POVERTY NOT A CURSE.

Poverty is one of the best tests of human quality in existence. A triumph over it is like graduating with honor from West Point. It demonstrates stuff and stamina. It is a certificate of worthy labor creditably performed. A young man who cannot stand the test is not worth anything. He can never rise above a drudge or a pauper. A young man who cannot feel his will harden as the yoke of poverty presses upon him, and his pluck rise with every difficulty proverty throws in his way, may as well retire into some corner and hide himself. Poverty saves a thousand times more men than it ruins; for it only ruins those who are not particularly worth saving, while it saves multitudes of those whom wealth would have ruined. If any young man who reads this is so unfortunate as to be rich, I give him my pity. I pity you, my rich young friend, because you are in danger You lack one stimulous to effort and excellence which your poor companion possesses. You will be very apt, if you have a soft spot in your head, to think yourself above him, and that sort of thing makes you mean, and injuries you. With full pockets and full stomach, and fine linen and broadcloth on your back, your heart and soul plethoric, Have you been cut short in the textbook? Remember that education, like some other thing, does not consist in the multitude of things a man possesses. What can you do? That is the question made accordingly. that settles the business for you. Do you know Witness, A. C. W your business? Do you know men and how to deal with them? Has your mind, by any means whatsoever, received that discipline which gives to its action power and facility? If so, then you are more of a man and a thousand times better educated than the fellow who graduates from college with his brains full of stuff that he cannot apply to practical business of life-stuff, the acquisition of which has been in no sense a disciplinary process as far as he is concerned. There are very few men in this world less than thirty years of age, and unmarried, who can afford to be rich. One of the greatest benefits to be reaped from great financial disasters is the saving of a large crop of young

FRIENDS-MALIGNITY .- How common is a certain species of malignity, even among those who profess to be one's friends. There are those who would really regret to hear that you had done anything to seriously damage your character for work will be shown to those wishing it. honesty, yet with what seeming satisfaction do they repeat some silly story about your trying to cheat some body out of a half dollar, when in their heart they really believe the story false, or at least greatly exaggerated. You have various friends, who do not seem to object to showing you up in a tween the Mine and my house 5 miles from town on ridiculous light, who would resent the charge of your being guilty of ridiculous conduct on a grave matter. They will quietly retail a report concerning some little peccadillo, while they would rebuke | C. & S. C. Railroad stock. All persons are forewarned an allegation that you could be guilty of the same against trading for the notes. Any information conthing on a large scale. This is the character of the malignity of some friends; and may be termed Petty Malignity.

There are others, who also profess to be your friends, that are always ready to listen to and quick to repeat some tale of calumny against your fair fame. They will tell it, too, accompanied by an expression of the hope that it is not so-indeed, that they do not believe that it is so; -but then they had it from very good authority, and they have their fears. But they will not tell who is their author. It was told to them in confidence, and a pledge was exacted that his name should never be known in it. They feel no compunction of cotscience to see their friend stabbed in the back and in the dark; but their conscience will not let them betray the confidence of the assassin, by telling who he is. This kind may be very justly denominated Devilish Malignity .- Spirit of the Age.
