

THREE THINGS THAT A WOMAN CANNOT DO.

There are three things that a woman cannot do. First, she cannot sharpen a lead pencil. Give her one and see. Mark how judiciously she hacks away every particle of wood from around the lead, leaving an unsupported spike of the latter, which breaks immediately on your trying to use it. You can almost forgive the male creature his compassionate attempt, as chucking her under the chin, he snatches it from her awkward paw, and rounds and tapers it in the most ravenous manner for durable use. I wish to hear no more on that point, because when I once make up my mind, "all King's men" can't change it.

Well then, secondly, a woman cannot do up a bundle. She takes a whole newspaper to wrap up a row of pins, and a coil of rope to tie it, and will come undone at that. When I go shopping—what is sometimes my hard lot to do—I look on with the fascinating gaze of a bird in the neighborhood of a magnetic serpent to watch clerks do up bundles. How the paper falls just in the right crease; how deftly they turn it over and tuck it under, and tie it up, and then throw it down on the counter as if he had done the most common place thing in the world, instead of a deed which might—and faith, does—ask the ingenuity of "angels." It is perfectly astonishing.

Thirdly, I may allude to the fact that a woman cannot carry an umbrella; or rather to the very peculiar manner in which they perform that duty; but I won't. I seem to turn traitor to a sex who, whatever may be their faults, are always loyal to each other. So I shall say, as I might otherwise have said, that when they unfurl the parachute alluded to, they put it tight down over their noses—take the middle of the sidewalk, raking off men's hats and women's bonnets as they go, and walking right into the breakfast of some unfortunate wight with that disregard of the consequent gasp which is understood must be felt as the offender cocks up one corner of the parachute and looks defiantly at the victim who has the effrontery to come in to the world and hazard the whalebone and handle of her "umbrella!" No, I won't speak of anything of the kind; besides, has not a celebrated writer remarked that, when "dear woman is cross, it is only when she is sick." Let us hope he is right. We all know that it is not the cause of a man's crossness. Give him his favorite dish, and you may dine off him afterwards—if you want to.

HOW OLD REED WAS CONVERTED.

The New York correspondent of a Western paper tells the following story for the benefit of some hard cases:

He says he once knew a man by the name of Reed, commonly known as "Old Reed." Reed was quite notorious in his way, and his religious belief was that after death he should reappear in the form of an animal, and thought he would be a horse. Now, "Old Reed" was a hard man, and was not in the habit of treating his family as a religious man should. One day after his wife had suffered his abuse as long as humanity could endure, she convulsed to give him a brief talking—to touch him upon his religious belief. So, resolutely seating herself by his side, and looking him full in the face, with a tear-drop glistened in her eye—she was serious and thought perhaps he was correct in his faith—she commenced:

"Reed, I wish to have a serious talk with you. I have something to tell you, and you must hear it. I have a duty to perform, and I shall do it, and then if you are miserable hereafter, it will be my fault. You believe, Reed, that when you die you will turn into some animal, and you think you will be a horse. Now, if you keep on in your present course, and continue to neglect and abuse your family, squandering your money for drink and at the gaming table, when you die you will turn into some old twelve-shilling horse, and some dirty clam-peddler will get you, and you will be hard-worked and half-starved, and I shall see you every day before a rickety old wagon filled with clams. Such will be your eternity! But now, Reed, it needn't be so; your future may be a bright, a happy one. If you will reform and turn right about and become a better man, be kind and affectionate to your family, and treat them as a Christian should, why, when you die, you will turn into a five hundred-dollar horse, and some West-End buck will get hold of you, and give you a bushel of oats a day, rub you down with pea-stear, and have you docked and your tail set up!" He says "Old Reed" was straight-away converted—was reformed—and is patiently waiting for death to introduce him to his coveted horse-heaven, where are only "shell roads" and "two-forty" nags with "pricked" tails.

AN HEROIC MOTHER.

A little two-and-a-half-year old daughter of a Mrs. Metcalf, of St. Louis, lately fell through a loose plank into a deep well, when the mother instantly jumped in and held the child at arms length above the water for nearly an hour, calling vainly for help. At last, taking off her shoes, with the assistance of a loose board the heroic mother managed to crawl near enough to the top to throw her child beyond the edge of the well, and then extricated herself. The first words the child spoke after the mother had caught it in the well were, "mother don't cry we will get it out yet."

WOMAN.

Great, indeed is the task assigned to woman! Who can estimate its dignity? Not to make laws, not to lead armies, not to govern empires but to form those by whom laws are made, armies led and empires governed, to guard against the slightest taint of bodily infirmity the frail yet spotless creature, whose moral no less than physical being, must be derived from her; to inspire those principles to inculcate those sentiments which generations yet unborn and nations yet uncivilized will learn to bless; to soften firmness into mercy, and chasten honor into refinement; to exalt generosity into virtue by a soothing care, ally the anguish of the body, and the far worse anguish of the mind, by her tenderness to disarm passion, by her purity to triumph over sense; to cheer the scholar sinking under his toil, to console the statesman for the ingratitude of a mistaken people, to compensate for friends that are perfidious—for happiness that has passed away. Such is her vocation. The couch of the tortured suffers, the prison of the deserted friend, the cross of the rejected Saviour—these are theatres on which her greatest triumphs have been achieved. Such is her destiny; to visit the forsaken, to attend the neglected when counselors betray, when justice prosecutes, when brethren and disciples flee to remain unshaken and unchanged, and to exhibit in this lower world a type of that love, pure, constant and ineffable, which in another we are taught to believe the test of virtue.—Blackwood's Magazine.

STEREOTYPING WOODEN FURNITURE.

It is said that an artist in Paris has made a discovery which will effect a complete revolution in the manufacture of cabinet work. He has found a means of rendering any description of wood so soft that it will receive an impression either of the most varied sculpture or the most delicate chasing. The wood is then hardened to the consistency of metal, while the impressions remain perfect. The artist has already completed some splendid sculptured articles, such as picture-frames, inkstands, chests and liquor stands. With the introduction of this new art, it is expected that articles of household furniture will be considerably reduced in price.

THE BATTLE OF LIFE.

The battle of life, in by far the greater number of cases, must necessarily be fought up hill; and to win it without a struggle were perhaps to win it without honor. If there were no difficulties, there would be no success; if there were nothing to struggle for, there would be nothing to be achieved. Difficulties may intimidate the weak, but they act only as a stimulus to men of pluck and resolution. All impediments of life, indeed, serves to prove that the impediments thrown in the way of human advancement may for the most part be overcome by steady good conduct, honest zeal, activity, perseverance, and above all by a determined resolution to surmount difficulties and stand up manfully against misfortune.
