North Carolina News.
N. C. Synod.—Rev. Archibald Currie, Moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina has authorized Mr. Doll, the stated Clerk, to change the time of holding the next Synod, at Wilmington, to Wednesday the 18th. of November 1868, at 7 o'clock, P. M., instead of the time previously appointed.
Dr. Jones, the Superintendent of the Mint at Charlotte, thinks the gold mines of North Carolina are now yielding about $500,- 000 annually. Gold is found in twenty-five Counties of the State, besides other valuable minerals.
The excellent mills of the Rock Island Manufacturing Company at Charlotte are turning out 1000 yards per day of the very best jeans and cassimeres, &c., used in the country.
The Baptist State Convention will assemble at Hillsboro, on the 23th of the present month.

The Democratic Executive Committee of the State of Georgia, have issued the following address to the people of that State:
"It having been represented by Republican speakers in the present canvass, that the Southern people favor the re-establishment of slavery in the respective States, depriving them of their rights and suffrage, for the purpose of meeting this allegation and giving it a positive denial: Resolved, By the Central Committee that the Democratic party of Georgia, representing the people of the State, affirm that the charge is unequivocally false, and for evidence that they do not desire to re-establish slavery and could not effect it if they would, refer to the fact that this State has assented to, and ratified amendments to the Constitution of the United States, forever abolishing slavery and involuntary servitude, except for crime whereof the party shall be legally convicted.
Resolved, That we reiterate the positions taken by this Committee in the State address and by the report of the Committee on the State of the Republic, adopted by the House of Representatives in the Legislature of this State, on the 26th ultimo, and do also endorse the address of Gen.
Robert E. Lee, and others in response to a letter of General Rosecranz.
Resolved, That we submit to the present status of the colored race among us, and will protect them to the extent of our power in the right of suffrage secured to them by the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution and laws of this State."

Convention of Women in Germany.
On the 17th of this month the women of Germany held a conference at Stuttgart, but not for the purpose of discussing the question of suffrage. The points they intended to discuss they have brought together in the following programme:
1. To find out the best ways and means to teach young mothers how best to regulate the physical education of their children.
2. The establishment of small museums of literature, art and industry. These museums would not merely contain the best works of literature and art especially adapted for women, but they would principally be a kind of schools or academies. Places for meetings, lectures and the like, in which topics, such as the education of children and matters of domestic interest should be treated by competent women and men, if these can be prevailed upon to assist in the movement. There would also be Sunday schools for women and girls of all classes, savings banks, supply associations, offices for those that wanted places, &c.
3. The commencement of a reform in dress, chiefly directed against the vagaries of fashion, and the best ways and means to carry out this reform effectually. As a basis for this reform the following points have been accepted:
a. That nothing be declared "old fashioned" which has once found itself useful and appropriate and becoming.
b. That nothing new be adopted unless it has proved itself to be both to the purpose and answering the demands of good taste.
c. That all garments and objects of toilet that are hurtful to health be put away.
d. To inquire whether a large saving might not be effected in things of dress, so that the expenses might be made more appropriate to the income.
4. The transformation of benevolent female institutions into "self-supporting and earning female institutions."
A workingman was appealed to by a Radical, who was trying to persuade him it was for his personal interests to vote with that party.
Laying down his hammer, and looking his adviser in the face, he remarked: "Under a Democratic administration, I could buy a barrel of flour for three days' work—and now it takes five! If you can show it is for my interests to do that, I am willing to vote with you." The Radical gave up the job.

WHO WILL BE ELECTED?

