Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. Porous Pfister. Sold by R. BLACKWELL & SON.

STRANGE things are happening. A religious convention has just expelled a brother because "he wore a mustach." They did not even raise the question of who planted it upon his lip.

"Oh where are you going my pretty maid?" "To do some shopping," she sweetly said. "And where?" I asked in glad surprise. "Oh, anywhere they advertise."

The wheatfields hereabouts are full of promise.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any preparation known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it needs no word of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach."

CHARLES MARTIN, D. D., New York City. Late Pastor Bloomingdale Reformed Church.

Castoria cures Colds, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhea, Eruption, Kill Worms, gives sleep, and promotes digestion. Without injurious medication.

"For several years I have recommended your 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

EDWIN F. PARKER, M. D., "The Winthrop," 12th Street and 7th Ave., New York City.

JOHNSON'S HORSE AND CATTLE POWDERS.

Are taking the place of all other. They can, with confidence, be given for the cure and prevention of almost all diseases that Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs are subject to.

They increase the flow of milk in Cows on ordinary food. They prevent Cholera in Hogs. They enable your Horse to do one-third more work on same feed, by aiding digestion, improving appetite, and otherwise bringing the animal to a more vigorous and healthy condition. No powder that is best suited for Poultry is a suitable powder for Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. We, therefore, make a special powder for Poultry. Its name is

---CERTAIN AND SAFE---

It increases egg producing, besides keeps the Fowls free from disease.

Testimonials.

DURHAM, N. C., March 20, 1891.

I have used Dr. Johnson's Poultry Powder, and am very highly pleased with its effect on our fowls, making them lay profusely, and keeping them free from disease. I have not used the S. S. Horse Powder, but hearing them so highly spoken of, I intend to try them. MOSES E. McCOWN, M'g'r Stable and Farm, Blackwell Tobacco Co.

DURHAM, N. C.

I have used Johnson's Horse and Cattle Powders on horses and hogs, and find them to be the best powder I ever used. They seem to be all that is claimed for them, and I propose to use no other as long as they are kept up to the present standard as a remedy. G. M. HARDEE, Keeper Livery and Sale Stable.

A WONDERFUL REMEDY.—We are very highly pleased with the effects of Johnson's Stock Powders. They have saved us a thousand times what they cost in curing two or three very valuable horses, that in my candid opinion would have died without them.

W. T. PIERCE,

Stable Manager for the American Tobacco Co., Durham, N. C.

SADLER'S BRYAN & STRATTON COLLEGE

FOUNDED IN 1884 by the present executive—27 YEARS OF DILIGENCE AND SUCCESSFUL MANAGEMENT. Improved annual attendance—now occupying four buildings—blends educational facilities for educating YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN for careers in life. In deciding upon a school for their children, PARENTS should send them to THE BRYAN, because it pays. It may require the expenditure of a few dollars more at first, but it will prove the cheapest in the end. CHEAP tuition is very dear, because it means cheap teachers, cheap apparatus, inferior facilities, and offers no opportunities for securing POSITIONS for its pupils and graduates. This institution, owing to its HIGH standard of excellence, has placed in desirable positions more young men and women from Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, than all similar institutions combined. Catalogue and particulars mailed on application. Address: W. H. SADLER, President, and Treasurer, or F. A. SADLER, Secretary, BUSINESS COLLEGE, 6, 8, 10 & 12 N. Charles St., BALTIMORE, MD.

The Army of Employees.

Should Edmund Randolph, Henry Clay, Webster, or Lewis Cass, Hamilton, Taney, or Howell Cobb, John Marston Thompson, Cabot, Paul Hamilton, or Isaac Toucey, in this good year of the nineteenth century revisit the Departments over which they once presided with so much ease and dignity, they would feel ill at ease among the armies of assistants and employees now engaged to carry on the business of the Government. In those "good old days" of simplicity, before the workings of the Government became so complex and of such dimensions, the heads of the different Departments knew personally their employees. Now it would puzzle even so gigantic a brain as that of Daniel Webster to remember one-fifth of the clerks in any of the larger Departments. He would require a guide to be shown through the different divisions. The Department service has shown marked increase since 1860, and each year the army of clerks grows larger. A large majority of the men who enter the departments remain in the service unless dismissed. Many young men enter with the view of studying for a profession, and the short hours and regular salary offer ample opportunity for this. Some of them carry out their intention and occupy leisure hours reading law or medicine while others lose all ambition for better things. Continued service in the departments has a tendency to make men timid, and many who quit and go out in the world find themselves unfitted to buffet with the rude, rough demands and return to the treadmill existence. Each year more women are added to the department service, and in a few years they will monopolize the clerkships. The life of a department clerk has some attractions and many drawbacks. One thing is certain, his salary, and this is an important item.

