A man in his carriage was riding along, A gaily dressed wife by his side; In satin and laces, she looked like a queen, And he like a king in his pride.

A wood-sawyer stood on the street as they passed, The carriage and couple he eyed, And said, as he worked with his saw on a log, "I wish I was rich and could ride."

The man in the carriage remarked to his wife—
"One thing I would give if I could would give all my wealth for the strength and

Of the man who saweth the wood."

A pretty young maid, with a bundle of work, Whose face as the morning was fair, Went tripping along with a smile of delight, While humming a love-breathing air.

Those satins and laces were mine." The lady looked out on the maid with her work, So fair in her calico dress, And said, "I'd relinquish possession and wealth

Her beauty and youth to possess." Thus in this world, whatever our lot, Our minds and our time we employ, In lounging and sighing for what we have not, Ungrateful for what we enjoy.

We welcome the pleasure for which we have sighed, The heart has a void in it still. Growing deeper and wider the longer we live, That nothing but heaven can fill.

The trick is in the most perfect accordance with that which enticed into the dark lantern lodges so many unsuspecting democrats in 1854, and will result as unfortunately to its unscrupulous contrivers!

What Southern Democrat, except ambitious, would-be political leaders, so fallen as to suffer himself to be transferred through squatter sovereigntyism to a party which, whatever name it assumed from time to time in order to achieve victory, is still the old Federal party-without its virtues, however-which was so severely scotched by the Jeffersonians in 1800. Every Southern vote given to Douglas will be in effect given to Bell.—Richmond Enquirer.

"SEE How THEY RUN."-During our late canvass Mr Pool and his press demagogued it most terribly upon the non-slaveowners of the South, and upon their patriotism. Now, however, this same Know-Nothing press impugn the patriotism of John C. Breckinridge, and question his fidelity to his section, because, as they allege, he owns no negroes! TENNESSEE CERTAIN FOR BRECKINRIDGE. - A gentleman of this city, says the Montgomery Advertiser, wrote to a reliable and well informed citizen of Tennessee, for such facts as would be reliable to bet on in relation to the vote of that State, and has received in return the following statement, which we take from a private letter, dated Colum-

Harris, of the Western Division of the State, and I have been to every county but five in this, the Middle Division. We have compared notes, and the unanimous and confident opinion is that Breckinridge and Lane are bound to carry this State by 8,000. Here we take all the bets we can get on this State-but we have not been able to invest much. THE END OF THE FUSION.

"The National Democracy of the State of New York" have put out a proclamation detailing their efforts to obtain a fusion with the Douglasites, and the failure of their efforts. The fusion, it seems, was urged by the President of the United States and the members of his Cabinet. They say in their proclamation: Acting in pursuance to the urgent personal advice of the President of the United States, the members of his Cabinet, and the Breekinridge and Lane National Executive Committee, and impelled by what appeared to be the desire of a large num-ber of our constituents, we proposed, if it could be effected honorably, to combine with the Douglas party and its allies upon a single ticket for Presi-

If there is anything in the world that a young man should be more thankful for than another, it is the poverty which necessitates his starting in life under very great disadvantages. Poverty is one of the best tests of human quality in existence. A triumph over it is like graduating with honor from West Point. It demonstrates stuff and stamina. It is a certificate of worthy labor creditably performed. A young man who cannot stand the test is not worth anything. He can never rise above the drudge or a pauper. A young man who cannot feel his will harden as the yoke of well retire into some corner and hide himself .-Poverty saves a thousand times more men than it FROST .- Frost was seen in this vicinity on Sat- ruins; for it only ruins those who are not particuurday morning. This is the third of the season, larly worth saving, while it saves multitudes of those whom wealth would have ruined. If any young man who reads this is so unfortunate as to be rich, I give him my pity. I pity you, my rich young friend, because you are in danger. You lack one stimulous to effort and excellence, which your poor companion possesses. You will be very apt, if you have a soft spot in your head, to think yourself above him, and that sort of thing makes you mean, and injures you. With full pockets and full stomach, and fine linen, and broadcloth on your back, your heart and soul plethoric, in the race of life, you will find yourself surpassed by all the poorer boys around you before you know it. No, my boy, if you are poor thank God and take courage; for he intends to give you a chance to make something of yourself. If you had plenty money, ten chances to one it would spoil you for useful purposes. Do you lack education? Have you been cut short in the text book? Remember that education, like some other things, does not consist in the multitude of things a man possesses. What can you do? That is the question that settles the business for you. Do you know your business? Do you know men and how to deal with them? Has your mind, by any means whatever, received that discipline which gives to it its action. power and facility? If so, then you are educated.

IMPORTANT FOR "JOLLY FELLOWS."-There is a tradition that brandy was at one time manufactured from the vine; but the grapes of France having of late years followed the example of the potato, and taken to moulding and rotting, many of the French brandy makers have adoped bituminous coal as a substitute. They distill a potent spirit from this substance, which is thus made available for the production of two kinds of fire-one for the comfort of man, and the other for the destruction of his health, his senses, and his soul. Large quantities of alcohol distilled from coal, and "doctored with certain chemicals to give it the "Cognac flavor," are now expotred from France to England, Coa GALLANT. Gov. Moore, of Alabama, has given brandy is the latest adaption of the good gifts of which might well make the "best fellow" shudder.
