She was then told by the conductor that she must get off when she got to Shelby, which she was advised by some gentlemen to get on the train again, it being only five miles further to Salem. This she did, and when the conductor again came around and found her without any money than what was before offered, he stopped the train and put the lady off. The day was cold, and a drizzling rain had made it quite muddy, and having over half a mile to walk for shelter, the lady and the voungest child took a severe cold, which, after a sickness of over two months, resulted in the death of the latter. Suit was brought for damages, and of good Furniture, at very low prices, will please give after a protracted trial, the jury rendered a verdict for plaintiff of six hundred and fifty dollars .-

IS THE EARTH TO BE FROZEN OR DRIED UP?

Some German philosopher has demonstrated to his entire satisfaction that the excessive humidity of the last year, arises from the fact that the earth is gradually increasing its distance from the sun. and that, in the course of time, after going through the drowning process, we shall get away off on the outer circle of the universe, and become a vast globe of ice, everybody of course being frozen to death. Having got as far as we can get among Large of heart, though of very small estate, John Brown; the outsiders, we are then to come slowly back again, and everything will gradually assume the old position. It would be a poetical sight, to see the planets turned into huge snow-balls, but still more agreeable to behold the white robe of winter gradually withdrawn, and the green isles of the great ocean of space rejoicing once more in the sunbeams, and the icy fingers of the dead melting into life, as the sun wakes them with his fervid kiss. We are sure the German philosopher would not object to any resurrection but that revealed in the Scriptures, which requires the exercise of omnipotent power, and that having frozen us all to And a lout who'd rather borrow than toil, John Brown; death, he will permit us to thaw out at some future age, and to sun ourselves awhile, after the winter of our discontent.

But whilst the scientific German has clearly proved that the earth originally flew off from the sun and is to be turned into one vast iceberg, it has been shown by a paper read before the British Association, that the earth is approaching a water- And survey the world around me and above, John Brown; less condition, in which it will be impossible for man to continue an inhabitant. The dry river channels and waterless lakes, found in many lands once fertile, but now barren, has led to the conclusion, on the part of some geologists, that there is a gradual modifying of the aqueous vapors, and onsequently of water, on the face of this terrestrial globe. If these men of science had witnessed some of the late freshets in this neighborhood, they might have concluded that all the pools, rivers, lakes and cataracts, which had been drying up since the creation, have been coming down and making up for lost time. Our modern philosophers are sometimes the greatest of foels. Unlike the chief of astronomers, who, after his sublime discoveries, can tell us more of its end than its Final Judge.

JOHN BROWN; OR, A PLAIN MAN'S PHILOSOPHY.

BY CHARLES MACKAY. I've a crown I can spend, I've a wife and a friend, And a troop of little children at my knee, John Brown; I've a cottage of my own,

And a garden with a view of the sea, John Brown; I can sit at my door, By a shady sycamore,

With the ivy overgrown,

So come and drain a glass, In my arbor as you pass, And I'll tell you what I love, and what I hate, J. Brown;

I love the song of birds, And the children's early words, And a loving woman's voice, low and sweet, John Brown; And I hate a false pretense,

And the want of common sense, And arrogance and fawning and deceit, John Brown; I love the meadow flowers,

And the briar in the bowers And I love an open face without guile, John Brown; And I hate a selfish knave,

And a proud contented slave, I love a simple song That makes emotions strong,

And the word of hope that raises him who faints, John And I hate the constant whine [Brownt Of the foolish who repine, And turn their good to evil by complaints, John Brown;

But even when I hate. If I seek my garden gate, The hatred flies my mind, And I sigh for human kind,

And excuse the faults of those I cannot love, John Brown. So if you like my ways, And the comfort of my days, I can tell you how I live so unvexed, John Brown;

I never scorn my health, Nor sell my soul for wealth, Nor destroy one day the pleasures of the next, J. Brown; I've parted with my pride, And I take the sunny side

For I've found it worse than folly to be sad, John Brown; I keep a conscience clear, I've a hundred pounds a year, And I manage to exist, and to be glad, John Brown.

THE GENTILES IN UTAH .- The growth of the hollow of their hands, they are better acquainted are several Gentiles elected to the Utah Legislature, with the origin of the world than its Creator, and and a Gentile newspaper is published in the valley.