FOR SKIN DISEASES

Doctor Recommends Cuticura Because It Has Never Failed to Give Good Results.

Cured in 5 Months, Salt Rheum of 20 Years' Standing Where All Other Remedies Failed.

It gives me pleasure to recommend your CUTICURA REMEDY to all who are troubled with the various forms of skin diseases and blood poison. I have prescribed your CUTICURA on several occasions, and it has never failed to give good results. I remember of one special case I had, where all other remedies failed until I tried your CUTICURA REMEDY. After using CUTICURA, the patient was cured and well. She was troubled with salt rheum, and had been a sufferer for over twenty years. After beginning the use of CUTICURA REMEDY, she was cured and well in three months.

DR. M. E. JENKINS, 228 Houston St., Atlanta, Ga.

Aggravating Eczema
My wife had eczema on her hand for about five years, tried a great many so-called remedies, but they all utterly failed. I at last induced her to try your CUTICURA REMEDY, and am pleased to say they acted like a charm, and although it was a year ago, it has not troubled her since. I will strongly recommend your CUTICURA REMEDY for all such diseases.

A. STUCKMILLER, Bristol, Conn., U.S.A.

Telling a Story.

At the Moody and Sankey meeting in Brooklyn in 1875, we glean the following from an old New York Sun. There are some things that are old, and are not worth publishing, but THE RECORDER believes that it is well to reproduce some things that are past, for it may help the rising generation. Mr. Moody told the following:
"In my own family, when I was a boy only four years old, my father died, and then, because misfortune never comes singly, my mother grew sick, and a little later her eldest son ran away from home. That was a blow that almost killed his mother, but in time she grew strong and well, though there was a hungry look in her eyes that was never satisfied. She used to talk with her children for hours about their father, but when she spoke of her boy she wept. She feared that he was in sickness or in danger, and would have been glad to know that he was dead. Not a day that she did not pray for him; not a child that was left to her so dear as the one that was lost; not a feast day in the year that a vacant chair was not placed for him at the table, and not a day that her dim eyes did not look anxiously down the road. Yet she saw nothing. At last, one summer afternoon, after her hair had been gray for years, she was sitting on the eastern porch, when a great bearded man came trotting through the orchard toward her. In him she did not recognize her son until he stood close to her, with tears streaming from his eyes over his beard. Then with a cry she was on his breast, with her withered arms about his neck, and she sobbed, 'My son, my son, are you home again?' 'Not home, mother,' he replied, 'until you say that you forgive me.' Do you suppose there was haggard over tears there? Do you suppose the mother's heart could grow cold again? No! In this connection, we copy 'a few thoughts' from 'Starlight' in New Journal; though it is a little off from what the great Moody related, still it runs in that chandelier—it touches a tender spot in the human heart: 'Is it possible that a word once spoken can never be recalled, but wings its way to the eternal throne. Aye, our thoughts are known in Heaven. A word once spoken hastens down the vistas of the ages! Acts done are registered with the past never to be undone. The whole course in life of some people has been changed by just a few kind encouraging words or may be some single act of kindness and good cheer. 'Tis an awful thing to review the pages, some blotted and blurred with wrong-doings of our lives and realize that the record of the deeds done on earth will be used in judgment hereafter! what a tremendous thought that man may receive according as he hath done. Again, it matters not how moral in outward life, how upright in our dealings with men, how much money is given to the Church and charitable objects, or how kind to the poor, no matter the crimes committed the one thing needful is to accept Christ as our Saviour or the soul shall be lost forever. Trust in Christ means that the storms of life shall beat only for a time. 'An investment in politeness yields a silent increase. It is a common thought that this loveliest grace belongs to womanliness and manliness alike. Politeness is the grandest thing in life that requires the least sacrifice. It lightens labor, purifies the heart, soothes wounded feelings, inspires kindly sentiments and gives a beautiful coloring to life. The rank of politeness is universal. Everybody can possess it—the poor boy as well as the silk-dress girl. Pleasantness in manner and speech makes intercourse among fellow beings sunshine to the heart. 'Honest courtesy is by just merit the crowning virtue of society. It lifts the human heart like silver oratory and rivals in beauty the grandeur of the brightest star! 'The world should be the better for our living in it. The reasonableness of this state the reader will concede. Whoever proves faithful in the common tasks of our work—a day's existence has supreme heroism. Faithfulness in doing little duties or kindnesses will quicken stimulate the heart to more difficult undertaking and irradiate character.

