James Scott, living two miles southeast of Milan, Tenn., was arrested last week, charged by some negroes with Ku-Kluxing them and taking their guns. On the trial, known Scott for five years, and that he was at their house at the time of the affair, they were unable to identify him. When Scott's counsel pointed out a man in the crowd, and asked if that was he they readily answered, yes. But, fortunately for the accused, it was another party. The incident shows what negro testimony is worth in "Ku-Klux" cases.

A New Free Love Community.
Mr. Orrin Shipman, a wealthy gentleman residing in Winoski, recently came across an article on free love enterprise, written by Col. John Wilcox, of Wisconsin, and the ideas it contained made such a favorable impression on Mr. Shipman's mind, that he wrote Col. Wilcox, offering to donate to a company of the right kind, his property on Valcour Island, and his home, farm, and all its improvements. This proposition was favorably received by Wilcox and others, and resulted in the examination of the property by a committee, and the publication of the document by them, setting forth the plan of a proposed community. The community is to be an industrial organization for people who wish to come together and produce subsistence in common, who will be expected to work for the common good, and whose sentiments are of what the proposers term the progressive, radical order.
Absolute social freedom, and that sovereign right of each individual to control his or her destiny in the sexual relation, will be fully recognized. The community is to be divided into eight groups, and each to be arranged according to the law of associated attraction. There is to be a presiding officer of each sex elected annually, and harmony, peace and happiness are to be everywhere promoted. The property donated by Mr. Shipman consists of eight hundred acres on Valcour Island and his homestead farm in Winoski, containing two hundred and ten acres, altogether valued at $100,000.
The place is finely located in the loveliest section of Vermont, and overlooks lake Champlain. Already twenty persons have arrived, and numerous letters from other parties have been received asking admission. The men are described as being both intelligent and industrious, and the women bright and handsome.

True as Gospel.
Gov. Hendricks of Indiana on Southern Troubles.
In his speech at Indianapolis, Gov. Hendricks said:
"My country, we must look squarely and honestly at this question of the strife between the two races. During the war, when the Southern men were off in the field, there were no insurrections. The colored people preserved the peace at home. After the close of the war there was harmony between the races until your unfortunate policy of reconstruction was started. In that you undertook to base the machinery of society upon one element, and to exclude intelligence. You stripped the white man of political privileges, and clothed the negro with political power. The races had been harmonious, but at once and for a purpose you placed them in hostile attitude.
You left many of the hangers-on of the fight in the South—men who went not to fight but to plunder. They were your emissaries; they organized the negroes into a political party. In every neighborhood they formed them into oath-bound secret societies, called loyal leagues. They were sworn to stand together. In these societies, from which the Southern white man was excluded, they were taught to regard the white men as their enemies, and that they would soon receive their property.
Thus they were arrayed in antagonism to the whites. The work was done thoroughly, and by it you held political power in many States. But those States are crushed and ruined now. We cannot, we must not go in this direction. The welfare of our country calls for a change. Men must be placed in power who will relieve society from these dangerous influences; who will stand honestly between the two races, and see to it that each is fairly and fully protected in its rights; who will see that harmony, based upon justice, is restored, so that labor shall be secure and capital shall not be afraid.
"The South is now being covered with troops. If Gen. Grant would investigate for himself, I would not fear the result. In many respects I admire him. He is a man of great ability, and does not hate people merely because they oppose his corrupt party. Two years ago I said that he were fighting the ring that controlled him more than the President himself, and now we have to fear the bad influences that surround him. He will not investigate. He will take his information from the most malignant man in the country—the Attorney General. The men who are maintaining such baleful authority in the South crawl into the office of the Attorney General, and do their work. It is a dreadful thing that our army must be used to perpetuate a rule so hurtful to the whole country, such as prevails in South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana. Whole communities and the business and production of the country are being played upon for political results. The welfare of the country calls for a change. Let the sentiment be felt everywhere, from the palace of the capitalists to the cabin of the negro, that complete and exact justice shall prevail, and then all will once more bow to public authority. It was so once; it may be so again. The party in power has failed. Let us not be led by hate to utter rain."
M. M. WOLFE. G. G. NISBET.

Population of Japan.
Japan has progressed so far in the ways of civilization as to have had a census taken recently—the first in the history of that empire. It gives a population of 33,110,827, or about 6,000,000 less than that of the United States. But of this number there are 10,000,000 persons who have occupations amounting to 12,000,000 in this country. Rather more than half of those reported as having employment are agriculturists, and but few are artisans. The people are all classified by their individual and official rank, and the rules of caste are clearly defined and rigidly adhered to. The orders of dignity are princes, nobles, higher and lower grades of the military, priests and shinto officials and the common people. The latter classification number about thirty million, the nobles and military two million, and the priesthood three hundred thousand.
The foreign trade of Japan for 1873 amounted to fifty million dollars in gold. Silk is the largest item of trade, and it is noticeable that the production of this article is steady-ly increasing in Japan, while it is as steady-ly declining in China. The industries of the empire are prosperous, and if it continues to pursue its present liberal policy with regard to foreign nations, and avoids the threatened war with China, it needs nothing more to secure the eventual development of its great elements of wealth.

Buying and Selling Cotton.
As the cotton picking season is now upon us, we deem it opportune to reproduce an act passed by the last General Assembly, "A bill to be entitled an Act to prohibit the sale of cotton, within certain hours."
The following are its provisions:
The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact, That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to buy or sell any cotton between the times of sunset and sunrise, brought or carried in a basket, hamper or sheet, or in any way where the quantity is less than is usually baled, or is not baled.
Sec. 2. That an one offending against the provisions of the Act, shall be deemed and held guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding one month."

Profitable Politeness.
The Boston Traveller, in commenting on the prevalence of rudeness, tells the following incident that happened some years ago: There was a very plainly dressed elderly lady, who was a frequent customer at the then leading dry goods store in Boston. No one in the store knew her even by name.
All the clerks but one avoided her and gave their attention to those who were better dressed and more pretentious. The exception was a young man who had a conscientious regard for system. He never left another customer to wait on the lady, but when at liberty he waited on her with as much attention as though she had been a princess. This continued a year or two, until the young man became of age. One morning the lady approached the young man, when the following conversation took place: Lady—"Young man, do you wish to go into business for yourself?"
"Yes, ma'am," he responded, "but I have neither money, credit, nor friends, nor will any one trust me."
"Well," continued the lady, "you go and select a good situation, ask what the rents and report to me," handing the young man her address. The young man went, found a capital location, a good store, but the landlord required security, which he could not give. Mindful of the lady's request, he forthwith went to her and reported.
"Well, she replied, "you go and tell Mr.
— that I will be responsible."
"He went, and the landlord or agent was surprised, but the bargain was closed. The next day the lady called to ascertain the result. The young man told her, but added, "What am I to do for goods? No one will trust me."
"You may go and see Mr. —, and Mr. —, and Mr. —, and tell them to call on me." He did so, and his store was soon stocked with the best goods in the market. There are many in the city who remember the circumstance and the man. He died many years since, and left a fortune of $300,000. So much for politeness, so much for civility, and so much for treating one's elders with deference due to age, in whatever garb they are clothed.
