THE news from St. Petersburg is to the effect that fourteen millions of peasants are starving in the Czar's empire. It is estimated that it will take over $100,000,000 to relieve the people in distress. For three years crops have fallen short of the average and the deficiency of the past season left the store-houses well nigh empty.

SENATOR Vance has introduced a bill in the Senate to repeal all acts discriminating in taxation against the circulating notes of State banks.

ATLANTIC ELECTROTYPE—Gentlemen: For the past five years my wife has been a sufferer from dyspepsia. So completely did the disease make a wreck of her former self that life was almost despaired of. Her nervous system was almost entirely destroyed, and the slightest noise would throw her into a nervous spasm, which would last for hours. Medical skill failed to bring any relief.

Upon the recommendation of an eminent divine we were induced to try the Electrotype. After a persistent use of the instrument, the effect has been wonderful. Her nervous system has been restored to its almost normal condition; her digestion is wonderfully improved; she is rapidly gaining in flesh; and, upon the whole, is making a rapid recovery, which speaks volumes for the wonderful curative powers of the Electrotype, as her case was considered hopeless. If any are skeptical on the subject, let them try the Electrotype, and its wonderful powers will quickly dispel all doubt.

Yours truly,
W. M. PROBST.

THE CEDAR FORK FLAG.

AN OHIO LAWYER, WHO HAS THE FLAG DESIRES TO RETURN IT.

INCIDENTS CONNECTED WITH IT.

We reproduce the Speeches Made at the Presentation Nearly Thirty-Two Years Ago.

WAVERLY, Ohio, Jan. 22.—(Correspondence State Chronicle.)—Some time in 1863, and while in the service, as Major of the 73rd regiment Ohio volunteer infantry, in front of Washington, D. C., and while out on a special expedition with about a hundred men, there fell into my hands, a silk flag, on the side of which was the inscription, "Presented by the Ladies of Cedar Fork to the North Carolina Greys." On the other side is the coat of arms of the State with the inscription, "The Old North State." On taking this flag to the Brigadier Commander, I was told to keep it, and it has been in my possession ever since, and is in a tolerably good state of preservation. When in Raleigh near the close of the war, I, with others of my regiment, including our regiment's band called upon the then Governor of the State—Governor Holden, I believe, and learned from him that Cedar Fork was a few miles only from the Capital, and that the company—"the North Carolina Greys" was the first Confederate company organized in the State. I then said to the Governor that I would return the flag to the ladies of Cedar Fork, whenever a company should be there organized to sustain the Union. Without exacting this or any other condition, I now propose to return the flag to the survivors of the "North Carolina Greys" or to whomsoever they as a company may designate.

Last fall, Capt. D. M. White, of Texas, returned the sword of the late General Sill, at this place, to the survivors of the 33d Ohio regiment, and his presence here and the good effect upon the thousands present, who witnessed the affecting ceremonies on that occasion, is probably the reason that I now am writing you this letter. Should you insert this in your paper, will you please mail me a copy.

THOS. W. HUGGINS.

The Chronicle then published this item in regard to this flag: Sheriff M. W. Page, who was First Lieutenant in the Cedar Fork company during the war, tells the Chronicle that the flag presented by the ladies of Cedar Fork company, which Maj. Higgins, of Ohio, proposes to return, was not captured in battle. After the battle of Manassas the Cedar Fork company sent their baggage to Fredericksburg by a farmer of that section, who proved untrustworthy and either sold or in some other way got rid of the baggage. In one of the trunks thus lost was the flag presented to the company by the ladies of Cedar Fork. Capt. York, of Chatham county, was captain of this company and Sheriff Page was First Lieutenant. Upon receiving the flag, the sheriff made his maiden speech, and naturally was much interested in the letter of Maj. Higgins and it will revive in him and all the Cedar Fork people, pleasant memories of the days that ushered in the dreadful Civil war.

