The Contrast Has been Supplied.

The Democratic party in North Carolina suffered in the last election from two potent disintegrating influences, to-wit: (1) internal dissensions and (2) the lack of a contrast. In fact, the latter largely accounts for the former and almost of itself sufficiently accounts for defeat.

The days of '68-'70-'76 were a long ways behind. An unbroken series of victories for eighteen years lay behind the Democratic party. To thousands of its older followers Republican domination was a memory and to hosts of its younger members only a hearsay. A feeling of security discounted danger, and in an hour of presumption bitter factions arose and grew more and more bitter. The time had come for the party's defeat and it was defeated.

But there need be no dissensions next year. Those who wanted to see Ransom beaten, saw him go down with the rest of us. Those who wanted to see Jarvis beaten, if it wrecked the whole State, ought to be satisfied with the results. The way is open now for all Democrats to get together. New men, unencumbered by bitter factional affiliations should be sought out and will be sought out as standard-bearers. As for the contrast, the State got it in the last Legislature, and the people will get it from now on. The contrast will be emphasized every court week in nearly every county in the State until next election, to say nothing of what may be expected in some of the magistrates' courts. The contrast is here. The State already has a bad taste in its mouth and will spit it out next year.

The New Fashion Magistrates.

We are informed by those of authority in the fusion legislature, that the appointment of the additional three magistrates in each township will not incur additional expense, as there is no provision to furnish them with the Code and other instructions. This is a remarkable freak of reform. Do they expect our plain every-day people to know the laws and dispense justice in obedience to laws, when they have never seen a law book, have never had any use for one, and will now have to conduct the office without any guide whatever? Can we reasonably expect a correct and proper administration of the law? What, then, was the office created for? Is it simply a bid for fusion votes, without regard to the intelligent administration of justice and law?

Practical Wooling.

A young Birmingham lady, who was the recipient of attention from two young men equally eligible in point of good looks, social position, and financial solidity, and entertained similar feelings for both, was in a quandary as to which to choose, should they propose.

A friend to whom she confided her difficulty suggested that she should put both to some test to prove the strength of their affection.

She took the advice, and to the first who avowed his affection said:

"You tell me that you love me. How do I know that you are sincere? What would you do to show your love?"

"Anything," replied the ardent lover, who had a spice of romance in his disposition. "Anything. I would go to the world's end for you; I would endure any suffering for you; I would die for you if necessary."

Such ardent protestations caused blushes to come to her cheeks and a thrill of happiness to her heart, and she thought that certainly no one could love her more fondly than he did.

She asked, however, for a little delay before giving him an answer to his suit.

Meanwhile the other proposed and she questioned him in like manner.

"Well," said he, "I'll tell you what I would do to show my love for you. If you marry me you shall have good clothes to wear. I will see that you are always the owner of a handsome sealskin jacket, and that your hats or bonnets are always in fashion, and I will be a faithful and loving husband to you."

"But wouldn't you go to the world's end for me, or any of that sort of thing, you know?" she asked as she toyed with his coat buttons.

"I don't want to go to the world's end," he replied, "I've got a nice paying business here; and as for dying for you, I'd rather live with you."

"Well," said she, as visions of the sealskin jacket and fashionable bonnets flashed before her mind, "I think you can speak to that."

The practical wooer is the man for times.

Things the People Want to Know.

What Marion Butler thinks of the new mortgage law?

Why the Big Five don't explain how it passed?

What it costs a foreign board of trade to get through such a bill?

Whether the recent Legislature was really a cross between the penitentiary and the insane asylum?

If all reforms consist in exchanging old abuses for new and worse ones?

Why Fusionists benignly do everything that they denounce in the wicked Democrats?

Why the Populists and Republicans of North Carolina have agreed to commit suicide in each others arms?

What will be the next obnoxious "sneak" bill to be discovered among the acts of the Douglass Legislature?

Whether the farmers propose to stand meekly by and see all their credit ruined without a murmur?

Curing Bacon.

