COLUMBIA MARKET.

COLUMBIA, Jan. 23, 1854.

COTTON.—On Saturday the weather was so severe that no cotton business could be done, and we therefore cause the market to close with sales of 900 bales, at prices varying from 72 to 91; and we would remark that a very slight article might command a fraction over our highest figures.

CHARLESTON MARKET.

CHARLESTON, Jan. 20, 1854.

COTTON.—We have no change to make in the market. The sales today reached fully 1200 bales, at extremes ranging from 82 to 102.

AMERICAN MANNERS.—Dr. Potter, in a recent address at Albany, said:

"I am a little afraid that a great many people in this country are rather too prone to undervalue this part of education. Certainly we have no admiration for anything fugal or affected in manners. We do not want the manners of village dancing schools. But genuine good breeding, gentle manners, ease, modesty and propriety of bearing, we do exceedingly value. When shall we cease to be known by our slovenly speech, by our practice of sitting with our feet higher than our heads? During an excursion of several months in Europe last year, I met hundreds of English at home, and on the continent, in every situation. I never saw one, spit—

I cannot remember that I ever saw one, however fatigued, lounging or sitting in any unbecoming manner. So long as the State shall feel itself obliged to provide spitoons for its legislative halls—so long as the directors of our railroads shall find occasion to put inside their carriages printed requests to the passengers to use the spitoons and not the floor, and not to put their feet upon the seats—so long as we shall continue to fill our conversation and our political harangues with the slang of the fish market, let us not be surprised nor angry, if foreigners sometimes make themselves witty at our expense. And in the meantime, let all those who are intrusted with the care of the young, use their utmost efforts to correct these national barbarisms, and to form the manners of the rising generation after a model more elevated, and more refined."
