The toppling down of this great impersonation of sectional bitterness only waited for the coming of some great movement which would act as a solvent of passion and prejudice. And such a movement came in terest, is an old question but legitimate business, would oppose the lowering the rate to the extent of rendering the borrowing of money uncertain, or educating both the lender and borrower to practice evasion. What should be the rate of interest, is an old question but such a movement came in terest, is an old question, but the form of the Farmers' Allihistory teaches that nearly evance, with its evangel of equal ery country which has taken rights for all, its gospel of industrial fraternity, its crusade against haughty aggregations of wealth and power; and lo! the mighty embodiment of passion and hate falls at its touch, as falls the house of cards at the magician's touch in the mimic show. The Alliance came with show. The Alliance came with its declaration that this country A Judge and Jury Combination. is one, and all citizens are brethren; and, straightway John James Ingalls, with his tongue of blistering fire in the Senate of the United States, be-and we say it most earnestly, that we want our fellow-citizens of the South to learn the lesson that this great man's fall teaches. We want them to learn this without disaster, if they will, but learn it they must and shall, that the passions and prejudices begotten of the war shall not dominate our political and social life any longer. What our brethren of Kansas have done for Mr. Ingalls, we of the South intend to do for all the old war leaders who show an incapacity to rise above the sectional questions which have so long divided and harmed our common country. We cannot live upon a regimen of hate and spite; and we shall show to the world that we will not longer try so to Again, we say that it is not in us to exult over a fallen foe. We have only adverted to the overthrow of this man to point the useful lesson which it teaches. We most devoutly wish that Mr. Ingalls may find it possible to correct the one fatal mistake of his life, and so find an entrance into some place of future usefulness in his country's service.

The tonnago charge on ferti-lizers takes the place of the old license on each brand, is to pay for the necessary expenses con-nected with the fertilizer control. It is a protection to the farmer to have this control, otherwise millions of dollars' worth of fraudulent and adulterated fertilizers will be sold to Evasion of the Law Should Not Be fincounged.

We say, without the slightest affectation, that we are sorry for Senator Ingalls. briefs. the slightest affectation, that we are sorry for Senator Ingalls, as he sits among the ruins of his political fortunes and broods over the darkening futuae. Here is a man of rare, wonderful gifts; a man of marvelous powers of mind; a man of accurate and liberal scholarship; a man of large knowledge of the political history of his country; a man of extended and profound experience in all that pertains to legislative proceedure; a man of wonderful facility in the use of elegant and forceful language; a man whose oratory would not suffer greatly in comparison with that of Burke or of Chatham; a man whose State has honored him for two decades of years with its highest positions of confidence and trust, stricken down in the midst of his years and usefulness and loft is a day legislating of the law fixing the price of money. And it is equally as sound a principle, that those who have moneny to lend should not be encuraged by the low rate of interest to send it out of the State for higher prices, or make up the difference between the established legal rate and the value of their money elsewhere by charging a bonus on what is loaned. Any law that tends to bring about such a condition in business undermines the morals of society and is destructive of fair dealing. It is important, then, that the legislator when legislating on the subject of interest should keep in his mind the above principles, and withhold his vote from the support of any measure the tendency at which is to destroy respect for the law. his years and usefulness and left in a desolation that is almost pitiable. The payment of reasonable pensions, on account of wounds actually received and diseases actually contracted in the military or naval forces in time of war, is just and right in itself, war, is just and right in itself, and is, moreover, the wisest policy that can be adopted by a government which relies for its defense almost exclusively upon the voluntary services of its citizens; but the gratuitous distribution of public money among certain classes of the people is neither just nor consistent with the character of our institutions.
