CLOVER.

It is a little surprising how little clover is sown in this State, when we con sider how admirably well the soil is suited to its growth, and its excellence as a crop for all kinds of stock . In addition to the above considerations, we must not forget that it is also, acknowledged to be one of the best green crops that can be gr:wn, for the purpose of renovating worn out lands. Having long tap roots which strike deep down into the earth and bring up mineral resources that are beyond the reach of other crops, and spreading its broad leaves to the air it draws a large per sent of its growth from these sources. So it is not strange that it should be valuable as a fertilizing plant, when grown and plowed an-

All stock-growing sections, where the business is pursued with anything like success, except on the plains of the West, cultivate this valuable plant, The clover fields of Virginia and Pennsylvania bave long been famous, and the great wealth of these farming sections is attributable to the attention given to clover. Our section may not Sun . be altogether as well adapted to this plant as the sections just named, but it has been sufficiently tried to show that it can be successfully raised. The very nature of our soil-it shows that it is well adapted to clover.

We continually hear complaints of scarcity of money and of there being nothing here to bring money. Now if this is the case, we have no one to blame but ourselves. If the people will put the same amount of labor on their farms raising clover and grass, and raise all the that this would enable them to do. staring red, which makes them appear they would soon make money as plentiful bere as any of the cotton and tobac- the attention, while the plants they co districts. The same rule will apply to all form stock. If stinted while young. they never pay the breeder and feeder a living profit. Hence who do not keep pace with the times are always complaining that there is no money in stock. The big prices paid by the best stock feeders are for animals that have had their digestive organs kept intact by early and properly nutrtious foud. The value of a food animal lies in its aptitud, to lay on flesh, and those kept steadily growing from birth will continue this growth and increase in profitable weight. To do this in the most enconomical monner, the digestive organs must be eriginally strong and unimpaired by abuse .- Prairie Farmer,

The best time to custrate the male tigs is at from four to six weeks of oge or, at least, before wearing time. They seldom suffer any perceptible check in their growth when the operation is performed at this time, and they will be more easily managed than if permitted to run entire. The sexual desire is developed very early in the male pig; and when a lot of younger boars are per mitted to run together, their fretting not unfrequently seriously retards growth. Besides, the dauger from custration increases with the age of the pig after he is ain weeks old.

The combined wisdom of the legislature having repealed the 'dog laws,' and not having given us the . better one, the above text is peculiarly applicable to the sheep-raisers of Tennessee. The merits of the law recently repealed will not be discussed, but as the sheep owners have to be a law unto themselves, the following is suggested, and when if enforced will be found to work well and effectively.
