WHEN THE COWS COME HOME.

When kingle, kingle, kingle,

Far down the dusty dike,

The cows are coming home,

New sweet and clean, and him and her,

The airy tinklings come and go,

Like chiming from the fit of tower,

Or patting of an April shower.

That makes the inside glow,

Knocking, knocking, knocking,

Far down the dusty dike.

The cows come slowly home.

And old-time friends and twilight plays,

And stary nights, and sunny days,

Come trooping up the misty ways,

When the cows come home.

With kingle, kingle, kingle,

Soft tones that sweetly mingle,

The cows are coming home,

Melting and melting and flowing,

Dekamp, Red Lion and Gretchen Schell

Queen Bess & Sybil and Spangled Sue,

Across the fields, I hear her 'low-ow';

And clang her silver bells;

Gingling, gongling, gongling,

With faint far sounds that mingle,

The cows come slowly home;

And mother-son's of long-gone years,

And baby-joys and childish fears,

And youthful hopes and youthful tears,

When the cows come home.

With ringle, rangle, ringle,

By two and threes and single

The cows are coming home;

Through violet air we see the town,

And the summer sun is sinking down,

And the maple in the hazel glade

Throws down the path a long shade,

And the hills are growing brown

To-ring, to-rang, to-ringle-ringle,

By three and fours and single,

The cows come slowly home;

The same sweet sound of wordless psalm,

The same sweet June-day rest and calm,

The same sweet sweet-bud and balm,

When the cows come home.

With tingle, tangle, tingle

Through fern and periwinkle

The cows are coming home;

A tinkling in the checker'd stream

Where the sun rays glance and gleam,

Staring Pease-bloom and Phoebe Phillips

HENRY CLAY'S FAITH.

Rev. Mr. Berkley, who baptized

Henry Clay, in a letter about the Christianity of the great statesman, gives the following reminiscence: I cannot help relating an incident which occured early in my ministry. He was more affected by my tender and pathetic utterance than any listener I ever had before me. The incident I allude to was my having preached on a Sunday morning with more of myself in the sermon than Christ. (I was a young man then.) I dined with him and his family the next day. After dinner we were walking through the beautiful grounds of Ashland, and he alluded to the sermon of the day before, complimenting the style and delivery in a more public speech, but added: When I go to church, I like to hear something in the sermon that will guide a sinner to his Savior. How the times have changed! Without expressing my mortification at the just rebuke, when I had foolishly used my office in the attempt, as I supposed, to please a great man and a great orator, I determined from that day to this to preach nothing but Christ and Him crucified, and I have mainly kept to my purpose.

His faith in the divine authenticity of Christianity, and the atonement made by the Lord Jesus Christ for the sins of the world, was as simple as that of a child. It was enough for him to know, as he more than once said to me in substance, that "God so loved the world as to give His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but should have everlasting life."

A WONDERFUL HORSE.

"Sleepy Tom," the dark bay pacing horse, went around the mile track in Chicago in 2:12, the fastest mile time ever made by any trotter or pacer in the world. "Tom" is blind as a bat, is about fourteen years old, fifteen hands high, and has afforded as much amusement to gamblers as any other animal in America to-day. One of the most remarkable sights ever seen at a horse race is the picture of "Tom" and his driver in the head of a gun. The driver leans far over "Tom's" body and talks to him the same as he would to a human being. In the height of the race, when the contest is at its highest pitch, with Tom slightly on the lead, the driver will lean over and shout:

"Now, you've got him, Tom!" Now you're ahead! "Go it, Tom," and other exclamations, which the old horse