As Cedar Fork is only some few miles from Durham, and as some are now living who were members of the company, the above will prove of interest. It revives a memory of the incidents of the time when the flag was presented by Miss Fanny Lyon, now Mrs. Dr. W. M. Lowe. The presentation took place at Morrisville, on Saturday the first day of June, 1861—now nearly thirty-two years ago. We reproduce the speeches made on that occasion, taken from the Raleigh Standard of June 8th, 1861. Mrs. Lowe, nee Miss Fanny Lyon, in the presence of a large concourse of people addressed the North Carolina Greys as follows:

GENTLEMEN:—I have been commissioned by the young ladies of Cedar Fork, to present to the brave sons of this vicinity, this beautiful ensign. Indeed, it charms me that I have the pleasure of presenting to this, I must say beautiful and brave men of N. C., this ensign—showing to the world the eagerness of the young ladies in assisting their brothers, and attached friends, in the defence of their country. We can help only by our prayers—we regret very much that we cannot help them more.

For the good of your country, you have shown a laudable desire to leave your institutions of learning, various occupations, and the many pleasant associations which you have formed here, and go to the distant part of the country, to aid in the defence of our rights, and while many a tear of friendship, of sympathy, shall flow for the brave and noble sons of this company, we promise you our kindest wishes, our sympathies and our prayers. Be of good cheer! do not fall, or be crushed in the hands of despair.

I have one dear brother—with all the timidity due my sex, I am ready to offer up in defence of our country's rights and honor; not with grief, but thanking God that I have one brother to offer. May he, and this noble company, prove to be faithful, intelligent and chivalrous sons of the South.

When the direful contest is over, and the patriotic husbands, brothers and friends return, the ladies of Cedar Fork will meet you with a tear of joy, the smile of welcome, the bosom of delight, and the embraces of pure and unsullied affection.

In behalf of our society, I now present to the N. C. Greys, this beautiful flag. We bid you all, GOD SPEED.

At the close of this address, Lieut. M. W. Page accepted the flag, in the following beautiful language:

MISS LYON, LADIES, GENTLEMEN, AND SOLDIERS IN ARMS:

The touching and eloquent language in which you have just presented, through me, to the N. C. Greys a flag bearing the name of North Carolina thereon, calls forth a response in so full and patriotic a strain, that I fear I cannot convey to you the hearty expression of the recipients. You have, indeed, breathed so earnest a prayer, and presented such forcible language for the ultimate success of that flag, as to no doubt inspire a greater and bolder intent into the breast of every soldier in this company, to ever keep that flag high above the reach of its enemies. Indeed, I feel as a son of Carolina, a sensation of laudable pride in behalf of the rights and liberties of her citizens, excited within my breast by the fervid patriotism this day breathed by you as a fair daughter of Carolina; and when this company shall have gone from this place, to engage in the great conflict of liberty or oppression, life or death, a glance at that flag as it may float in the breeze will cheer and refresh the wearied step, nerve the drooping arm, and give an impetus to a glorious triumph that knows no end, save only in death. Not that we desire to revel in the banquet of death—to unsheath our sword, and return it to its scabbard, crimsoned with the blood of our fellow-men—to unfurl our banner, and under its broad folds seek and wage a war for mere name or glory. No, no; we desire only, and that to the last extent, to repulse, to scatter, to confound, and if needs be, to destroy the assassins of our peace and happiness.

—We desire, EVEN TO A GREATER DEGREE, that peace and security which we have hitherto enjoyed. —Hence, the sound of war, rolling as distant thunder again echoing and reverberating throughout our country's length and breadth, has aroused and excited a manly and patriotic defence for our homes, our firesides, and our liberties. Now, the peaceful pursuits of life are laid aside—the land, in part, forgets her tillage, and the scholar has laid aside his letters, the mechanic ceases his inventions, and in lieu thereof, the burning sword, the flashing bayonet, the pomp and splendor of military grandeur loom up to the astonished eye—for so sudden, indeed, is the transition from peace to war, that the bewildered multitude seem for a moment shocked, if not paralyzed. But as gallant sons of Carolina, as we rush to and engage in the mighty struggle, our motto shall ever be "to aim well, to aim high, to aim at the mark;" and when victory shall have perched upon our banner, when our patriotism shall be lost only in the full, expansive, triumphant vindication of our rights; then with magnanimous hearts, we will teach our enemies acts of generosity, that they may admire bravery the more. We will teach them to know that we have drank freely from the stream of liberty, and that our object is to crush tyrants and oppressors, to meet them upon the threshold, to smite their chief, Abe Lincoln, howling to his masters, the Black Republicans, and to crush him, and to crush them—thereby giving peace, security, and happiness to our beloved land. We will teach them to know, that, that flag, borne aloft by steady arms and fiery hearts, will not, nor shall not, if it is the will of God, tremble in the darkest hour, only as nature's breath may change its folds. It may be tattered and torn, but still as the emblem of our nation, a star of the first magnitude, blazing in all its glory, amidst the pomp and carnage of deadly conflict, it must and shall flash on as an incentive to truth, greatness and glory. Female valor has placed it in our hands, female valor has watered it with the tear of affection; yes, the fair matrons and daughters of Wake county, who are now participating in this thrilling scene, have confided it to our care, with the ardent prayer that not one star may be dimmed, one stripe obscured, but that it may gather renewed freshness and beauty amidst each battle's shock, amidst the loud cannon's roar, and the crimson tide, as it may gush free and fast as the last seal of patriotic defence.