A Touching Story.
The following affecting narrative purports to have been given by a father to his son, as a warning derived from his own bitter experience of the sin of resisting a mother's love and counsel.
What agony was on my mother's face when all that she said and suffered failed to move me!
She rose to go home, and I followed at a distance. She spoke to me no more till she reached her own door.
"It is school-time now," she said. "Go, my son, and once more let me beseech you to think upon what I have said."
"I shan't go to school," said I.
She looked astonished at my boldness, but replied firmly.
"Certainly you will, Alfred! I command you."
"I will not!" said I; "you can't get me up stairs."
"One of the two things you must do, Alfred —either to go to school this minute, or I will lock you up in your room, and keep you there until you promise implicit obedience to my wishes in the future."
"I dare you to do it," said I; "you can't get me up stairs."
"Alfred, choose now," said my mother, who laid her hand upon my arm. She trembled violently, and was deadly pale.
"If you touch me, I will kick you," said I, in a fearful rage. God knows I knew not what I said!
"Will you go, Alfred?"
"No!" I replied, but I quailed beneath her eye.
"Then follow me," she said, as she grasped my arm firmly I raised my foot—"O, my son, hear me—I raised my foot and kicked her—my suited mother! How my head reels, as the torment of memory rushes over me! I kicked my mother—a feeble woman—my mother! She staggered back a few steps and leaned against the wall. She did not look at me. I saw her heart beat against her breast. "O, Heavenly Father!" she cried, "forgive him—he knows not what he does!" The gardener just then passed the door, and seeing my mother was pale and almost unable to support herself, she beckoned him to come in.
"Take this boy up stairs and lock him in his own room," said she, and turned off from me.
It was a look of agony, mingled with intensest love—it was the last unutterable pang from a heart that was broken.
In a moment I found myself a prisoner in my own room. I thought for a moment I would fling myself from the open window, but I felt afraid to die. I was not penitent. At times my heart was subdued, but my stubbornness rose in an instant, and bade me not yield yet. The pale face of my mother haunted me. I flung myself on my bed and fell asleep. Just at twilight I heard a footstep approach my door. It was my sister.
"What shall I tell mother for you?" she said.
"Nothing," I replied.
"O, Alfred, for my sake and for all our sakes, say that you are sorry. Let me tell mother you are sorry. She longs to forgive you." I would not answer. I heard her footsteps slowly retreating, and again I flung myself on the bed to pass a wretched and fearful night.
Another footstep, slower and feebler than my sister's, disturbed me.
"Alfred, my son, shall I come in?" she asked.
I cannot tell what influence, operating at that moment, made me speak adversely to my feelings.
The gentle voice of my mother, that thrilled through me, melted the ice from my heart, and I longed to throw myself upon her neck; but I did not. My words gave the lie to my heart, and when I said I was not sorry. I heard her withdraw. I heard her groan. I longed to call her back, but I did not.
I was awakened from an uneasy slumber by hearing my name called loudly, and my sister stood by my bedside.
"Get up, Alfred. Don't wait a minute. Get up and come with me. Mother is dying!" I thought I was yet dreaming, but I got up mechanically and followed my sister. On the bed, pale as marble lay my mother. She had not undressed. She had thrown herself upon the bed to rest; and rising to go again to me, she was seized with a palpitation of the heart, and borne to her room.
I cannot tell you my agony as I looked upon her—my remorse was tenfold more bitter from the thought that she never would know it. I believed myself to be her murderer. I fell on the bed beside her. I could not weep. My heart burned within my bosom—my brain was on fire. My sister threw her arms around me and wept in silence. Suddenly we saw a motion of mother's hand; her eyes unclosed. She had recovered consciousness, but not her speech.
She looked at me and moved her lips. I could not understand her words.
"Mother! mother!" I shrieked, "say only say that you will forgive me." She could not say it with her lips, but her hand pressed mine. She smiled upon me, and lifted her thin white hands; she clasped my own within them, and cast her eyes upward. She moved her lips in prayer, and thus she died. I remained still kneeling beside that dear form till my gentle sister removed me. The joy of youth had left me forever.
Boys and girls who spurn a mother's control, who are ashamed to own they are wrong, who think it manly to resist her authority, or yield to her influence, beware! Lay not up for yourselves bitter memories for your future years.

"What," asked a renowned stump orator, who was running for the office of constable, "what, my enlightened friends of the 66th Militia District, was Andrew Jackson in the battle of New Orleans? War he thar? By gum, he war. He war a riding up and down upon a boottail Arabian, a wavin' of a crooked saber, and up to his armpits in blood and mud, and a givin' the British thauder; the genius of his country a holdin' of her arsis over her head, cotton bales of pavenearing in front to protect him from danger, and the American Eagle, with the stars and stripes in its beak, a sorin' aloft in the blue empyrean, singin' 'Hail Columbia!'"

A man in Marseilles noticed that a fly, which tasted the soup prepared by his wife for him, tumbled dead on the table. He changed plates with his wife, and the woman shortly after the Democratic Executive Committee of the State of Georgia, have issued the following address to the people of that State:

"It having been represented by Republican speakers in the present canvass, that the Southern people favor the re-establishment of slavery in the respective States, depriving them of their rights and suffrage, for the purpose of meeting this allegation and giving it a positive denial:

Resolved, By the Central Committee that the Democratic party of Georgia, representing the people of the State, affirm that the charge is unequivocally false, and for evidence that they do not desire to re-establish slavery and could not effect it if they would, refer to the fact that this State has assented to, and ratified amendments to the Constitution of the United States, forever abolishing slavery and involuntary servitude, except for crime whereof the party shall be legally convicted.

Resolved, That we reiterate the positions taken by this Committee in the State address and by the report of the Committee on the State of the Republic, adopted by the House of Representatives in the Legislature of this State, on the 26th ultimo, and do also endorse the address of Gen. Robert E. Lee, and others in response to a letter of General Rosecranz.

Resolved, That we submit to the present status of the colored race among us, and will protect them to the extent of our power in the right of suffrage secured to them by the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution and laws of this State."
