Fort Sumter.

Fort Samter is still garrisoned by Federal troops. Rumors in regard to its reinforcement are rife, but we exhuot vouch for the truth of them. It is also stated that the President of the Southern Confederacy has eut off from Maj. Anderson. If either of a thousand other appliances, they have suclonger be held in suspense in regard to alfairs in that quarter.

We have shought for some time, and we still think, that there will be blood shed before this matter is settled. There is a poserful influence being exerted upon the President to induce him to use force towards the seconded States, and there is no telling what the result will be. We know well that neither Liucoln nor his advisors have any love for the South, and convequently we will not be surprised to hear Lat bostilities have communeed, at any time. In this connection we give the following, from the Charleston Courier, in regard to the preparations which have been making there:

Beapy.-It is said now that the last mor of Fort Sumter may be said to be entirely accomplished. There is no possibility of supplies or reinforcements being thrown in the sea, for there is not the power in
