The National Outrage.

The Republican party came into power in 1860, prior to that it had been schooling the government in theories of despotism. Its first teachings were defiance to the constitution and setting the long cherished doctrine state rights aside.

Its last and crowning outrage has been the infamous majority of the Electoral Board, that has just consummated the Florida and Louisiana outrage.

This party was born in blood, it will die in a vortex of carnage in less than four years, the scenes that were witnessed in England, when King and Parliament waged war against each other, will be seen in this land.

r. b. hayes.

Contempt is impressed on the initials that declare what he is called. Guilt, shamelessness and dishonor, are traced in his conduct, fraud, corruption and infamy was the means that gave him the presidential sceptre.

If there be bells, and the souls of perjured jurists do not enter there, then what need were there of bells. There is honor in submitting to a short abandonment of principle which will soon be corrected by time, but in this thing submission is shame; the trick was well and keenly played, and a democratic nation said amen! honor groans, and sweats, and cries for shame! and justice with her mantle robes herself, and dies! and ignominy reads the last rites, and then lays her in a dishonored grave, and on her tombstone writes, murdered by the ignominy of returning boards, perjured judges, and r. b. hayes.