"When big efforts and high ambitions realized trample underfoot everyday little matters which create blessings for others then man is cheated by his belief that the truest happiness lies in public distinction. To do for the welfare of other people is indeed Christ-like."

An Interesting Financial Suggestion.

In view of the complications of the silver question both IN ESSE ET IN PROSPECTU the Financial Chronicle of New York, the representative of the banking interest and a leading authority upon finance, advocates the repeal of the national tax on state bank notes, and the re-establishment of state banks of issue that a supply of paper money may be had without a useless accumulation of silver bullion. Under the present law there is a daily purchase of seven tons of silver upon which certificates are issued, and were the free coinage theory adopted the difficulties and consequent embarrassments would increase.

To meet this trouble and to give the agricultural classes plenty of money that would be current and safe without an accumulation of silver bullion or free coinage of it, the Chronicle would have congress to relegate the currency question under certain limitations to the states. To effect this take off all tax on the circulation of banks, state and national. Leave each state free to levy a tax to create a fund to redeem the notes of its insolvent banks, etc., provide that no bank should ever have out more circulating notes than two-thirds of its paid up stock, that such notes should be a first lien upon the assets of the bank, that every bank must redeem its notes in coin, and for that purpose should keep on hand 25 per cent. of its issues in gold and silver coin. It is urged that by this means a supply of safe local currency would be created that would stay at home and not be attracted to the financial centres.

This would bring us back to the ante-bellum condition of State and local banks, without the trouble which resulted in those days for the want of an international currency, which would be good everywhere. For this purpose we would still have the coin of the country and the treasury notes for all uses away from home. The above theory looks at least plausible and has the assent of some of the leading men who hold opposite opinions on the silver and other financial questions.

JIM BLAINE has simply played "thunder." In all probability lightning will strike to-day.

He who thinks right does well; he who lives right does better. They are both in the sunshine of life's true success.

It is now conceded by the national leaders, such men as Bruce and Gorman, that Mr. Cleveland has the requisite two thirds majority.

Not all the shafts of malice, nor stings of defamation, nor snarls of envy can wound a man who is armed with a pure heart and an honest purpose.

REPUBLICAN harmony at Minneapolis is of a very interesting quality. It is to be hoped that Democratic harmony at Chicago will not be of a like variety.

GRAND father's hat seems to be somewhat mashed at Minneapolis, but it looks like the wrinkles are being straightened out for complete squashing in November.

THE Democratic National Convention will convene in the city of Chicago Tuesday, June 21. The selection of a candidate who can lead the Democratic party to success ought to engage the most thorough and pains-taking consideration of every delegate to the convention. If we wish to win, we must make a wise choice.

The Insanity Plea.

Now that the plea of insanity in cases of murder and other felonies has become so frequent and so often successful, any light on the subject from scientific experts will be welcome. To hang or otherwise punish an insane man is revolting to the deepest instincts of humanity, and yet we all feel that society must protect its members in some way from the assaults of the criminally insane.

