

SURPRISE PARTY SURPRISED.—Young America, not long ago, undertook to have a surprise party at the house of Dean Richmond, in Buffalo, N. Y. In full faith with the idea, and with music, with efficient guests to the number of ten hundred, drove up to Dean's door, rung the bell, and prepared for a rush in. But they reckoned wrong. Dean answered the bell in person, and of course blocked up the entrance. The Buffalo Express tells the story: "He politely asked the business of the leader of the party. He is informed 'That this is a surprise party.' He assures them he is not surprised at all—he is not surprised at anything now-a-days—does not intend to have a party that night—when he wants one, he will make proper preparation, and bid the guests himself. He wishes them a pleasant 'good night,' and closes the door. This was fairly turning the table on Young America—the surprised were the surprised party."

The Ant and Bee are both exemplars worthy of man's imitation.

CATERPILLARS.—With a little watchfulness and care in searching for caterpillars' eggs, and destroying them before the leaves of fruit put out and before the worms hatch, you thus save the trees from injury or a greater amount of labor in killing the worms in the nest after they hatch, and when other work is pressing. A little practice will enable one to detect them on the small branches of the cherry and apple trees. The eggs are deposited and laid in a little bunch around the limb, and very ingeniously covered with a kind of gum or oment to protect the embryo worms from injury by the weather.

A SIAMEREGG.—The greatest curiosity we have yet seen in the line, is a sort of double egg, which was laid this week by a hen belonging to Wm. Sherwood, Esq., of our city. The yolk is in one end and the white in another, and the two are joined by an engorged membrane, containing a portion of the white, of the same texture as that composing the two sides. The whole of this remarkable oval structure is about five inches long. It is decidedly of the Siamese order, and resembles a miniature chain shot as anything else.—Norfolk Argus.
