FORDSON

Bought His Fordson in 1918
Read What He Says About It

"I purchased my Fordson in October, 1918," writes J. M. Thompson, of Mapleton, North Dakota, "and take pride in writing you that I have just finished overhauling the engine and consider its condition equal to that of a new one."

"I have plowed 950 acres, disked 60 acres (10-foot disc), harvested 800 acres, using an 8-foot binder, and dragged 600 acres with a 32-foot drag, hauled 6,000 bushels of grain and 40 yards of sand, threshed 8,400 bushels of grain with a 29x32 machine. I have used my tractor at nearly every kind of belt work that I know of, viz.: I pull a No. 41 Stover mill, have sawed wood, shredded corn, and operated a 12-inch rotary pump—you may not be familiar with this kind of pump, but this I can say, it has a capacity of 1,200 gallons of water a minute and is a real load. I have done considerable road work for the county with a small road grader and road drag."

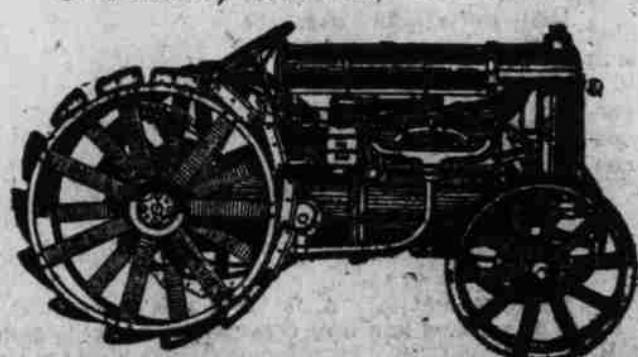

"My repair bill I consider very light, considering the amount of work I have done, and my fuel consumption is also very light under normal conditions."

Machine power on the farm is of the utmost importance to you, and the Fordson comes to you, we believe, as the best piece of machinery that has yet been devised for your work."

See the Fordson at work. Let me tell you about it. Ask me to demonstrate it on your farm."

HIGH TARIFF AND FOREIGN TRADE

The tariff question was omitted from the Republican platform in the last campaign. It is quite apparent that the omission was due to the divergent opinions on the question, for all Republicans do not uphold high tariff as is generally understood to be the stalwart attitude of the party. Fordney, the distinguished representative from Michigan, Chairman of the House Ways and Means committee, and author of the Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill, which was vetoed by Mr. Wilson at the close of his term of office, does not now show the interest in the bill which appears would be evidenced by him. In other words he would regard it as possible to do so and possibly to help the cause. Others who so recently supported it in the beginning have lost the enthusiasm which characterized their activities previously. However, it will, in all probability, be revived and passed in defiance of their convictions that its features are objectionable. President Harding has informed the House ways and means committee that he wants an emergency tariff on agricultural products to come ahead of everything else in the Republican tariff and revenue program. Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, has declared that the Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill should be passed and signed within ten days after the extra session of congress meets on April 11th, "without the crossing of a 't'."

As a means of relief for the farmers, the proposed tariff bill will prove an absolute failure. Relief for the farmers is dependent entirely upon the development of foreign trade. Individualism is a past era, and is not consistent with the present period of commercial development and progress. We realize now as never before that our welfare or difficulties are closely related to those of other countries. The farmer of the south knows positively that whatever strengthens or weakens his condition likewise affects the people with other countries with whom we are engaged in trade. The Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill if passed will have a tendency to restrict foreign trade, thereby placing the farmers in a more precarious status. To place a high tariff on agricultural products which are imported in small quantities would certainly not benefit the American farmers, but would be a means of retarding the commercial progress of the United States, Canada and Europe, by building about us a tariff wall to keep out imports. This country is a creditor to European countries in a very large amount. Our government has loaned ten billion dollars to the allied nations. Private loans for which foreign bonds are held by private investors, aggregate two billion dollars. Then there is a floating debt of about four billion dollars due individuals in the United States, making a total of approximately sixteen billion dollars Europe owes this country. Europe is unable to pay even the interest on this colossal sum, without touching the principal. To raise the tariff on imports from Europe to a "maximum would diminish her ability to meet the obligations."

By maintaining a reasonable tariff it will better enable our debtors to pay their debts, and at the same time develop foreign trade. It must be conceded that the debt due this country exceeds by far the revenues that would accrue from a high and "extortionate" tariff, for high tariff would be ineffective as a budgetary system. Import tariffs, as well as other taxes, direct and indirect, should be revised from time to time to meet the exigencies which arise, but it does not seem in the least advisable to revise tariff laws on an upward scale during the present period of business stagnancy, and particularly while this nation is a creditor instead of a debtor to other countries. It is quite probable that these were Mr. Wilson's chief reasons for vetoing the Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill.

