Poetry.

I'm Growing Old.

BY J. O. SAXE.

My days pass peacefully away;
My nights are blest with sweetest sleep,
I feel no symptoms of decay—
I have no cause to mourn or weep;
My locks are raven-hued and shy,
My friends are neither false nor cold,
And yet, of late, I often sigh—
I'm growing old.

My growing talk of olden times;
My growing fears for early news;
My growing apathy to rhymes;
My growing love of cosy shoes;
My growing hate of crowds and noise;
My growing fear of taking cold,
All whisper in the plainest voice—
I'm growing old.

I'm growing fonder of my staff;
I'm growing slimmer in the eyes;
I'm growing stricter in my laugh;
I'm growing deeper in my sighs;
I'm growing cautious of my steps;
I'm growing sparer of my food;
I'm growing wise; I'm growing—yes—
I'm growing old.

I see it in my changing taste:
I see it in my changing hair;
I see it in my growing waist;
I see it in my growing fear;
A thousand signs proclaim the truth,
As plain as truth was ever told,
That even in my vaunted youth,
I'm growing old.

Ah, me! my very breath breathe
The tale in my reluctant ears,
And every hour the hours bequeath,
But wakes me closer to the years,
E'en flattery's honeyed words declare
The secret one would fain withhold,
And tell me in, "How young you are!"
I'm growing old.

Thanks for the years! whose rapid flight
My wishes more unwisely urges;
Thanks for the glances of golden light
That tint the darkness of their verges;
Thanks for the twilight hues without the way,
Those heavenly anodynes to pain,
Where all are blest, and none may sigh,
"I'm growing old!"

Miscellaneous.

Blue Eyes Behind a Veil.

BY LUCY A. RANDALL.

Mr. Edge was late at breakfast—that was not an unusual occurrence—and he was a little disposed to be cross—which was likewise nothing new. So he retired behind his newspaper, and devoured his eggs and toast without vouchsafing any reply, save unspeakable monosyllables to the gentle remarks of the fresh looking little lady opposite—to wit: Mrs. Edge. But she was gathering her forces for the grand final onslaught, and when at length Mr. Edge had got down to the last paragraph, and laid aside the reading sheet, it came.

"Dear, didn't you say you were going to leave me a hundred dollars for my furs to-day?"

"What furs?" (Rather sharply it was spoken.)

"Those new sable, dear; my old affairs are getting shockingly shabby, and I really think—"

"Oh, pshaw! what's the use of being so extravagant? I haven't any money just now to lay out in useless follies. The old furs are good enough for any sensible woman to wear."

Mrs. Edge, good meek little soul that she was, relapsed into obedient silence; she only sighed a soft, inward sigh, and present ly began on a new track.

"Henry, will you go with me to my aunt's to night?"

"Can't you go alone?"

"Alone? How would it look? Mrs. Edge's temper—for she had one, though it didn't often parade itself—was fairly roused.

"You are so neglectful of those little attentions you used to pay me once; you never walk with me, nor pick up my handkerchief, nor notice my dress, as you did once."

"Well, a fellow can't be forever waiting upon the women, can he?" growled Mr. Edge.

"You could be polite enough to Miss Waters last night, when you never thought to ask me if I wanted anything, though you knew perfectly well that I had a headache. I don't believe you care so much for me as you used to do!"

And Mrs. Edge looked extremely pretty, with tears in her blue eyes and a quiver on her round rosy lips.

"Pshaw!" said the husband peevishly—"Now don't be silly, Maria!"

"And to the stage, yesterday, you never asked me if I was warm enough, or put my shawl around me, while Mr. Brown was so very affectionate to his wife. It was mortifying enough, Henry—it was, indeed!"

"I didn't know women were such fools," said Mr. Edge sternly, as he drew on his overcoat to escape the tempest which he saw rapidly impending. "Am I the sort of a man to make a ninny of myself doing the polite to any female creature? Did you ever know me to be conscious whether a woman had a shawl on or a swallow tailed coat?"

Maria eclipsed the blue eyes behind a little pocket handkerchief, and Henry, the savage, banged the door loud enough to give Betty in the kitchen a nervous start.

"Raining again! I do believe we are going to have a second edition of the Deluge," said Mr. Edge to himself that evening as he ensconced his six feet of humanity in the south west corner of a car at the City Hall. "Go ahead, conductor, can't you? What are you waiting for? Don't you see we're full and in a dark already."

"In one minute, sir," said the conductor, as he helped a little woman with a basket on board. "Now, sir! move up a little if you please."

Mr. Edge was exceedingly comfortable, did'nt want to move up, but the light of the lamp, just ignited, falling on the pearly forehead and shining golden hair of the new comer, he altered his mind and did move up.

"What lovely eyes!" quoth he mentally, as he bestowed a single acknowledging smile.

"Real violet blue! the very color I admire most. Blest me! what business has an old married man like me thinking about eyes! What would Maria say, the jealous little witch? There—she's drawn a contounded veil over her face, and the light is as dim as tallow dip. But those were pretty eyes!"