On this subject Dr. H. C. Wood, an eminent insanity specialist of Philadelphia, in a recent address before the State Medical Society has something of interest to say. He has no doubt that "as the result of inheritance, an improperly developed brain may produce an insanity of character, and this insanity of character may be so rooted in nervous disease that it cannot be cured; that vice, nervous disease or alcoholism in the parent may produce an insanity of character in the offspring which shall dominate the whole life of the individual, making him a criminal, who is no more responsible morally, for his acts than a man who suffers from inherited gout for his pain." Dr. Wood also declares "that to punish for the purpose of revenge such a criminal is unchristian, and that to punish with the object of reformation of the criminal, is hopeless, and that to punish with hope of deterring other such criminals is useless." But like all sensible men Dr. Wood thinks that "society has for its bounden duty the protection of its sane members from the criminals," and advises that they be "isolated in criminal asylums rather than prison and never be allowed to go at large unless pronounced cured, and then only under surveillance."

This latter part of Dr. Wood's address is the most important in its practical bearings. That our present mode of dealing with the criminally insane is in much need of amendment does not admit of a doubt.

When a murderer pleads insanity and is acquitted on that ground, he is either turned loose on the community to repeat his crime with impunity, or sent to an insane asylum where he remains a few weeks or months, and is then discharged as cured.

If a man has developed the homicidal mania and is pronounced by a jury irresponsible for his acts, he is too dangerous to go at large. Remember, that the verdict of the jury renders him ever after irresponsible, and he can commit crime without fear of punishment. A man thus above the law and with a propensity to crime is more dangerous than a wild beast. We only disagree with Dr. Wood so far that we would never release him from confinement. No doctor could ever be sure he was cured.

Certainly our laws badly need amendment on this subject.

THE people who do right in this world do right because they love to do right and not because of the penalty attached to wrong as set forth in the tenets of the law. These are hurrying times. Some things get sadly left behind and nothing is so far behind the times as civilization. The law of "must" is inscribed on its banner. That is where the mistake lies. When civilization catches up, the word "must" will be erased and in its place will be another word with a thousandfold more force and meaning. Do you know the word? It is "love."

A CONTEMPORARY in getting up his commentary on June says: "This is the month of roses, conventions, bursted booms, early excursions and wilting shirt collars." He evidently forgot the mid-winter style of convention in vogue in New York and several kinds of booms that have no particular time of the year for bursting.

A CONTRACT for paying of one of the principal streets of Lynchburg with vitrified brick has been awarded at $1.68 per square yard. Why cannot Durham follow the example of Lynchburg and pave one of her principal streets? If we cannot at this time pave all the streets, on the principle that a half loaf is better than no bread, let us pave some of them.

THEY have had a rain of frogs in Missouri and a reign of fools in Kansas. No wonder these States have ceased to attract investors.

THE EVENING SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 8:50 p. m.

The roll of States was ordered for the presentation of candidates for Vice-President.

O'Connor, of New York, presented the name of Whitelaw Reid.

Gen. Horace Porter seconded the nomination of Reid. Reid's name was received with great applause.

Mr. Settle, of Tennessee, presents the name of Thos. B. Reed for Vice-President amid great cheers.

Mr. London, of Virginia, seconded the nomination of Thos. B. Reed.

A delegate from Maine said he was certain Thos. B. Reed would decline.

Mr. London, of Tennessee then withdrew the name of the Ex-Sp. akker and Whitelaw Reid was nominated by acclamation.

Bulletin—at 9:57 p. m. the convention adjourned sine die.

THE HUSTLER, of Henderson, is about the smallest daily paper we have seen in many a day—9x12. It is run by a youth 13 years of age and is a credit to his ability and courage. Many a great man has started life in just such a way—displayed the trend of his mind in little things and followed them up to larger.

The Hustler has our hearty good wishes. John T. Stone is the youthful editor and with perseverance and pluck he will come out all right.

MR. WOLCOTT, said the trouble in the convention came not from the contestants alone "but from two or three thousand office holders who swarm in the corridors of the hotel and haunt the delegates when they ought to be in Washington attending to their business." This was a hard hit.

It has been observed that a cyclone is like three school girls walking abreast—it don't turn out for anything.