The old and well known plea of the Republican party that tariff is necessary to protect domestic enterprises is not applicable in the present age. American manufacturing has laid aside its swaddling-clothes and has launched forth in the industrial and commercial world no longer as a competitor but as the world's leader. This rapid expansion in manufacturing has been accomplished during the past eight years while the former hovering wings of high protective tariff, the handwork of the Republican party, have been dropped off and replaced by a low tariff.

A few years ago we were importing a great many manufactured products which today we are manufacturing in larger quantities than our predecessors in the art, and selling them on the markets of the world. The development of war industries was imperative and has been a great factor in our manufacturing progress. Even the manufacturing of articles which we formerly imported has expanded wonderfully. For example, before the war we imported the major portion of manufactured chemicals, while now we are in a position to supply our own needs and engage in the export trade of these articles. Briefly, the United States has developed in manufacturing, and the necessity for high tariffs, if indeed there was ever a necessity for it, has disappeared entirely.

High tariff cannot possibly be of any assistance to the agricultural industries. The revenues realized will not compensate its injury to foreign trade. Low tariff will be a means of relief, for it will tend to develop foreign trade and strengthen international co-operation wherein lies the success of any and all enterprises.

NORTH CAROLINA BAPTIST WOMAN'S MISSIONARY UNION

The thirty-first session of the North Carolina Baptist Woman's Missionary Union, met with the First Baptist Church in Rocky Mount, March 29th to April 1st.

Mrs. W. D. Kelly, Mrs. C. S. Parker and Mrs. M. J. Herring were the delegates from the Clinton W. M. S. Rocky Mount is a hospitable city, and the doors of its citizens, irrespective of denomination, were thrown wide open to the delegates and visitors, and nothing was left undone that would add to the comfort and pleasure of those in attendance.

Rev. J. H. Kincheloe is pastor of the First church, and Mrs. H. M. Finch is President of the W. M. S. They are supported in their work by some of the Lord's royalty.

The introductory sermon was to have been preached by Rev. C. E. Maddy, D.D., Corresponding Secretary of the Baptist State Convention, but he had recently undergone an operation and was unable to attend, so the sermon was preached on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock by Rev. H. M. Jackson, of Wadesboro, N. C.

The business sessions of the Convention opened on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, presided over by Mrs. Wesley N. Jones, of Raleigh, who is the President of the union.

After organization the Convention got right down to business, and the entire morning session was taken up by the reading of reports by Corresponding Secretary and the Treasurer, appointment of committees and President's address.

The reports showed that the Eastern Association was the only association in the State that had made all the points (ten) on the Standard of Excellence, and so won the banner, presented each year by the President, to the Association making best report. This is the fourth year in succession that the Eastern has claimed this honor, so this year she graciously stepped aside and let the next best, the Central Association, have the banner. The Central make nine points.

Too much cannot be said in praise of our Associational Superintendent, Miss Macy Cox, who talks Woman's Work, in season and out of season, who makes plans, and then works those plans.

As the sessions went on every one was obliged to be impressed with the spiritual atmosphere that pervaded these meetings, and the burden of every report, every address and every prayer was, that our women will be more consecrated, more prayerful and more willing to give "their own bodies a living sacrifice unto God."

There were very few men who showed their faces in the business meetings, but the women showed their ability to take care of the situation and some very fine addresses were made, among which were those made by Mrs. W. C. James, President of the W. M. U., of Southern Baptist Convention, and T. C. Britton, one of our Missionaries from Soochow, China.

Miss Evelyn Campbell, of Meredith College, and Mrs. Maude R. McClure, of the W. M. U. Training School, Louisville, Ky. There were 557 delegates enrolled, and the princely sum of $314,004.01 was contributed to all objects during the past year 1920-1921. This is an increase of $139,674.00 over the previous year. The aim for the year was not quite reached, but the women confidently expect to raise the two million dollars subscribed to the seventy-five million campaign, before the five years is past.

Six years ago when the Union met in Winston, the sum of $60,000 was taken as the aim for the following year, with fear and trembling, but the women went home and went about the raising of that amount, doing their very best and praying God to make them able to accomplish the task in His name and for His glory, and behold what a wonderful work he has accomplished through the women and children of the Baptist Churches of North Carolina.

The Convention adjourned on Thursday night, and Friday morning every train leaving Rocky Mount was crowded with women, going to their homes in different sections of the State, each one feeling that she had gained new inspiration for the work of the Master, and each one resolved to sound out as never before the note of loyalty to Christ loyalty to the Campaign pledge, and so the Rocky Mount meeting will go down in history as the best meeting ever held by the Baptist women of North Carolina.

