ECONOMY IN THE USE OF SALT.

The high price and scarcity of salt, induces us to offer a few suggestions showing how a large quantity of fresh meat may be cured and preserved with a small quantity of salt.

On the pampas of Brazil, remote from the sea, fat cattle are slaughtered in large numbers, and ture, because that chemical decomposition in the particles of the flesh which evolves the gases tree into fence rails which are laid on the ground air. A part of the same tree is sawed into plank and perhaps renders its sale more sure and rapid. coward, we fled. keep no longer than beef-steak in a similar condiwhich is as sweet and good as any dried beef can a wood fire—a distinction worth remembering. Green wood contains some forty per cent of its when burning; and even dry wood has over forty per cent of the elements of water, oxygen and hydrogen, that forms vapour when such wood is wood, which in burning forms a very drying heat. Most of our readers are familiar with the usual process of barbecuing large pieces of meat over poals. If such meat were too high above the coal fire to roast, it would soon dry; when dry a very little smoking and salt will keep it indefinitely. Like cured bacon, it should be packed in tight casks and kept in a dry room.

After one kills his hogs, if he is short of salt. let him get the water out of the mear by drying it over burning coals as soon as possible, first rubbing it in a little salt. Shade trees around a meat house are injurious by creating dampness. Dry meat with a coal fire after it is smoked. You may dislike to have meat so dry as is suggested, but your own observation will tell you that the dryest | With many other articles usually kept in a store. hams generally keep the best. Certainly, sweet dry bacon is far better than moist tainted bacon; six months credit will be given, the purchaser giving their ample means would seem imperatively to demand. and our aim is simply to show how meat may be good and approved security.

WM. TIDDY, Jr, Adm'r. has rendered the latter very scarce and expensive.

SUDDEN DEATHS .- Dr. Hall, in his Journal of Health, says that very few of the sudden deaths do really arise from that cause. To ascertain the real origin of sudden deaths, the Doctor says, the experiment has been tried in Europe and reported to a scientific congress held at Stransborough. Sixty-six cases of sudden deaths were made, the subjects of a thorough post most con examination. In these cases only two were it and who died from disease of the heart. Nine out of the sixty-six were so full of blood they could not work, there not being room enough for a sufficient quantity of air to enter to support life. The Doctor goes on to enumerate the causes that may produce congestion of lungs. They are : cold feet; tight shoes; tight clothing; costiveness; sitting still until chilled through after being warmed by labor or a rapid walk; going too suddenly from a close heated room into the cold air, especially after speaking; and sudden depressing news operating on the blood. These causes of sudden death being known, an avoidance of them may serve to lengthen out val- away. May go to Charleston or Washington city, it is uable lives which would otherwise be lost under the verdict of heart complaint. That disease is supposed to be incurable, and hence men may not take the pains they would to avoid sudden death if they knew it lay in their power.

NECROMANCY .- In New York they have got a new excitement-a juggler that far outjuggles all his predecessors. Among Hermann's tricks is the following: A hat furnished from the audience is found to contain a hundred or more tin cups, bunches of flowers, almost an endless amount of feathers, seeds in handfulls-anything he chooses to find, in fact. Then the hat is set on fire, a piece burned from the crown; and in this condition it is returned to the lender. He refuses to receive any such tip; it was his, he acknowledges, he knows the marks on it, but he wants it intact The hat is torn by Mr Hermann into fifty shreds, rolled in a paper, and placed in the hands of one of the audience, who holds it above his head while Hermann fires a pistol at it. The hat is sen floating above in the dome, high over head, the Carolina. contents of the bundlo changes to a crying baby, and the hat falls sound and clean
