

POETRY.

THE LAMENT OF THE WIDOWED INEBRIATE.

[The Auburn Journal publishes a letter from a friend in Boston, from which we borrow the following:—

I'm thinking on thy smile, Mary— Thy bright and trusting smile—

I see full many a smile, Mary, On young lips beaming bright;

I'm thinking on the night, Mary, The night of grief and shame,

But the smile soon left thy lips, Mary, And thine eye grew dim and sad,

O, my words were harsh to thee, Mary, For the wine cup made me wild;

'Twas a pleasant hour of ours, Mary, In the spring time of our life,

Thou'rt resting in the church-yard now, And no stone is at thy head;

But he knows not of the broken heart I bear within my breast,

I have raised the wine cup in my hand, And the wildest strains I've sung,

Thou art slumbering in the peaceful grave, And thy sleep is dreamless now,

MR. FISHER ON THE TARIFF. Several Whig prints are engaged in the work of misrepresenting Mr. Fisher on the question of the Tariff.

While the Democratic party are at open and irreconcilable war with the principle of Government or legislative favoritism,

JOHN HOWARD, Esq., on big Hunting creek, enters one sorrel, or strawberry roan MARE,

This is the ground occupied by Mr. Fisher, as well as by all true Republicans. Does it follow, gentlemen Whigs, because he is opposed to partial legislation, to favoritism, and to monopolies, that he is any enemy to the manufacturing interest?

But he is opposed, and always has been, to the present unjust system; and should he be elected, will vote to bring down the Tariff of 1842 to the revenue standard.

GENERAL JACKSON'S LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT.

Extract of a letter from Nashville, dated June 7th, to a gentleman in Washington.

The last will and testament of the old hero was this day approved in our county court, and is public record. He commences by giving his body to the dust, whence it came, his soul to God that give it, &c., devoting his estate, first to the payment of two debts, viz; one of $6,000, with interest, borrowed of General Plaque, of New Orleans; another of $10,000, with interest, borrowed of Blair & Rives; and the balance to his son, Andrew Jackson, jr., with the exception of a few servants to his grandchildren.

The sword presented him by the State of Tennessee, he gives to A. J. Donelson, (his nephew,) now charge d'affaires at Texas. The sword presented him at New Orleans, he leaves to Andrew Jackson Coffee, the son of his old friend General Coffee. The sword presented him at Philadelphia, he leaves to his grandson and namesake.

It is dated, I think, in September, 1844, and revoked a will made by him several years before. It is his own steady and firm handwriting, and like all things that ever fell from his pen, breathes the purest patriotism throughout.

LIFE OF GENERAL JACKSON.

For the information of the public, we are requested to state that the publication of Mr. Kendall's Life of General Jackson will be resumed about the first of next month, and concluded by the close of the present year.

On the subject of my papers, you are to retain them as long as you think necessary to use them. Should you die, they are to pass forthwith into Mr. Blair's hands. I have full and unlimited confidence in you both, that they will never be permitted to be used but for a proper use.