We accept the flag. It must not—it cannot—it shall not trail in the dust. And when the storm of war shall be hushed in the stillness of a peaceful calm—when our people shall cease from the tumult of deadly strife, and all nature seem again to smile propitious, then indeed, shall generation after generation, as they rise up and pass onward to the shores of the untrodden world, admire and applaud the valor of the fair matrons and mothers of the present day, and under the shadow of their country's flag, rejoice in the protection it affords.

The Chatham Record, is noticing the relic, winds up by saying: "We suggest that its return be celebrated in grand style at Morrisville and that Maj. Higgins be invited to deliver the flag in person and receive the personal thanks of the survivors of the old company." We second the motion.

The late Chilian unpleasantness has no doubt cost Uncle Sam a good deal of money. The bills are not all in yet and the exact figures are not at hand, but whether they aggregate $2,000,000 or $4,000,000, the money perhaps has not been wasted. To that extent our naval defenses are in a more forward stage of advancement and the country in a corresponding better condition for making war or resisting invasion. That our misunderstanding with Chili is likely to be settled without further cost is no argument against the expenditure that has already been made. On the contrary this very outlay may have been the means of saving the Government an immensely larger expenditure, and has been the means of diffusing more accurate ideas of the resources and capabilities of the United States to which other nations have heretofore been strangers. It has given the country greater confidence in itself, and at the same time materially strengthened the Navy at points that, under ordinary circumstances, waiting upon the slow motions of Congress, would in all probability have long continued weak.

The decision of the United States Supreme Court Tuesday relative to the right of newspapers containing lottery advertisements to circulate through the mails, settles the question against the newspapers. The suit was a test one, brought by the proprietors of the Mobile Register and New Orleans Picayune, and the Court having decided that the anti-lottery legislation of Congress is not repugnant to the constitution, newspapers that persist in publishing lottery advertisements will have to refrain from sending their papers through the mails, otherwise they will incur the heavy penalties imposed by the law.

The code of rules has been adopted by the House, and now we may look for the introduction of the Durham Public Building Bill at any time. We hope it will be considered favorably. Durham certainly needs that building.

MR. WILLIAMS' BILL.

To Impose a Graduating Tax Upon Incomes over $5,000.

Whereas the farmers and laboring classes of our country have been paying an unjust and unequal taxation, imposed upon them by the Government, and are demanding of their Representatives in Congress some measure of relief; and Whereas taxes for the support of the Government, should be imposed upon the citizens of the United States fairly and justly, so that all should bear the burden of taxation in proportion to their ability to pay, with equal and exact justice to all and special privileges to none: Therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress, assembled,

That every person, firm, estate, or corporation residing or domiciled in the United States whose annual income shall be five thousand a year and upward, derived from any source whatever, shall be assessed and required to pay income tax as follows, the same to be collected by the collectors of internal revenue, and paid annually into the Treasury of the United States, to wit: On five thousand dollars up to ten thousand dollars, one per centum of said income; ten thousand dollars to twenty-five thousand dollars, two per centum of said income; twenty-five thousand dollars to fifty thousand dollars, three per centum of said income; fifty thousand dollars to seventy-five thousand dollars, five per centum of said income; seventy-five thousand dollars to one hundred thousand dollars, six per centum of said income; one hundred thousand dollars to two hundred thousand dollars, eight per centum of said income; and all over two hundred thousand dollars, ten per centum of said income.