"IT IS UP TO YOU."

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS TELL NUMBER OF SOUTHERN BANKERS TO DO IT THEMSELVES.

Washington, April 4.—The Federal government is asking to extend any direct aid to cotton producers and the producers of exporters of other commodities now held in surplus, a group of southern bankers were told today by government officials.

Secretary of the treasury Mellon, secretary of commerce Hoover, Governor Harding of the Federal reserve board, comptroller of the currency Crisinger, chief Livingston of the bureau of markets and the members of the war finance corporation met the bankers in the office of Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation.

"It is up to you," he told the southern bankers. "Get to it. You are able to extend greater credit to relieve this situation if you will do so."

Governor Harding suggested that the southern bankers might divert "frozen loans" now tied up in speculative investment to help relieve the cotton men. The southern bankers have been "too timid" in the present situation, he said.

The bankers declared the decreased cotton acreage in the south this year is the best relief. The problem is not so much disposing of the enormous surplus now held in warehouses, they said, but a question of reducing the acreage this year to a point that will keep the price of cotton above the cost of production.

JAMES RAMSON SUTTON.

March 13, 1921, the death angel visited the home of Mr. J. S. Sutton, of Magnolia, and took from them their darling boy, James Ramson, who was in his 20th year. This noble young man was shot through an accident of his own hand and killed instantly. He attended church and Sunday school in the morning and came home in the evening bright and cheerful and happy, seemingly in his manner not thinking he would be slain through a mistake of his own hand. This was a terrible shock to this good family and to the entire town of Magnolia. He used his last day on earth pleasant to his many friends and especially to his dear mother and father and sisters. He was a good boy and faithful in his home. All who knew him loved him, but God loved him more. He leaves to mourn their loss a mother, father and three sisters and one brother, now in Texas, and his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Byrd, and host of friends. He was buried in honor of the Woodmen and his grave was a beautiful mound of flowers. His funeral was conducted by the Baptist and Methodist pastors.

His loving AUNT SALLIE.

FEELS FIT AND FINE AND TIPS THE SCALES AT ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY POUNDS.

DOES ALL KINDS OF HEAVY LIFTING AND HAS NOT FELT ANY OF THE OLD EFFECTS FOR OVER A YEAR—THANKS TO GARREN'S TONIC, "I AM STRONG AND HEALTHY."

"I am strong and healthy." There are hundreds of thousands of people in the world today who would like to be able to give utterance to this expression. You may be numbered among this multitude of sufferers from stomach trouble, indigestion, nervousness, constipation, lack of sufficient blood supply or the numerous illnesses of kindred symptoms arising from poorly digested food. If you are, you have only yourself to blame, for the same old that was given to Mr. J. P. Anders, Hendersonville, N. C., is offered to you and to the world, in a simple Back-to-Nature Remedy made from mountain Herbs, Roots and Barks, known as Garren's Tonic. This tonic is purely a vegetable compound containing just the right proportion of the right kind of roots and herbs scientifically worked out by expert chemists and biologists to produce the desired results.

When food is not properly digested, that which is intended to give strength to the body is failing to perform its mission. The basic principle of Garren's Tonic is its effect upon the digestive organs of the body, putting them in fit condition to properly digest all foods. When all foods are properly converted into strength for the physical body—the constitution is so re-enforced that nature's own resistance becomes too great to be overcome by the germs effecting many diseases. Mr. Anders sets forth many of these diseases that arise from being unable to properly digest one's food—read what he says: "About three years ago I was taken with a severe case of rheumatism which caused me much pain and suffering. I tried many of the best treatments for months without getting relief. After discovering my case had been a complete failure, having been told that the nerves and muscles of my legs were so diseased that I could never be cured, I grew despondent. One of my legs, at this time, had perished away to half its natural size; I then took all the guaranteed remedies that I could hear of, without getting the slightest relief."

"I was finally persuaded by my wife to try a bottle of Garren's Blood Purifier and Tonic, and the results were really wonderful. Before I had taken all of my second bottle, my indigestion was gone and I could eat and sleep well. The pains went away and I improved so rapidly that in less than sixty days I had completely recovered. Best of all, it had been twelve months since I have felt any of my old symptoms. Now I can do all kinds of heavy lifting without ever feeling any inconvenience from rheumatism. I am a strong and healthy man and tip the scales at one hundred eighty pounds, and shall always be grateful for Garren's Tonic."

Garren's Tonic is sold in Salemburg by G. L. Sikes. Single bottle $1.25. Buy 6 bottles for $5.00.
