Old Fellows' Celebration.

The Old Fellows of this country, in conjunction with a number of the Biders from South Carolina, and the adjoining counties, celebrated Saturday the 20th instant, with considerable display and credit to the day and themselves.

After marching through the principal streets, they proceeded to the Cooper House where Mr. G. H. Spencer read an interesting paper on the Missouri Compromise of Congress, and followed by James A. F. Fox, Esq., a short and eloquent address upon its constitutionality.

The old fellows, in their addresses, spoke of the importance of the Missouri Compromise, and the great services it did to the country.
