image, not to desire to be anything else; to be Rail Road Stocks, good, because God is good, and because he has destined him to raise himself to all virtues and to become one of him.

It is needless to say the cents were forthcoming. Good plan.

STAGGERS IN HORSES .- Miles Saunders, Esq. sends to the Pulaski Times the following remedy for the cure of staggers in horses:

Bleed the horse copiously in the large veins inside the thighs (and never in the neck). Fill both ears with spirits turpentine, and cord them well; wet the head all round with turpentine, and wet them well back of the shoulders and in the flanks; squirt a small quantity of turpenting up each nostril, and smoke them well with rags or will be sent on application to cotton. I have never known the above remedies to fail when attended to in time.

PIEDMONT SPRINGS. Stokes County, N. C.

THESE well-known and popular Springs, situated in the county of Stokes, 2 miles from Danbury, the county site, claim a share of the attention of the health and pleasure-seeking public of North Western Carolina, and the State. The Proprietor has effected great improvement in the arrangements of his House, and is now able to accommodate 300 boarders with case and comfort. The Scenery of this section is regarded as unsurpassed in beauty by any to be found in the State. Though not so wild, broken and romantic as that of the extreme West, there is a quiet loveliness about it, charming to the beholder. The Springs gush immediately from the base of one of the noble hills composing the Sauratown Mountains; the most prominent and attractive peak of which is Moore's Knob, distant 4 miles. In the vicinity of the Springs is situated, also, that beautiful natural curiosity,
