

DEFERRED ARTICLES.

Incendiaries again!—Our city has been again visited by Fire, and under such circumstances that we cannot shut out from our minds, if we would, the horrid conviction that we have still among us beings, in human form, vile and reckless enough to perpetrate so diabolical a deed. Yesterday morning, about 1 o'clock, the alarm was given, and the Fire was discovered to proceed from a stable on the premises of Mr. James Conan, in the heart of the town, and in the immediate neighborhood where so many previous incendiary attempts have been made. The stable, as well as several other out-houses, were destroyed, but the Dwelling House was saved, and the progress of the flames arrested by blowing up the Kitchen. Had the wind been from the North, instead of the South, the consequences would have been most disastrous, as nothing but a miracle could have saved the entire square.—Raleigh Register.

RICHMOND, Dec. 6.

Melancholy Circumstance.—Last Wednesday was a week, Wm. Winfree, Esq., late of Chesterfield Court House, who had but very recently rented and taken possession of the Eagle Tavern, in this city, disappeared, leaving no trace behind him. His amiable and unhappy family, and many besides, prosecuted a search in all directions, but without the discovery of him or any clew to his fate. The prevalent conjecture was, that in a fit of insanity—of which however, he had given no indication—he had made away with himself, as most imagined, by drowning. Yesterday his corpse was found in the garret of the Eagle, with his throat cut from ear to ear. A coroner's inquest found a verdict of suicide, and, from all the circumstances that have come to light, there is no reason to doubt that he came to his end by his own hand.—Whig.

The Eclipse.—The calculation of astronomers was verified yesterday, by the occurrence of a total eclipse of the sun. The obscuration of the great luminary became complete a few minutes after 2 o'clock, P. M., and for about a minute the rare phenomena of "darkness in the day time" was created by the interposing satellite.—The planet Venus was brightly visible to the east, Mercury was seen in the west, and the fixed star Antares at a short distance below the conjoined orbs. The day was bright and beautiful, and every thing conspired for the favorable observation of the novel and sublime spectacle, which excited a universal and lively interest in our whole community. The change of temperature was sensible, but by no means so great as that which attended the annular eclipse in February 1831. We understand that several of the Clergymen of the city, made this grand phenomena the subject of appropriate discourses to their respective congregations.—Charleston Courier.

U. S. NAVAL LYCEUM.—A communication has been received from our Charge des Affairs at Constantinople, (Commodore PORTER) by which it appears that he has caused to be purchased, on his own account, by our Consular Agent at Salonica, and has transmitted as a present to the United States Naval Lyceum, a very ancient and valuable specimen of Grecian Sculpture. This precious relic of ancient art is now on board the frigate United States in charge of Capt. BALLARD.—N. Y. Am.

[From "Three years in the Pacific"]

"Don Pedro is said to possess a considerable share of good nature, and the following anecdote seems to bear evidence of it. A midshipman H— of the United States Navy, some four or five years since, followed a man who deserted from his boat, into the palace, where the sailor had fled, in hopes of eluding pursuit. Mr. H— rushed by the sentinels, and by mistake got into the audience room. The noise occasioned by his abrupt entry, led the emperor to inquire the cause; and when informed that it was a young naval officer, ordered him to his presence. The midshipman told the emperor that he had entered the palace in pursuit of a deserter, and would not leave it until he should find him.—Don Pedro was pleased by his resolute manner, and extended his hand to be kissed. The midshipman, however, did not so understand him, but gave it a hearty shake, and requested the emperor to allow the deserter to be sought and delivered up. The sailor was taken, and Mr. H— left the palace.

A few days afterwards, the emperor, when driving four-in-hand, met Mr. H—. He drew up his horses, and extended his hand, which Mr. H— shook very cordially, and told his Highness that he was extremely happy to see him. The emperor frequently related the anecdote, and styled Mr. H— his "young American friend."

"Education's Riv."—A precocious youth in a country town in Massachusetts, had arrived at the age of nine years, when his father sent him to school. He stood beside his teacher, to repeat the letters of the alphabet. "What's that?" asked the master. "Harrow," vociferated the urchin. "No, that's A." "A P." Well, what's the next? "Ox yoke." "No, that's B." "Tant B. neither; it's an ox yoke; crotch all henlock! Gosh amity! I think I don't know!"

Infamous Conduct.—Postmaster General Barry recently removed from office, Nathaniel Mitchell, Esq., the Post-Master at Portland Maine. We copy the following paragraph from Maj. Barry's letter, announcing to Mr. Mitchell his removal.

"As your official conduct had met with my decided approbation, not only in reference to the discharge of our ordinary duties, but also in respect to the performance of the difficult service that had devolved on you as the special agent of the Department, and which you had attended to with commendable zeal and fidelity, I have all along cherished the hope that the circumstances of the case would be such as would justify your retention. But it is obvious that the public sentiment in Maine demands a change in the office."

