From Timberlake.

J. W. Chambers, carrier on route 5, from Roxboro, is adding lots of patrons to his route of late.

Charly Rogers, of Timberlake, spent last Sunday with his uncle, P. S. Rogers.

On last Friday J. F. Reams eat a portion of a watermelon and that night he and some of his friends eat the rest of the melon, and in a short time Mr. Reams was taken with something like a drawing of the muscles and if it had not been for the quick arrival of Dr. Nichols and the wise medical treatment that he rendered it is very likely that he would not have recovered, but he is now at his mother's, Mrs. Ida Reams, and will soon be up again.

Lenard Barton and Miss Addie May Rogers and Miss Ethel Satterfield, are now on a visit to their uncle, Mr. A. A. Tingen, of Morrisville.

The revival services will commence at Antioch on the 5th Sunday in September, instead of the 5th Sunday in October.

S. T. Gates went to Roxboro last Thursday on business.

Rev. Mr. Falkner will preach at Antioch church on Saturday before the first Sunday in September, and also on the following Sunday and it is being strongly intimated that the church will call him as its pastor.

Our road supervisor recently moved his road force from Flat River township to some other part of the county. Mr. Spincer was greatly liked by our people.

Two associations will be held in this county next year in about two miles apart. The Flat River association will be held in July, at Mt. Harmony church, and the Primitive Baptist association will be held in August at Surl church, and we are all going and take our wives and children if we live.

The terrapin bugs have been a considerable pest here for the last several years, in that they just about devoured the cabbage in some of our gardens but we have not seen a single bug during this spring, or summer and we think that they made their last appearance when the cold snap came after the warm spell in January.

Roper thinks that he will be highly paid this year for cutting his canal last winter, as I never had a better crop of corn than is now growing on the canal.

Melvin O'Bryant, who is now engaged in the chicken and egg business, passed this way on last Thursday and called on the writer and I asked him to look at my wife's washer, and he believes that the washer is a grand thing in the way of cleaning clothes and was well pleased with the ease in which it was operated, and did not think that it would take a horse power to do the work.

In Memory of Little Paul Regan.

The Death Angel has again visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Regan and took from them their little son, Paul. It pleased the Lord to call little Paul from this world to his final home. His stay on earth was short, only twelve months and thirteen days. He was born August 8th, 1906 and died August 21st, 1907. Paul was a sweet little child, but weep not fond parents for our Heavenly Father has called him from the evil to come while the spirit is dwelling in peace with Him. May Our Heavenly Father continue to bless the dear parents, sisters and brothers with His grace to feel that all things work together for good to them that love God. To them who are called according to his purpose is the prayer of the unworthy writer.

A tiny flower born to bloom,
How short on earth his stay,
Oh my soul it seemed so soon,
For death, Oh death to prey.

His lovely eyes, his smiling face,
How can we let them go,
Can we no more his form embrace?
How sad the truth to know.

We weep and mourn and cry,
So sad to bear our loss,
His spirit's gone to God on high,
And we must bear our cross.

Fighting Blind Tigers.

The fight against the sale of whiskey in Durham continues as violators are brought into court, and new phases of the question are presented either in the prosecution or in the method of selling the fire water almost every case that comes up.

In the police court last Saturday, T. H. Scoggins, who was proprietor of a saloon here before the town was voted dry, was up on a charge for violating the Watts law in taking orders. When the case was called it was dismissed, but the attorney for the anti-saloon league announced that it was only done so that the case might be fixed up in better shape.

Robbery Saturday Night.

W. J. W. Terry, who lives near Bahama, came here last Saturday with fruits and other produce to sell. About 9 o'clock Saturday night he had sold all his load except about one bushel of apples. A negro man approached and agreed to buy these if Mr. Terry would deliver them to his home. Finally Mr. Terry agreed to do this and started with the negro on the wagon.

During the trip, and from what can be learned the negro carried Mr. Terry through what is known as Sugar Hill. Mr. Terry was assaulted, the blow causing him to lose consciousness. When he came to himself the negro had him covered with a revolver and was going through his pockets, after relieving him of his possessions the negro jumped off the wagon and made his escape. Mr. Terry came up town as soon as possible and reported the matter to the police, and they began working on the case. At last accounts they were unable to get a clue that would justify an arrest.

The city schools will open next Monday, Sept. 2. All repairs needed have been made to the buildings and this week the janitors have been busy cleaning up for the opening. The number of teachers in the Durham schools now reach 74 and it is expected that there will be an enrollment of 3,000 pupils.

C. S. A. MONUMENT IN CHATHAM.

Unveiling of Confederate Monument in Pittsboro Last Friday.

The unveiling of a monument to the Confederate dead of Chatham county, which took place at Pittsboro last Friday, was attended by thousands of citizens and visitors. The following is from the account furnished the News and Observer by Edward L. Conn:

PROCESSION OF VETERANS.

