The Labor in Steel.

Philadelphia Times
Mr. Frick, the manager of the Carnegie Homestead works, refused to state to the Congressional committee the labor cost of producing a ton of steel. His answer was: "I don't think that is a fair question."

When it is considered that Mr. Carnegie demands and obtains high protection from Congress in his manufacture of steel, the refusal of his manager and authorized representative to answer the question as to the labor cost of producing steel was insolent and unpardonable.

Just why Mr. Frick refused to answer the committee may be inferred from the answer given to the same question from the committee by Mr. Weihe, President of the Amalgamated Association. He said that "as near as he could estimate the labor cost of a ton of steel at Homestead, it was $1.55," or not more than one-tenth the amount of the tariff levied upon steel, ostensibly to protect labor.

In short, Mr. Frick refuses to tell a committee of Congress the labor cost of a ton of steel because of the tax levied on the protection of American labor. Mr. Carnegie's mills pay say $1 to the workman (assuming that the labor that costs 55 cts. in Europe costs $1.55 here) and pocket from $12 to $15 per ton as employers' profits.

Mr. Frick was silent on the labor cost of steel because he could not tell the truth without proving that the tariff protection on steel is ten times greater than it should be, and that so far from reducing wages, he should double, treble or quadruple wages to give workmen the benefit of the taxes now levied upon the people ostensibly for the benefit of labor.

An Object Lesson.

The tariff lords of the Republican party, who, while claiming American citizenship and the benefits of American protection for the special industries from which they derive their wealth, dwell in hired castles beyond the sea and vie in the splendor of their entertainments and their scale of living with the wealthiest of the British nobility, are just now furnishing a terrible object-lesson in the workings of a protective tariff at home. Pennsylvania has been for years a stronghold of the protectionists. One of the greatest and most valuable of Pennsylvania's many useful and valuable industries is her iron and steel manufactures. One of the most important of these is that carried on by the concern recently consolidated and incorporated as the Carnegie Company of Pittsburgh. One of the chief establishments belonging to the Carnegie concern is that located at Homestead, near Pittsburgh, here the scene of one of the bloodiest and most formidable strikes or "lock-outs" in the history of labor troubles in this country. The question which naturally arises is what necessity, what reason and justification are there under the McKinley bill for the reduction of wages by a great "protected" industry, which has led to these distressing and fatal consequences? The answer of the iron and steel manufacturer ers is that their business is prostrate; that prices are lower than before, and that they cannot afford to pay the wages they have heretofore given. The answer is, how, then, does "protection protect?" The hard facts and figures of trade and statistics, which cannot be contradicted, show that during the past twelve months the prices for raw material have been low, and that the duty on manufactures and products of steel, take, for example, "steel billets," has been prohibitory. If any concern in the country ought to have been benefitted by the McKinley bill Mr. Carnegie's is that one. The proof is that today, with boiling water from hose and pipes, and with bullets from Pinkerton rifles, Mr. Carnegie and his associates have undertaken to meet the protest of their workmen against a reduction of wages. This is an object-lesson in illustration of the benefits of Republican legislation and of a protective tariff, and of the consistency of Republican statesmen, which the people of the United States will not fail to take to heart and ponder.

From Yesterday's Durham Sun. MR. WORD'S FUNERAL.

Took Place this Morning and was Attended by a Large Crowd.
The remains of Mr. Jno. Word, who had the unfortunate accident of falling from a train that was running nearly a mile a minute, and who died in Norfolk Sunday, reached Durham yesterday afternoon about 6 o'clock on a delayed train of the D. & N. They were met at the Corcoran street crossing by a large concourse of people, and conveyed to his residence on Willard street, where the funeral services, conducted by Rev. F. A. Bishop, of Main street church, took place this morning at 10 o'clock. A large number of sympathizing friends were present and accompanied the remains to their last resting place.

The pall bearers were composed of the police force, with the exception of one, and were J. A. Woodall, chief, W. G. Craftree, W. E. Wood, J. P. Cuts, P. B. Check, C. M. Lewter, and P. A. Brown.
Mr. Word's death, surrounded with peculiar sadness, is universally regretted, and his family have the heartfelt sympathy of this community.

TEST OF DEMOCRACY.

Voting for Cleveland According to a Democratic Club.
RALEIGH, N. C., July 16.—The Clinton Caucasian, of which Marion Butler, president of the State Alliance, is the editor, comes out today most earnestly for the Democratic State ticket. He told your correspondent months ago that the Alliance would not vote for Cleveland. He states now that the Democratic club in his county decided in its last meeting that the test of Democracy is voting for Cleveland. He declares that there are thousands of men in North Carolina who will not vote for Cleveland who are better Democrats than many who are trying to prescribe them. Mr. Butler then says that he is for the State ticket, but not for the national. He declares that a man who does not see fit to support Cleveland is entitled to take a part in conventions to nominate county or State officers if he enters the convention in good faith. Butler further says the State Executive Committee should recognize this right, and that by so doing he believes "it can save North Carolina and the State ticket."

A Runaway Marriage.

A romantic matrimonial episode transpired yesterday at the Moseley House, corner of Wilmington and Hargett streets, being the marriage of W. W. Rowe, of Durham, to Miss Emma Thompson, of Vass, Moore county. The contracting parties came to this city to be united for life in order to avoid strong opposition, or to make the matter plain, it was an old fashioned runaway match. They were accompanied by Rev. B. C. Thompson and Miss Claudia Wickler, of Cameron and also by Mr. D. B. Cameron of Durham. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. T. Way, editor of the Jonesboro Monitor.—Raleigh News Observer.