Here, then, is a man removed, against whom no charge of mal-conduct in office is made, but whose official conduct, on the contrary, "met with the decided approbation" of his superiors! What is the reason, then, of his removal? "Public sentiment!" says Maj. Barry. And how was this public sentiment ascertained? By the result of the recent elections in that State, doubtless. Does Maj. Barry intend to be guided by "public sentiment" elsewhere, as well as in Portland? If he does, must he not remove Mr. Greene, the Jackson postmaster at Boston? Of course. But will he do so? Not he. When our bull goes his ox, is another affair, altogether. "Circumstances alter cases." What, then, is the inference? Is not the removal of the Portland postmaster a clear, open and palpable "punishment" of that officer for the exercise of his political rights? Is it not a direct interference of the Federal Government with the freedom of elections? As downright bribery and corruption, as though the President had sent his agents to the polls to buy up partisans and votes? If the people are prepared to submit to such barefaced despotism, they are prepared to put a crown upon Gen. Jackson's head. He had as well be absolute king in name as in fact.—Lynchburg Virginian.

A GREAT YIELD.—Caleb Chase writes the editor of the Portland Courier, in illustration of the advantages of high cultivation of land, that he raised in a garden the past season from four grains of wheat eighty heads, one of which measured six and a half inches in length, and contained eighty grains and several others were of the same length. From these eighty heads, he obtained four thousand five hundred and thirty six grains of wheat, measuring little short of half a pint—being one thousand one hundred and thirty four fold!

This is worthy the attention of those farmers who are only desirous of increasing the number of acres on their farms—without improving the quality of the soil.

Sagacity of the Elephant.—The Elephant Romeo, when about entering the Menagerie yesterday with his keeper, and companion Juliet, spied a former master across the street, against whom he entertained an old grudge, and in his rage made after him at full speed. Behaving discretion to be the better part of valor, the terrified man flew over a fence near by, and escaped through the wood shed of an adjoining house, Romeo sweeping away the fence in full chase. He entered the shed by tearing it partly down, and while searching there for the object of his wrath, who, by the way had entirely escaped, was arrested by the hook and spear of his master, and conducted quietly back for exhibition.

Paris, Oct. 22.—Last year, a Polish gentleman having caught a stork upon his estate, near Lemberg, put round its neck an iron collar, with the inscription, "Hae ciconia ex Polonia," (this stork comes from Poland,) and set it at liberty. This year the bird returned to the same spot, and was again caught by the same person. It had acquired a new collar of gold, with the inscription, "India com domi renatit ciconia Polonis," (India sends back the stork to the Poles with gifts.) The gentleman, after having shown the inscription to his neighbors, again set the bird at liberty.

As a person was shooting swallows, a few days ago at Osbaldwick, he fired and wounded one, which fell as if its wing was broken, to within a few feet of the earth, when another swallow flew directly underneath, and bore it gently up. After having attained a considerable elevation, the bird underneath withdrew its support; but finding the bird was sinking again, to the earth, it resumed its station, and once more raised it in the air. This was done several times, till at last the bird which was wounded, flew away, as if it had not been hurt at all—its companion followed it. This is as remarkable an instance of attachment and sympathy in the feathered tribe as we ever heard of.—Tyne Mercury.

The London papers have created some witty sayings for the spectators at the burning of the two Parliament Houses. The subjoined is of the number.

"A new comer, after contemplating the fire for a few minutes, exclaimed: 'Well, I'm blessed if I ever saw such a fire up as this before.' 'Nor I,' said a waggish artisan standing by his side; 'I never thought the two Houses would go so near to set the Thames on fire.'"

Singular and interesting Fact.—On opening recently an Etruscan vase, taken from the ruins of Herculaneum, the learned Abbe Facciolante found an orange pickled in vinegar, in perfect preservation; from which it appears that the ancient Romans made use of oranges as we do of gherkins.

Corns.—A piece of tobacco, moistened with water, and bound upon the corn, acts as an effectual cure. We have tried it and found it so—have recommended it to others who have found the same relief. If you are afflicted with the corn, and do not ape the Chinese, and we will warrant you free from corns in six months.

A Classical and Mathematical Academy.—THE exercises of Rocky River Academy will be resumed on the 6th day of January next. Tuition at the rate of $10 a session.

Boarding can be obtained in respectable families from $5 to $6 a month.

The course of studies taught at this Institution, are as follows: In the Latin Department, Ruden's Latin Grammar, Mar's Introduction, Walker's Latin Reader, Virgil to the sixth Aeneid, Cicero's four Orations in Catalinam, Sallust, Horace and Goulet's Editio expurgata.

In the Greek—Valpy's Greek Grammar, Jacob's Greek Reader, the two first books of Xenophon, and Græca Majora through the Historical part, Demosthenes, Plato and Longinus.

In the English—Murray's English Grammar, Woodbridge's Geography, Blair's Lectures, Hodges' Logic, Bonnycastle's Algebra through Quadratic Equations, Caidwell's Geometry, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, Heights and Distances, Struving and Natural Philosophy.

The Subscriber designs teaching the Languages on the Analytical System with interlineal translations, supported by the recommendations of Locke and Milton, which has lately been adopted by some of the most notable Literary Institutions of the present day. Its aim is to obviate the perplexing task of committing to memory the Grammar without understanding it, which damps the spirit of most pupils during the first months of their pupillage, and to facilitate a knowledge of the Languages and to render their perusal more agreeable. The subscriber promises to spare no pains to develop the faculties of the Student's mind and to direct them into a proper channel in seeking knowledge. His aim is to enable them to understand thoroughly whatever they study so far as they advance.