The fair possessor of the blue eyes shivered slightly and drew her mantilla closer round her shoulders.

"Are you cold, Miss? Pray honor me by wearing my shawl. I don't need it at all myself."

She did not refuse; she murmured some apology for troubling him, but it was not a refusal.

"No trouble—not a bit!" said he with alacrity, arranging it on the taper shoulders; and then, as the young lady handed her fare to the conductor, he said to himself, what a slender, lovely little hand! If there is anything I admire in a woman it's a pretty hand! Wonder what kind of a mouth she's got? It must be delightful if it corresponds with the hair and eyes—Plague take the veil!"

But "plague," whoever that mystical power may be, did not take possession of the provoking veil, so Mr. Edge's curiosity about the mouth of the blue eyed damsel remained ungratified.

"Have you room enough, Miss? I fear you are crowded. Pray sit a little closer to me!"

"Thank you sir," was the soft reply, coming from behind the veil, as Mr. Edge rapturously reflected, "like an angel from the gloom of a dark cloud." And his heart gave a violent thump as the pretty shoulder touched his own shaggy coat in a meeting sort of a way.

"Decidedly, this is getting rather romantic," thought he; and then, with an audible whisper, "What would Maria say!"

The rest of the long, dark, rainy ride was delicious, with that shoulder against his own.

How gallantly he jumped up to pull the strap for her; by some favoring freak of fortune it happened to be at the very street where he intended to stop. And under all the circumstances we can hardly blame him, when the cars stopped so suddenly that she caught instinctively at his hand for support, for the squeeze he gave the plump, snowy palm! any man in his senses would have done the same; it was such an inviting little fluttering!

Out into the rain and darkness our two pilgrims sailed scarcely more than able to steer their course by the glimmering reflections of the street lamps on the streaming pavements.

"Allow me to carry your basket, Miss, as long as our paths lie in the same direction," said Mr. Edge courteously, relieving her of the burden as he spoke. "And—and—may be you'd find less difficulty in walking if you'd just take my arm?"

Well, wasn't it delightful. Mr. Edge forgot the wet streets and the pitchy darkness—he thought he was walking on roses!—Once as he approached his own door, he began to feel a little nervous, and wished that the lovely incognito wouldn't hold on quite so tight. Suppose Maria should be at the window on the lookout for him, as she often was, how would she interpret matters! He couldn't make her believe that he only wanted to be polite to a fair traveller! besides his sweeping declaration of the morning—she would be sure to recall them.

As he stopped at the right number and turned round to bid the blue eyed a regretful adieu, he was astounded to see her run lightly up the steps to enter likewise! Gracious Apollo! he burst into a chilly perspiration at the idea of Maria's horror!

"I think you have made a mistake, Miss," stammered he, "this can't be your house."

But it was too late—she was already in the brilliantly lighted hall, and turning round threw off her dripping habiliments and made him a low courtesy.

"Very much obliged to you for your politeness, sir!"

"Why it's my wife!" gasped Edge.

"And happy to see that you haven't forgotten all your gallantry towards the ladies," pursued the merciless little puss, her blue eyes (they were pretty!) all in a dance with suppressed roguery.

Edge looked from ceiling to floor, in vain search for a loop hole of retreat; but the search was unavailing.

"Well," said he, in the most sheeping of all tones, "it's the first time I ever was polite to a woman to the care, and hang me if it shan't be the last."

"You see, dear," said the ecstatic little lady, "I was somewhat belated—didn't expect to be delayed so long, and hadn't any idea I should meet with so much attention in the cars, and from my own husband, too! Goodness gracious, how aunt Priscil la will enjoy the joke!"

"If you tell that old harpy," said Edge, in an account of cooperation, "I never shall hear the last of it."

"Very probable," said Maria provoking ly.

"Now look here, darling," said Mr. Edge coaxingly, "you won't say anything, will you? A fellow don't want to be laughed at by all the world. Lucy, Maria, you shall have the prettiest hats in New York if you'll only keep quiet—you shall, on my honor!"

The terms were satisfactory, and Maria (parenthesis—she wouldn't!) And that is the way she got those splendid furs that filled sow hearts of all her female friends with envy; and perhaps it was what made Mr. Edge such a scrupulously courteous husband ever after.

