WORTHY OF IMITATION .- The State Convention of South Carolina at its late session, adopted a resolution providing for the public registration by a proper officer of all the names of the officers and soldiers of that State who have or shall fall during the war in the service of their country, whether killed in battle or dying from wounds or disease contracted in the service, with the company or corps to which they belonged, &c. We hope our next Legislature will cause such a record or memorial to be made of all the dead of this State, with a proper notice of any remarkable instances of daring, &c .- Raleigh Standard.

MOLASSES AND SUGAR .- The Selma (Ala.) Reporter says that the Mississippi Valley is full of molasses and sugar, and these articles are now selling at very nearly the old prices at Vicksburg. Indeed, says the Reporter, we are informed that the army writes as follows about the necessities good sugar can be bought there at ten cents per pound, and molasses at twenty-five cents per gallon. Gen. Price ordered up Gens. Gregg's and enemy and press them down on Gen. Murey's division, he being on the right Before the arrival of their brigades, Gen. Price ascertained that the enemy were lying in the road sheltered

They were firing but one gun, and that on our right. The gallant and lamented Gen. Little suggested that as they seemed to have but one gun in position, if the line would move forward, the battle could soon be won. The order was given. Our men immerged from the underbrush in line. They were then met by as terrific a fire from masked batteries and concealed musketry as was ever encountered. But the invincible 30 Louisiana, 3d Tennessee, and 37th Alabama stood like statuary.

When the order to charge was given, they rushed headlong through the sheet of fire and lead, drove the enemy from their position and guns, Whitfield's Legion pressing on the right, the enemy would resist and fall back until they were driven half a mile, losing nine guns. It was now dark, Gens. Green and Gregg arrived, but too late to enter the fight.

One hour of daylight, and the entire Yankce division would have been captured. We held the field all night, brought in the wounded, and evacuated the place in accordance with the order issued in the morning. Our loss in killed, wounded and missing, 482; that of the enemy over 800. Gen. Price brought off his entire train and captured stores.

the thunderstroke of the battle of Manassas opened the eyes of the North for the first time to he magnitude of the enterprise it had undertaken. Gen. Scott's magnificent army running like hounds from a force of not half their numbers; the trawney laborers of Europe and the athletic firemen of New York, who filled its ranks, seattered like chaff by the "delicate and effeminate" children of the sun; regulars whipped by volunteers, and nearly every cannon they had taken from them at the point of the bayonet-these were the astonishing disclosures of that Manassas which taught the North the important lesson, "Never underrate an enemy."

The same wise maxim is worthy the consideradanger that it should overlook it, so far as the enemy's numbers and material of war are concerned. There has been a disposition, however, common enough among all combatants, to underrate the courage of their antagonists. The progress of the war thus far has shown no ground ing for such an imputation, nor, if it were just, could we claim much glory by our victories over such a foc. We may safely assume the superior military spirit and aptitude of the South, without denying in the progress of the war they have been fast to the North that quality of physical courage which is common to all races of mankind, but which in their case is paralyzed by the incubus of a bad cause and an uncasy conscience. It is wise not one Union woman. [Laughter.] This eleto give them credit alike for their strength and ferocity, that we may summon all the energies necessary for success over such an adversary .---Richmond Dispatch.

"STONEWALL" ADMINISTERS THE SACRAMENT. -On the morning of a recent battle near Harper's Ferry, after a sermon by one of his Chaplains, Stonewall Jackson, who, by the way, is an Elder in the Presbyterian church, administered the sacrament to the church members in his army. He invited all christians to participate in this ceremony. A Baptist, the straightest of his sect, thoroughly imbued with the idea of close communion, was seen to hesitate, but the occasion, and the man who presided, overcame his scruples, and thus it has happened that the prospect of a fight and the eloquence of Jackson, made a Baptist forget that baptism is the door into the church. In all Jackson's army an oath is rarely uttered. A religious enthusiasm pervades it which makes every man a hero. Conscious of the justice of our cause and imbued with the strongest convictions of patriotism, his men are irresistable. In this incident, we have an explanation of General Jackson's invincibility, and we are thus enabled to understand why his men are all heroes, and why they endure without a murmur the severest hardships to which any troops have been

UNIONISM IN THE SOUTH

Edward Everett. who deals in fancies, and nakes speeches according to rhetoric instead of fact, in a late speech in Massachusetts said :

"There are many, very many, Union men in Southern States held down by the strong hand of arbitrary power, who call on you, freemen of Massachusetts, to come to their aid. In the name of that Union which they and you equally cherish, I appeal to you. Go to their assistance-relieve tion of the South, although there has been little They will welcome your coming--they will rethem from bondage to a government they detest. ceive you with open arms - they will hail you as deliverers.'

> Fremont who has since spoken in the same State refutes this patent falsehood in the follow-

"Nor do I share in the belief that there is a large body of Unionists in the South. In my individual experience I have found them few, and decreasing.

"In the whole valley of Virginia I do not remember to have met a Union man, and certainly ment of their strength must not be underrated. It serves to show how thoroughly the feelings of the South are in this contest, and leaves no doubt as to what will be the training of the growing generation. Not only were the people not desirous of returning into the Union, but they did not entertain the idea in any shape-their only conjectures were as to the manner in which the separation would be finally effected. I do not think that our Northern people realize how many years the South has been preparing for this struggle.

"We are at war with a people who have been ducated to believe that they are contending for their liberties; they are carrying on this contest with unity and determination; their armies have acquired the solidity and consistency of regular troops. To reduce such a rebellion will require the utmost exertion of our force, and the immediate use of every advantage which naturally falls to our share in the contest. Their determination to obtain success is unconquerable-to subdue them, their designs must be made impossible, and the unity which gives them strength must be ours ilso," [Cheers.]

For once, Fremont tells the truth.
