AGRICULTURE.

From the Southern Planter.

CULTURE OF THE INDIAN CORN.

In the last number of the Southern Planter there is a call from N. T. Green for information on the culture of Indian Corn...

In time past, I followed Col. Taylor's plan of bedding or ribbing all my corn land, but now I bed only such as is nearly level...

My cultivators are made with three hoes put in a frame, so that they can be placed at required distances; the hoes being about as wide as the four fingers...

Amherst, Feb. 12, 1842.

KEEPING HAMS.

This is one of the easiest arts in house keeping, and yet I hear of no one complaint more than this: "How do you keep your hams?"...

SOLON ROBINSON. Union Agriculturist.

Gardening.

There is not in life a more delightful occupation than gardening. To breathe the pure mild air of spring, to prepare the beds and borders for vegetables, plants and flowers...

When the time for planting has arrived and the seed corn is ready, the break harrow starts, for the triple purpose of levelling, pulverizing and destroying the quickness of weeds and grasses...

Gardening. We would advise our young friends who want to marry, and they are, in truth, a goodly third or fourth day, and having taken a vigorous start before the weeds, it is disposed to choke them down through life.

I have tried both drill and cross planting, but finally adopted drillings, supposing that my land would thus yield a much better crop.

I have also tried various widths for rows and distances on the row, with one, two, and three plants together; and have finally concluded that for my climate, land and kind of corn, (which is a large stalk and ear) rows five and a half feet apart...

On ground lying pretty well, and not incumbered with stones or stumps, I cover my corn with a very light harrow—otherwise with the hand hoe, and on like ground the crop is worked with the cultivator, with the Dutch shovel, or colter.

I am a grower of tobacco, consequently do not sell corn; indeed, being a pork seller, I have sometimes to buy a little grain; but I am presumptuous enough to believe that no man in the Commonwealth does produce larger crops of corn than I do...

My cultivators are made with three hoes put in a frame, so that they can be placed at required distances; the hoes being about as wide as the four fingers, and shaped like that called the bull's tongue.

Amherst, Feb. 12, 1842.

MR. SAMPSON'S HOUSE.

"Once upon a time, a queer old fellow named Smith started from a Southern city upon a pedestrian excursion of about one hundred miles. He was not a very old fellow either. He was about forty years older than he was when born."

"Who lives here, my son?" "Mr. Sampson, sir."

"Do you keep tavern?" "Why, sorter and sorter not; we accommodate people sometimes."

"Can I get dinner here?" "Yes, sir—walk in."

"Mr. Sampson, sir." "Can I get supper and lodging here to-night for my son?" "Certainly, sir—walk in."

Mr. Smith crossed the threshold, laid aside his hat and cane, drank a cup of tea and ate two or three slices of toast—read four chapters in "The Book of Martyrs," which he found upon the mantel piece, and went to bed.

number, to avoid those young ladies who seem to have an aversion to the primitive, useful and beautiful art of gardening.

It was night. Jerusalem slept quietly amid the hills, as a child upon the breast of its mother.

AN ALLEGORY. It was night. Jerusalem slept quietly amid the hills, as a child upon the breast of its mother.

But a darker night was abroad upon the earth.—A moral darkness involved the nations in its unlighted shadows.

It was at this period two forms of ethereal mould hovered above the land of God's chosen people.—They seemed sister angels sent to earth on some embassy of love.

The one was of majestic stature, and in the well-formed limbs which her snowy drapery scarcely concealed, in her erect bearing and steady eye, were exhibited the highest degree of strength and confidence.

Suddenly a light like the sun flashed out from the Heavens, and Faith and Hope hailed with exulting rills the ascending Star of Bethlehem.

Years rolled away, and a stranger was seen in Jerusalem. He was a meek and unassuming man, whose happiness seemed to consist in acts of benevolence to the human race.
