

Sunday Reading.

The Saviour's Reproof.

"WHEREFORE DIDST THOU DOUBT?" It is affecting to note the tender solicitude with which the Redeemer habitually sought to prop and nourish the wavering, feeble faith of the disciples in their Heavenly Father's love.

Still, whatever may have been the character at any former moment, the man who to-day honestly repents, find ever a benignant Saviour, patient with his weakness and irresolution, compassionate of his darkness and misery, and ready at once to hasten and cure, with the anointing of his own blood, the self-inflicted wounds of the now grieved and guilty spirit.

According to his mercy he saved us by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost.

In whom we have redemption through his blood, according to the riches of his grace. Let it ever strengthen our faith therefore, to know that the processes of our salvation are carried forward by agencies wholly of God.

Let it ever strengthen our faith therefore, to know that the processes of our salvation are carried forward by agencies wholly of God. True it is, indeed, that He does not consent to employ his omnipotence upon a heart to effect its salvation except with the concurrence of the will of the heart itself.

So of the soul and salvation. We shall never originate salvation for ourselves, as it is possible that the soul should be the fountain of its own peace or purity.

There is no salvation only in Christ Jesus. But if the soul remains steady, moment by moment, in Christ, it does by that continuous act, resign itself to the action of forces having their seat in the omnipotence and mercy of Jehovah.

These Scriptures, poor trembling disciple, declare both the will and the ability of God in reference to the justification of his spirit among the penitents from all iniquity.

Let not your faith stand in the wisdom of man, but in the power of God. You will not conquer your difficulties by the force of mere resolution to conquer them, but if you continue "looking unto Jesus," abiding in him, and receiving him as your "wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption," everything from him, you shall find that your enemies have Christ and not you to contend with.

frequently the result of the habit of offering their secret prayers in silence. Let them take up David's resolution. "My voice shall thou hear," and they will find an increase in the gift of prayer.

LEFT BEHIND.

The caravan was but within a few days' journey of the Syrian limit, and of its desert journey more than three-fourths had been performed. The tents had been lifted in the first blush of the morning, and the company, before the sun was an hour in the heavens, were out of sight from the spot where they had halted.