The veterans met at 10:30 o'clock in the street south of the court house, and under the direction of Chief Marshal John R. Lane, formed in companies for the parade. Scores of children joined in the rear of the procession, carrying bouquets of flowers and evergreens, significant of the undying love they have for the cause of their fathers. The children deposited their floral offerings upon the base of the monument after the unveiling.

The soul-stirring procession proceeded up Hillsboro street to the beautiful residence of Major H. A. London, where the veterans opened ranks and received Chief Justice Walter Clark, crator of the day, and the Daughters of the Confederacy, and countermarching escorted the distinguished speaker to the stand fronting the handsome court house.

The procession was led by the Ramseur Band of fifteen pieces, headed by J. O. Forrester, of Chatham county. This aggregation of musicians is one of the best organizations of the kind ever formed in the State, and the martial airs, played with a flourishing mastery of music and instrument, swept the hearts of the crowd and raised their spirits to a high pitch.

THE MONUMENT.

Under a veil of white the monument was hidden from view till twenty children, prettily attired, each representing a Chatham company, and headed by little Jack Lane, the six-year-old grandson of Col. John R. Lane, pulled the cord that lifted the veil and revealed one of the loveliest of monuments ever erected in North Carolina. The shaft and bronze statue which surmounts the monument rise to the height of twenty-seven feet. The bronze figure represents a fully equipped Confederate soldier with his gun at parade rest, a silent sentinel that will watch ages pass, and stand as an everlasting index to the greatest glory of the South, directing unborn generations in the way of the duty of a citizen and the honor of a man. This grand work of art is made of standard government bronze and is seven feet in height. All four sides of the first die are polished and the remainder of the monument has a smooth surface. The first base is seven feet square and sixteen inches thick, placed on a mound two feet high made of concrete cement, sand and stone. The second base is five feet, eight inches square and twelve inches thick. The third base is four feet, four inches square and sixteen inches thick. The first die is four and a half feet high by three feet square. The first cap is four feet square and nineteen inches high. The second die is six feet, eight inches high and two and a half feet square. The second cap is three feet, four inches square and nineteen inches high.

The monument was the master work of a master workman, C. J. Hulin, proprietor of the Durham Marble Works, and is a credit to North Carolina workmanship.

The granite from which the monument was made was from Mount Airy.

It was a gala day for the town. The streets were a scene of loveliness, with beauty everywhere, the stars and bars floating from nearly every building.

The choir, composed of beautiful women, sang with thrilling sweetness the stirring hymn, "The Bonnie Blue Flag." The song brought tears to the eyes of young and old, but the martial tune of Dixie was again struck up by the band and the people were brought to their feet.

The orator of the day, Chief Justice Clark, was introduced by Major London. Mrs. H. A. London presented the monument to the veterans.

THE MONUMENT UNVEILED.

At exactly 12:30 o'clock the monument was unveiled amid a furore of patriotic exuberance, revealed the following inscriptions on the granite shaft:

On the north side: "C. S. A. 1861-1865. To the Confederate Soldiers of Chatham County. Our Confederate Heroes."

On the east side: "Chatham Furnished 1,900 Soldiers to the Confederacy. About 1,400 Enlisted in the Following Companies, Organized in This County, (here are named the several companies) About 450 Sons of Chatham Enlisted in Companies Organized in Other Counties."

On the south side: "This Monument, is the Gift of Those Who Revere the Memory of the Confederate Soldier. Erected Under the Auspices of the Winnie Davis Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Mrs. H. A. London, President, August 23rd, 1907."

On the west side: "We care not whence they came. Dear to their lifeless clay, Whether unknown or known to fame,

Their cause and country still the same,

They died—and wore the gray." An elaborate dinner was served the veterans, after which the annual meeting of the Chatham county camp was held and officers elected for the ensuing year.

Sent Over Without Bail.

Raleigh Miller was before the mayor Monday morning on the charge of burglary. After hearing the evidence he was bound over to the Superior court without bond.

The facts in this case are: Saturday night about ten o'clock Miller was caught in the house of William Moore, who lives in Hayti, and the evidence tended to show that he had stolen about $2 in money. Moore's wife was in the bed when she heard some one in the house, and at about the same time heard her husband coming in. Miller escaped through a window. Owing to the fact that the door was open when Miller entered he cannot be tried for his life, but the mayor thought best to hold him for the grand jury.

The mayor had nineteen other cases to claim his attention Monday, eleven of which were for drunks.

Horner Winston, son of Judge R. W. Winston, was sworn in as a lawyer in the Superior court Monday. He expects in the near future to locate in Norfolk for the practice of his profession.

Lottie, five-month-old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Warren, died at the home of its parents in Edgemont last Saturday morning. The funeral and burial took place Sunday.