Persons who killed a supply of pork the past fall and winter are just now specially interested in its preservation from the ravages of insects with the advent of warmer weather. We print Commissioner Robinson's method below:

"To prepare bacon for summer keeping in this climate, very much more care is required from the time of killing up to the time of storing away, than is necessary in states farther north. Thoroughly expelling the animal heat before salting is indispensable, and hogs should not be butchered except on cold days. The salting must be heavy to preserve the meat, but no previous precautions will be of any avail unless the dry meats, such as hams, shoulders and middles, are canvassed early in such a manner as to make them thoroughly fly proof. Each piece should be well wrapped in coarse paper and be tightly sewed up in heavy cotton cloth, cut to fit it, and then dipped in thick colored lime wash and be hung in as dry and cool a place as possible.

Smoking and sprinkling with pepper are both good for a finish in curing, but are no protection against damage from flies."

It will be well to remember that a rather slow process of smoking is better than forcing. Some of the very best cures of bacon recommend smoking half day at a time for a week. The slow process allows the meat to keep a more desirable color, and no doubt, penetrate deeper and cures or seasons meat better.

General News.

They may succeed in reducing the price of the telephone service, but they will never be able to thaw out the voice of the young women who inform us that the lines are in use.—Washington Post.

The Rev. Sam Jones refuses to identify himself with either of the great parties. This is the worst blow democracy has had in many years.—Cincinnati Tribune.

The Maine legislature has played the old familiar trick on the woman suffragists. The house of representatives passed the bill giving the ballot to women, and the senate promptly defeated it.—Providence Journal.

We believe than the legislature should do more for Florida's citizen soldiery than ever has been done. Precisely what changes are desirable in the form of organization and in the regulations, and what sums of money are necessary are questions to be settled by the legislature acting under expert advice.—Florida Citizen.

The speculation as to whether Hawaii will send us another minister to succeed Thurston, or whether she will allow the post to remain vacant and give Minister Willis his passports, is not a very interesting one. It is probably too much to hope that Hawaii will discontinue all diplomatic relations with us. This is not within the scheme of the Dole crowd at Honolulu, and their confederates in the United States, whose one aim is to bring about much closer relations between Hawaii and this country—as close indeed as the relations between the hand and the pocket it picks.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Rabbi Krauskopf is one of the most eminent of American Jews. He has gained distinction as a philanthropist and as a lover of his race. He has just entered suit in the Philadelphia courts to restrain the incorporation of a Jewish Republic Club. The grounds of his complaint are that the club is of the nature of a religious-political organization; that it is calculated to excite religious prejudices; that it disavours a sound public policy, in that it tends to the union of the church and state; and that its objects are inconsistent with the well being of the community. It is hoped Rabbi Krauskopf may succeed. Nothing is more abhorrent to those who have the right ideas of American citizenship than attempts to mix religion or nationality with politics.—Memphis Appeal.

Governor Carr has offered a reward of $100 for Moses Pender, of Elgecombe county.

The deaf and dumb school of Morganton has bought out a broom factory and the children are busy making brooms. Asheville Citizen: Dr. P. L. Murphy, superintendent of the state hospital at Morganton, will probably have charge of the sanitarium that it is proposed to build in Charlotte.

Asheville Citizen: Chief W. H. Deaver of the North State Detective agency has received a card from C. L. Jenkins of Buncombe in which it is stated that J. R. and Newart Kelly, who were convicted of attempting to assassinate Mr. Jenkins at Hartsville, S. C., some months ago, have been sentenced to three years in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $300.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Thomas Jefferson was the author of the Monroe doctrine. What is called the "Holly Alliance" of Europe, formed ostensibly in the interest of religion, was really an alliance on the part of the great powers of Europe to hold their American possessions against the growing power of the young republic known as the United States. James Monroe was president. Thomas Jefferson had gone to Monticello, his country seat, to enjoy the honors of a well-spent life. Monroe wrote for his opinion. He gave it. It was to let European matters alone, but when they sought territory in America, to pursue a vigorous policy of self protection. The reasons are plain to anyone familiar with the geography of this country. England could land her forces in Canada or South America. Spain in Cuba or South America without Moles station. Cuba is an important point. Thomas Jefferson said the United States ought to own Cuba. Cuba is in revolt today.

