THE LITTLE HEROINE.

BY MES. CAROLINE BOULE,

"Morning again !" and the weary, wasted invalid lifted his head from the pillow and looked pitifully over the dim room. "Wh, that the night had been longer 1 to the wretched sleep is dear. My poor, poor wife-my daring babos-must they freeze and stave! Oh, God! it is too much! And with tears gushing from his eyes, the pale man buried his head in the seatty covering and grouned aloud. It was no wonder that he was out of heart on that cold, dark December day At hest, he had a hard struggie to get food and for the past six months the struggle has been almost de-perate, for his wife had been upuble to assist him in the loast, being disease this little daughter Marie, a postry child of twelve, kept the one room redy, and hereoff and twelve, hittle brathers like wag. By the aid of her mathers whipered directions she al-o managed to cock the scanty meals, and al-o managed to do up the wrekly washing and ironing.

In the low sweet tones, "our such as the subset of the partial state of the partial called her, while the mother sould say, in her low savet tones, "our anerl."

But the gentlemen had their overcosts buttoned to their chis, and their ladies were enveloped in fars, and it was too much like trouble to find their pocket-books or purses just to supply a beggar's wait. The ball to my fittle Thereast," and Mon-seur B took her hand kindly. "Good mothing, dear. Come to have your ring-just to supply a beggar's wait. The ball to my fittle Thereast," and Mon-seur B took her hand kindly. "Good mothing, dear. Come to have your ring-tes dressed for the ball to might-mod." The ball the more and gold. The ball to might-mod."

It was a new idea to her, and as fast as feet could earry her she went, and enter-

"Come in to morting morning, and street. I will do what I can for you." To-morrow! She would be too weak to walk so far by that time, and what would became of the test ?

With a heavy heart, she went home, having no courage to present herself as a wai-ter to any of the coffice houses she passed on her way. "Did you get some "" cried the boys gathering about her, and pulling off her cloak to see if it were hidden in her cloak or under her arms.

" Did you get some !" said two faint voi ors from the hed in the corner, and the coveriet was thrown off, and two pairs of

The hair dresser was satonished. What could the child mean. To cat off those ouris, long, silken, and gold colored, the pale pold of a stray sunheam, it would pale pold of a stray sunheam, it would have been sacrilege almost for a mother to have been sacrilege almost for a mother to have done it; to sell them, was surely a crime.
