DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 8, 1907.

THE legislature met this week, and all that expected something may be preparing to receive what they want if they can get it.

THE New Year came and from outward appearance few people stopped work long enough to make resolutions to be broken later on in the year.

THE superior court will relieve the jailer of some of his boarders and it is to be hoped it will re-inforce the road hands with some able men that can do good work.

THE indications are that Durham will begin by having two hangings the same day, but this does not mean that she is going back and get some of the good chances that she missed in times gone by.

It may be that their time has come to do duty in the Philippines, but just at this time when so much is being said about the discharge of negro soldiers, it appears as if the authorities were going to punish all negroes in the army.

THE important events of 1906 that have appeared in previous issues of The Recorder are worth saving for future reference. Many important things occurred during the past year that you will soon forget and it is well to have such things where you can find them.

Durham superior court for the trial of criminal cases is in session this week. There are quite a number of interesting cases to come up, among them being the contempt case of W. T. Rigsbee, the case against J. B. Harris, who killed Maynard Goss, and many cases for selling whiskey.

WHILE it appears that Governor Glenn consumes some mighty good time in considering the evidence of cases in which he is asked to grant pardons, he seems to know how to turn down such applications when he has fully investigated, and he also knows how to stick to what he believes to be right in most cases.

THE present legislature has many important things to claim their attention, and it is to be hoped that their time will be spent in serious consideration of matters that have been mentioned in almost every newspaper in the state in the last few months, among the most important of such measures is the increase of facilities for the care of the insane, the establishment of a reformatory for youthful criminals, and many changes in law that are now needed.

NOTHING has been said of it in a public way for some time, but we do not suppose that the promoters of the good roads movement that was begun here some time ago are going to neglect to bestir themselves in the interest of the move that promises so much to the county. Arrangements should be made to have an election on the question of issuing bonds for more good roads for Durham county and every one interested should do what he can toward that end.

WINNING COURTESY.

The Charm and the Wisdom of the Art of Saying "Thank You."

The art of saying "Thank you" is one of the most charming accomplishments any one can acquire. Unfortunately it is a lost or forgotten art with many otherwise well bred and lovable individuals, and it is a pity that so many find it such a difficult task to frame these two simple words. Too many take any courtesies or favors which may be extended entirely as matters of course. Maybe we said "Thank you" or its equivalent very heartily and sincerely the first time the small boy next door did an errand for us, but as the small boy continued to run our errands and with the utmost willingness apparently we gradually got into the habit of accepting his courtesies as a matter of course, and after a little we never thought it necessary to thank him or only did it perfunctorily. Indeed we probably began to think our willing neighbor could do our errands just as well as not, and it is not at all unlikely that we should bitterly resent his refusal to do so. The least any one can do is to say "Thank you" for a favor or courtesy, whether extended by those with whom we come into daily contact or by strangers.

The most disagreeable people imaginable and the most selfish and disgusting are those who take anything at the hands of another without showing any appreciation. True, most courtesies are extended with no hope nor desire for remuneration or appreciation, but nevertheless every person ought to consider it a bounden duty to give a tangible expression of his appreciation for courtesies or favors, no matter how small. Even a cur will wag his tail at a kind word or a pat of the hand. Why should humans do less? Nevertheless this art of saying "Thank you" is not at all common, and there are people who will take any service or gift without a word, or perchance on great occasions they will unbind far enough to utter a grunt. Sad to say, it is not unusual, with shame be it said, to run across persons who are not a bit shy about finding fault if you don't do enough for them. It is a wise policy to cultivate a due appreciation of favors and to learn to give audible expression to them. The practice of saying "Thank you" does far more for the one who says it than for him who receives. — Pittsburg Press.

No Weapons Required.

The railway platform at Heidelberg was crowded with hurrying people of many nationalities, but the American traveler from Connecticut, who was trying to reach his family, felt that one man pushed against him with unnecessary roughness.

"See here," he said, turning on the offender, "you stop jostling me that way."

He had hardly expected his words to be understood, but the young man whom he had accosted drew himself up haughtily and said in excellent English, tinged by a slight German accent:

"I am at your service, sir, at any time and place."

"Well, now, that's something like it," said the traveler, looking down into the haughty young man's eyes, "I carry this strip of paper, and take me to a good hotel. You see, I have been looking for a place, and don't know how to find it."

Royal Builders.

King Ludwig II of Bavaria and his son, the King of Prussia, father-in-law of the Emperor, were most interested in the course of a few years a former built the castle of Neuschwanstein and the palace of Herrenchiemsee, the latter intended by him to be a monument to Louis Quatorze, and the latter to gratify his three deep-seated desires, namely, to build castles, towers and towers. His greatest glory was to be seen in the church of St. Michael's in Munich. But the most interesting in this church is the organ, which was built by the famous organ builder of the same name erected by the Duke of Lorraine in 1740. It is a masterpiece of artistry over Charles, Duke of Berry, in 1177.

Unequal Human Eyes.

Many persons who think their sight perfect have a greater visual power in one eye than in the other. With regard to the respective power of the right and left eye, a well known optician finds that a person occupied in writing all day has, as a rule, stronger vision in the left. Writing with the right hand, and his left arm resting on the table, his left eye is nearer his work, and its vision is more concentrated. This expert says our race will never become so short sighted as the German while outdoor athletic games are encouraged in our public schools.

A Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable emollient, nutritive, antiseptic and astringent. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities. In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from the lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures. Send for and read the little book of extracts, treating of the properties and uses of the several medicinal roots that enter into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and learn why this medicine has such a wide range of application in the cure of diseases. It is sent free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol or harmful, habit-forming drug. Ingredients all printed on each bottle wrapper in plain English.

Sick people, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy.

IF MONEY COULD BUY SIGHT

Some people are so unfortunate in their methods that they put off wearing glasses so long that their vision fails far more than it ought to for their years. In the end they are compelled to go to the expensive oculist, whereas had they taken the matter in time they could have saved all this. It is not difficult to buy glasses, but to buy sight after neglecting it for years is another and a difficult proposition. Glasses in time save worry and expense.