The state department has been recently advised that three shipments of arms have been made within the past few weeks from the United States to the insurgents in Cuba. In one case the arms were sent from Philadelphia to Savannah. They were transferred at that point to a small fishing smack of ten or fifteen tons burden and carried to the east coast of Cuba, to the Province of Santiago de Cuba, which is the hotbed of the revolution.

These fishing vessels are so small that they can hover about the shore until the coast is clear, and then make a landing at any one of a score of safe points. The administration, it is said, is doing all in its power to prevent the shipment of these contrabands of war, but it is claimed, they are being made constantly. The appointment of Gen. Martines Campos, the commander-in-chief of the Spanish army in Cuba, is regarded here as meaning a vigorous prosecution of the rebellion from this time. Campos is a stern old veteran of many wars, and will use the most repressive measures in order to check the growing tide of insurrection.

But Spain is torn with internecine troubles. Now is the time for Cuba to be free and to annex herself to the United States. Hon. Wm. C. Whitney, one of the foremost democrats in this country, has announced himself as unreservedly in favor of an aggressive foreign policy. Europe has no business with one square inch of American territory. Spain has removed the naval officer who ordered the Alliance to be fired on, but this is a ruse, for Spain cannot afford to antagonize the U. S. now. It is as much as she can do to take care of Cuba and her internal dissensions.

Something important is on foot. Senator Ransom, Hon. John S. Henderson, Mr. Blackhall, Josephus Danie's and several others are here.

Another Hardship.

Another instance where the law will work a hardship is this says the Charlotte News: Frequently a man in business, being temporarily pressed, says to his friend, "Unless I can immediately get the sum of $500 or $1000, I must go under. Lend me that amount and if anything happens I will protect you." The money is lent, the crisis passed and the man is saved from business ruin. But with this statute staring him in the face, the banker or friend cannot take the risk, knowing that he cannot be protected in case of disaster.

There is likely, also, to be much loss or litigation growing out of mortgages, deeds of trust or assignments made since the 13th day of March, for the existence of the act was not known.

Evident Rascality.

Mr. R. M. Croom, the Republican member of the House from Pender, was interviewed by a Messenger reporter. He said: "I have no recollection of any such bill passing. I never heard of it. I remember there was a bill to prevent preferences. The bill in regard to mortgages must have been 'cycloned' through, or else the clerks 'passed' it. It might have been wrongly explained by the member who introduced or who was pressing it. You will remember that a member of the House, [Bryan of Chatham], one night said he had a little private bill, but which turned out to be one to take away the appropriation to the University. After that we always looked into his bills."

Have you ever noticed how your system seems to crave special assistance in the spring? Just the help required is give by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The Farmers Sold Out.

This is another one of the pernicious acts of the ignoramuses who were recently in session in Raleigh, says the Cleveland Star. This was one of the bills that was rushed through and only let the Democrats hear it read by its title. They cannot deny it. They will either have to confess that they have to confess that they are woefully ignorant, or else they have sold the farmers of the State out to the money kings. In either case they deserve to have saddled upon them the righteous wrath and indignation of an outraged people. They were either bought or they did it through ignorance. Neither plea will excuse them. It is thought that an extra session of the Legislature will have to be called to repeal this pernicious act, if the Supreme Court should decide that it means what it says.

Trilbyism, living pictures and bronzed figures in nude are some of the evidences of the lowering of public taste and public morals. The indecency and immorality of the modern tendency in these directions will soon cause a reaction that will give healthier fiction and purer plays.—News and Observer.

We have news, by way of an English newspaper, that Mr. Cleveland, at the expiration of his term of office, will take a voyage around the world. He will not go in a government vessel, but in a yacht which will be provided by a friend. In office or out of office Mr. Cleveland prefers to deadhead his way. What a shame!—New York Advertiser.