SCHROON LAKE, ESSEX Co., N. Y.,
February 6, 1860.
W. E. HAGAN, Troy N. Y.,—Dear Sir:
Having used your Hair Coloring or Restorative, and being much pleased with it, I take pleasure in making the following statement: From the effects of a very severe fever of sickness, when about 18 years of age, my hair commenced turning grey, and as continued to grow white it became perfectly white, being very harsh and coarse. Last December I was induced by a friend to purchase two bottles of Heimstreet's Hair Restorative prepared by you. I commenced using it according to directions, and in a few days was surprised to find that my hair from the roots outwards was turning back to its original color. It continued to grow until it was entirely brown—my grey as it was entirely rubbed out, and is now fully restored to its original color.
MYRA SEAMAN.
Essex Co., ss.—Myra Seaman came before me and was duly sworn, and says that the above statement is true, this 1st day of February, 1860.
JOEL F. POTTER, Justice of the Peace.
PITTSFORD, Vt., Aug. 1, 1857.
I hereby certify, that my hair having become quite grey, I used Heimstreet's Hair Restorative, (prepared by W. E. Hagan, of Troy, N. Y.,) for four weeks, and my hair was in that time restored to its original color. I can fully recommend the article to be all it claims.
WM. KINGSLEY,
Pastor of the Baptist Church, Pittsford, Vt.
Mr. W. E. HAGAN: I have used Heimstreet's Hair Restorative for three years, and have found it to be a most excellent article. It not only reset ed me the use of my hair, giving it new life and strength, but it caused myself and wife at a recent election to exclaim on the scalp, which nothing else seemed to benefit. I fully believe it to be the best article in use.
Yours Respectfully,
KNOWLTON HOWLAND.
The above are but a few of the many letters of recommendation which have been received by the proprietors of Heimstreet's Hair Coloring or Restorative. It has been used by thousands of people, and it never fails to restore the color and growth of the hair. This singular effect is not produced as when dyes are used; for it acts upon the natural secretions of coloring matter at the roots, and thus effects the change. The color produced is not a counterfeit, but the natural shade of youth. It does not soil the skin.
Price 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold everywhere.

CHARLOTTE HOTEL,
BY
J. H. HARRIS,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

THE Proprietor of this Hotel is still at his post ready to fulfil the duties of "mine host" to the travelling public and others who may call on him, one he flatters himself that as comfortable quarters can be found with him as any where in this vicinity. Being situated nearly in the centre of Charlotte, Business Men will find this Hotel a most convenient and desirable location. He has been engaged in the business at this stand nearly eighteen years, one in that time he has made several additions to his former house, and it has been greatly enlarged and improved, presenting in front a two story VERANDA 160 feet in length by 12 feet in width, handsomely shaded by trees on the side-walk, affording a pleasant promenade at all hours of the day.
The House has been thoroughly furnished throughout, and in every part of it creature comforts are abundant and tangible, especially in the DINING ROOM, where the "inner man" is "renewed" day by day.
Connected with this Hotel are Stables affording room for 100 horses, abundantly furnished with grain and provender, attended by faithful and obliging hostlers.
The Proprietor feels confident that with his long experience and many new advantages added to his desire to please, he is prepared to offer his friends and the "rest of mankind," as many comforts and as much good cheer as will be found anywhere, perhaps a little more so.
☞ At any rate try the Charlotte Hotel.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
A compound remedy, in which we have labored to produce the most effectual alterative that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Pure Sarsaparilla, so combined with other substances of still greater alterative power as to afford a more effective antidote for the disease Sarsaparilla is reputed to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from scrofulous complaints, and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense benefit to this large class of afflicted humanity. How completely this compound is adapted to its purpose by experiments on many of the worst cases to be found of the following complaints:—
SCROFULA AND SCROFULOUS COMPLAINTS, ERUPTIVE AND ERUPTIVE DISEASES, ULCERS, FEVERS, BLOTCHES, TUMORS, SALT RHEUM, SCALD HEAD, SYPHILIS AND SYPHILITIC AFFECTIONS, MERCURIAL DISEASE, DROPSY, NEURALGIA OR TIC DOULOUREUX, DEBILITY, DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION, ERYSIPELAS, ROSE OR ST. ANTHONY'S FIRE, and indeed the whole class of complaints arising from IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD.
This compound will be found a great promoter of health, when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which settle in the blood at that season of the year. By the thousands of cures it is daily effecting of these and other complaints, it may be relied on that it will do for those who have once given it a fair trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
has won for itself such a position for the cure of every variety of Throat and Lung Complaints, it is entirely unnecessary for us to recount the evidence of its virtues, wherever it has been employed. As it has long been in constant use throughout this section, we need not do more than assure the people its quality is kept up to the standard it ever has been, and that it can be relied on to do for their relief all it has ever been found to do.

GENTLEMEN: Your note of the 14th inst., has been received, saying that you had learn that I had been benefited by the use of Wood's Hair Restorative and requesting my certificate of the fact if I had no objection to grant it.
I award it to you cheerfully, because I think it due. My age is about 50 years; the color of my hair auburn, and inclines to curl. Some few or six years since it began to turn grey, and on the crown of my head to lose its vitality and camedoff to form upon it. Each of those unpleasantness increased with time and about four months since a bottle was given to me, by hair falling off the top of my head was interfering to make me bald.
In this unpleasant predicament, I was induced to try Wood's Hair Restorative mainly to arrest the falling off of my hair, for I had really no expectation that grey hair could ever be restored to its original color except from dyes. I was however greatly surprised to find after the use of two bottles only, that not only was the falling off arrested, but the color was restored to the grey hairs and sensibility to the scalp, and in about two months to FIFTEEN months, I found that I was, in my case, give entire satisfaction.