Sec. 2. That the tax hereinbefore provided for shall be assessed annually upon said income for the year ending the thirtieth day of June, shall be levied annually on the first day of August in each and every year, and be due and payable on or before the first day of November in each year; and in addition to any sum annually due and unpaid after the first day of November, there shall be levied and collected as penalty the sum of five per centum on the amount unpaid, and interest on said amount at the rate of one per centum per month from the time the same became due, except from the estates of deceased or insane persons.

Sec. 3. That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall from time to time, as he may deem it necessary, issue regulations for the assessment and collection of the taxes hereby imposed, and for the carrying into effect the provisions of this act.

NEVER, probably in the history of the world, has any disease had such universal prevalence as the "grip" at this time. Never before was the truth of the adage that "Death is no respecter of persons," been more apparent. Wars and pestilences are always to a degree local. They are confined usually to one country or a few countries, but this influenza now rages almost all over the region north of the torrid zone from Asia west, covering the countries of both continents to the Pacific ocean. The palace and hotel are equally open to it, and no amount of medical skill seems able to check its ravages, or to bar the entrance of the "Fell Destroyer" which walks in the wake of the disease. The victims are largely persons advanced in years or unfeebled by disease, but the young and vigorous are by no means exempt.

The first regular passenger train over the Roanoke & Southern railroad from Roanoke to Winston-Salem, was put on yesterday. The people up there rejoice very greatly. You just wait until the Norfolk & Western takes charge of the L. & D.,—March first—and gets everything in good shape, you will see some humming down this way in railroading. This will make three great systems of railroads coming into Durham—all three separate and distinct corporations.

Chicken thieves are very annoying around Charlotte.

Blind Partisanship.

The Voice, a prohibition newspaper of New York, has unearthed some very damaging things against postmasters in different parts of the country, which is of vital importance to every newspaper publisher.

All of us have more or less complaint from abroad regarding the failure to receive papers. This is from various causes—sometimes misdirected, sometimes carelessness—but we did not know it was such cussedness as the Voice has found out.

The postmasters named have taken it upon themselves to send the Voice back with the statement that the subscribers refused to receive them, when letters to the editor positively assert that they gave no such orders and wanted the paper sent on.

At North Branch, Minn., the postmaster sent the whole package back with the reason "very few Prohibitionists live in this town," when letters from there state that he was not authorized to send them back.

These high-handed outrages and resort to crime by refusing to deliver papers paid for, have occurred at the Skinnersville, N. C., postoffice—the only one reported in this State—and from many postoffices in New Hampshire, Ohio, Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

What will Mr. Wanamaker say to such political trickery—for it is nothing more nor less—in his servants which are the servants of the people as well?

When postmasters refuse to deliver, or interfere with their delivery, papers which have been paid for, properly addressed and posted, because they do not agree with the politics of the sender, the Voice did well in raising its voice and entering a protest loud and long for every lover of free institutions. Such a misguided spirit of partisanship threatens the very existence of free government.

These self-dictatorial postmasters should be taken down and out and dumped on the ash pile. They are not fit to occupy public offices.

The House Committee on the election of President, Vice-President, and Congressmen, by formal vote has approved the principles that United States Senators should be elected by the people of the respective States. The question of the details of an amendment to the Constitution to effect this purpose was referred to a special meeting. "While the principle that Senators should be elected by the people," said Chairman Chipman, "seems to be very strong in the House, and a large number of bills have been introduced with that view, there is a difference of opinion as to whether the constitutional amendment should leave the method of electing Senators optional with the several States, or should be compulsory on all of them. Which position will be adopted by the committee we are unable to say, but we believe a bill will be reported embodying some plan on the subject.

NOTE Durham's mortuary report for January, please; you who are wont to harp on this not being a healthy town. Not one death. One burial in the cemetery—the death occurred out of town.

To Joseph P. Caldwell, who has just taken the editorial chair of the Charlotte Chronicle. May you ever receive that cordial, hearty and liberal support to which your ability and energy entitle you.

THAT was a flattering notice given the SUN by brother Dibrell, of the Southern Tobaccoist, of Richmond. It is appreciated, because it is voluntary and a kind expression and recognition of our honest endeavors.

It is to be hoped that the House will get through discussing the rules one of these days and give the Durham Federal Building bill a chance to get through and breathe the breath of life.

It is said that silverware furnishes one of the most reliable means of detecting detective drainage. If it is covered with a black coating or tarnish soon after being cleaned, and after a second or third cleaning again becomes darkened, one may be certain that there is something wrong with the drainage system of the house.