John S. Wise, ex-congressman from Virginia, and now a resident of New York, who is at Indianapolis, Ind., engaged in a street railroad suit, had an altercation with Russell Harrison, son of ex-President Harrison. Mr. Wise made a statement in court, and Mr. Harrison said, "That's false." Judge Wood admonished Harrison and the affair passed. When court adjourned Harrison left the room and Wise followed. In a few minutes Harrison hurriedly returned and demanded the protection of the court. Then Wise came in. "I only asked for an apology," he said, "and Mr. Harrison replied, by running in here and demanding protection." Judge Wood managed to smooth things over so that there was no clash.

Those North Carolinians who separated themselves from the Democratic party last year in the hope of getting something better in legislation than they have heretofore enjoyed, have seen their hopes disappointed. The Legislature, which has just adjourned, did not fulfill one promise in forty, and no honest man can claim that it met the just expectations of those who elected it. Beyond continuing the appropriations heretofore made by the Democratic party for the public institutions, it did nothing that will redound to the general welfare, and many of its enactments are positively harmful, as time will develop. Many of the incidents attending its proceedings were openly and notoriously scandalous.

It must be manifest to every intelligent citizen, in view of everything that has happened at Raleigh since the 1st of January, and in considering the many things that have not, that nothing is to be expected in future of the combination which constitute this Legislature. It is a bad lot. It not only failed to do nearly everything it promised to do, but by what it did it demonstrated that it is not fit to govern North Carolina. The universal cry throughout the State should be, Away with it! Away with it! If a man or party fool you once it is his or its fault; if he or it fool you twice, it is yours. Surely no stronger argument could be presented to the people of this State to persuade them to turn again to the party which governed so long and so well, than is offered by a review of the proceedings of the Legislature just adjourned.

The Seaboard Air Line shops at Raleigh have closed down their foundry, throwing fifteen men out of employment.

The board of county commissioners at their meeting yesterday reconsidered the action taken at their last meeting regarding the work house. It was decided by a small majority vote to let the workhouse stand as at present.

When my little girl was one month old, she had a sore on her face. It kept spreading until she was completely covered from head to foot. Then she had boils. She lost forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. When six months old she did not weigh seven pounds, a pound and a half less than at birth. Then her skin started to dry up and got so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep, but lay with them half open. About this time, I started using the CUTICURA REMEDY, and in one month she was completely cured. The doctor and drug bills were over one hundred dollars, the CUTICURA bill was not more than five dollars. My child is now strong, healthy, and large as any child of her age (see photo), and it is all owing to CUTICURA. Yours with a mother's blessing, MRS. G. H. TUCKER, JR., 305 Walker St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Wilmington Messenger: Alligators have begun to crawl. Mr. Morris Johnson, who resides at 519 South Sixth street, captured one alive yesterday morning in a hole in the ground, near the mineral springs, a short distance from the track of the Wilmington, Newbern and Norfolk railroad, two miles from the city. He was seven feet long. Mr. Johnson first saw him on Friday, sunning himself at the mouth of the hole. The saurian had evidently inhabited this place a long time, as some light-wood knots inside the place were worn slick where he had crawled inside and out.

Deputy Sheriff Brooks carried 20 jail birds to the workhouse this morning. The prospects are that we will have more macadamized roads from the number of prisoners being sent out. Five of the recruits are women. One is white, being Mrs. E. Medlin, alias "Bush Watkins," the Bowery belle. The belle was given 60 days for striking one, Davis with an axe.—Raleigh Press.

Sunday night about 3 o'clock three men arrived here from the neighborhood of Fayetteville and reported to the police that a horse had been stolen and they had tracked the thief to Durham. A search was at once instituted for the horse, which was found at McGown & Watts' stable, where the thief had put him up for the night. After the horse was found the search for the man occupied their attention. They found that the man had come here and was stopping with Mr. Cuts, on South street, who had known him in years gone by. The man, whose name was Cader Parker, was arrested and placed in jail and a telegram sent to the authorities at Fayetteville. Word was received to turn him over to a Mr. Seagraves, one of the party, who started back with him late yesterday evening through the country.