The bride and groom arrived in Durham yesterday afternoon and are boarding at Mr. W. H. Cates.
—Says the Raleigh Chronicle: Mr. Tom Hanks, of Pittsboro, passed through the city on yesterday en route for Durham from whence he will travel in the interest of "Old Chuck" cheroots, which are well worthy to be represented by such a business young man. We heartily commend him to the trade.

The Second Stroke.

About a year ago Mr. B. A. Thaxton, of Centre Grove, Person county, was stricken with paralysis, affecting more or less his whole body. It has been with difficulty that he could articulate, his tongue being partially paralyzed. Mr. J. J. Thaxton received a letter this morning stating that his father has had another stroke recently, and is now unable to move his hands or feet. He is getting along in years and we very much regret to hear that his declining days are attended by such afflictions.

Didn't Practice What he Preached.

One of the resolutions adopted at the Third party meeting last Saturday was that "we will not vote for any man who will not pay his honest debts." The News knows one of the men who voted for that resolution. He voted for it with a whoop, and yet he owes an honest note for $100. The note was finally put in the hands of a lawyer for collection and when the lawyer tried to collect it, this man who voted for the Huntersville resolution said: "Go ahead and collect it. I am not worth the home-stead. Cut your patch to fit."—Charlotte News.

SAD DROWNING.

Two Young People are Lost While Boat Riding.

From a correspondent at Franklinville, who was thoughtful enough to send us the facts, we learn of a most distressing accident at that place yesterday.

Mr. Henry Parks and Miss Maud Curtis, formerly of this place, were out boat riding. When some distance from the shore boat was turned over or sank with them, drowning both. The water at the point where they were capsized is some twenty feet deep and there was no help near.

As they sank for the last time parties from the shore, who were powerless, having no boat or means of reaching them, saw them go to a watery grave clasped in each other's arms, face to face.

Three hours later they were found some distance down the stream, still clinging to each other, though cold in death.

It was indeed a sad affair, and, as our correspondent adds, "threw a dark cloud over our entire community." Miss Curtis was here on the 4th of July, and we heard at that time was making preparation for her marriage, and it is probable that Mr. Parks was her intended husband, though we have no positive information to that effect. She was about 18 or 19 years of age, and Mr. Parks was probably 23.—Greensboro Record, 18th.

A LAWN PARTY.

Given in Honor of Three Charming Young Ladies.

The lawn around Capt. E. J. Parrish's elegant home, on Dillard street, presented a scene of rare loveliness last evening. From the trees and verandas were suspended many brilliant Japanese lanterns, while waxen candles of every hue and shade were arranged around the fountain, on the fence, in the shrubbery, in fact in every available place. The premises were brilliantly lighted, and a bright young maiden said it looked like some grand fête in fairy land. The occasion was a lawn party given by several young men, complimentary to Miss Mamie Gray, of Winston, Misses Annie Watts and Lillie Parrish, of this city. There were about a dozen couples present.

Delicious refreshments, consisting of cream, cake and fruits, were daintily served in cosy nooks and corners, or wherever a couple were found, about the lawn. The young people present say it was one of the most delightful affairs ever given in our city and they all had a charming time.

That was a narrow escape, wasn't it? You know he was just about to marry a girl when he found she spent $1500 a year on dress. "Yes, but he's married, all the same." "True, but he married her dressmaker."

The sailboat and rowboat capsizing season has been a little backward on account of the weather, but efforts are apparently being made to rush the crop.

"I was prostrated with a severe bilious complaint," writes Erastus Southworth, of Bath, Me. "After vainly trying a number of remedies, I was finally induced to take Ayer's Pills. I had scarcely taken two boxes when I was completely cured."

As the first session of the fifty-second congress draws to an end feverish haste and activity begin to characterize the proceedings, and this may naturally be expected to wax warmer and fiercer as the week runs on. The friends of various measures that have long reposed peacefully on the calendars, will make their last desperate efforts to secure action on their favorite bills. But in both houses everything must give way to the appropriation bills, for word has gone out that the session will end as soon as these are disposed of and everybody is anxious to get away from the capital.

The common expectation is that the session will end next Saturday or the following Monday at the latest.

From the nature of the present situation we must admit that we see little prospect of the Durham Federal Building Bill passing that body at this session. We regret this. Our people were in great hopes of it going through. We wanted the building. It was need here.

Mr. J. O. Foy has sold the Winston daily and weekly Sentinel to Wm. F. Burbank, late of California, but more recently of New York. Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

REFERRING to ex President Cleveland's reply to Mrs. Mary F. Ormsby relative to the use of Mrs. Cleveland's name as the title of a woman's political club, the Philadelphia Inquirer (Rep.) says: "We congratulate Mr. Cleveland for his manly course in insisting that women shall continue to occupy her more exalted sphere of mistress of the household, and shall not be compelled to descend to the level of politics, where she could do no good and her influence in her own sphere would be lessened."

THERE has been a volcanic eruption on the island of Sangir, one of the Philippine group, and most of the inhabitants have been killed.

A native from the Talantse Islands, who landed at Solangen four weeks ago, brought a remarkable story to the effect that several other natives who returned to Belangen from a voyage near Sangir said they were prevented from landing by the sights of mountains belching forth smoke and fire.

They reported that the "whole island was on fire." The water along the coast was full, they said, of half burned wreckage, pieces of houses and charred bodies. The whole population, estimated at about 12,000, seemed to have been swept into the sea or burned.
