WHAT CAN WE DO AND BE

In This Life to Live in the Memory of People After Death?
We should be honest in all our dealings,
Never take the advantage by fraud and stealing.
Speak well of both friends and foes,
Disturb not one's mental repose.
Be the light of the world and of men,
Do not stoop so low the heart of men to rend.
Be as the Bible expresses, the salt of the earth,
And not cause man's spiritual death.
Be interested in the welfare of our community,
To survive in the minds of others never create disunity.
Administer to the poor and sick,
And you may never do a mean trick.
Condemn intemperance and drunkenness,
You will never be truly pronounced a dunce.
Tell the people that I John 2:2 is meant for all the world,
And the effort may make you one of his brighter pearls.
On every known sin make war,
The good Lord will save you whom he died for.
Do as the wise man said, "He that winneth souls is wise,"
Stand not in the way of sinners who know that they must sink or rise.
If we want a following by the people we must live under the droppings of his blood,
Not act as vile and rebellious as the people destroyed by the flood.
Imitate the woman who broke the box of ointment and self,
Then we will not be a castaway in the end nor be laid on the shelf.
Love and attend your church where the brethren and sister meet,
After death you will yet speak.
Give your time on the Sabbath to the Sunday school,
However, not one could say after your death that you played the fool.
Ever reverence and honor the worship of the lord,
Impress others by a forgiving spirit and not discord.
In I Tim. 2:1 we are exhorted for all men to pray,
Sad to say, some in spirit of prayer will go astray.
Let our lives preach the risen Christ,
Then the world could not detect a flaw once or twice.
Influence others by reflecting beautiful impresses of His cross,
To live in the minds of others our acts should not be to cause remorse.
By precept and example "preach the gospel in the regions beyond you,"
Not be content to exert an influence over a few.
Give to the cause of the state, home and foreign missions,
Have an inward consciousness of a happy fruition.
Shine as the brightness of the stars by turning many to righteousness,
Then live and reign with Him in eternal brightness.
Sacrifice and magnify His blood stained cross in resemblance,
"The righteous shall be held in everlasting remembrance."

Items From Hurdle Mills.

Our farmers are busy now grading and selling tobacco, sowing wheat, gathering corn, etc.

A good many from Hurdle Mills attended the State Fair at Raleigh, among the number being the writer. The exhibits and out door attractions were excellent. The most noticeable of the exhibits being the great flying machine, which gracefully soared around the fair ground and vicinity twice each day.

I notice considerable improvement on the capital grounds since Hon. R. B. Glenn has been Governor of North Carolina and I as an individual supporter of the democratic party wish to praise and congratulate our dear Old North State for such an ideal Governor as Mr. Glenn has made, and further wish to say that on November 3rd, we are going to elect Hon. W. W. Kitchin governor on our state by the biggest majority that any former chief executive has ever received. I have always been proud of my native county of Person and since she is going to furnish our next Governor I am still proud of her.

The Bryan and Kitchin club of Person is swelling every day and already has a large number of members.

Rev. R. H. Jones will fill his regular appointment here next Sunday at 3:30 p. m. the public is cordially invited to come out and hear Mr. Jones, who is a good preacher.

The public school at this place is progressing nicely and in our splendid teachers we are expecting an unusual amount of ideal school work; Miss Sergrant, of Roxboro, is principal and Miss New, of Durham, assistant.

I am quite a young man therefore am not supposed to know as much in politics as some of the older heads, but this much I do know, that the Republican party is working harder to elect their ticket this year than they ever were any previous year since I have been old enough to know anything about it. So I say brother Democrats, lets get shoulder to shoulder and work for our ticket now until election and see that it gets safely and honestly elected by an overwhelming majority. This is the time to act. Of course our state is going democratic but we must not be content with that, we need Democracy at the National Capital, and William J. Bryan is going to carry it ther ther 4th of next March and introduce it into our national government.

I must close. Hurdle Mills are for Bryan and Kitchin and all good Democrat Candidates.
H. P. D.

Ed Hayes was before Justice Owens Monday charged with selling whiskey. He waived examination and was sent over to the higher court under a bond of $50 which he gave and was released.

GOVERNOR GLENN SPEAKS.

Enthusiastic Crowd Greet the Distinguished Speaker

IT WAS AN INSPIRING OCCASION

Largest Crowd of the Campaign Assemble at Parrish Warehouse to Hear the Issues from a Democratic View.

One of the largest crowds that have turned out since the campaign began assembled at Parrish Warehouse Monday night to hear Governor R. B. Glenn discuss the issues of the campaign from a Democratic standpoint. It was an enthusiastic crowd and a conservative estimate placed it at from three to four thousand people, including about 50 ladies.

Special cars came in from East and West Durham bringing large crowds of people eager to hear the governor and participate in a Democratic demonstration. On every hand Democrats were jubilant and the best of feeling prevailed. Quite a number of people standing on the outside of the crowd that could not hear the speaker did not remain throughout the speech, but when the speech was concluded there were present a large number of those that had been patiently listening to the speaker for more than an hour. His speech was all that Democrats could have asked for and the principles for which the Democratic party stands were thoroughly discussed.

The following report of the speech appeared in the Herald of this date:

Governor Glenn was introduced by Judge C. B. Green. The clerk of Durham court made a speech that would have done credit to any man in North Carolina. "This is an inspiring scene," he began with real eloquence. "There are here tonight, ministers, ladies, (not more than fifty, however,) the fair womanhood of this city, bankers, merchants, manufacturers, laborers and horny-handed sons of toil. They have one high purpose, one high aim for the state, and that to come out here and learn why the rule of the great democracy should be continued in this state. (Applause.)

"It is a peculiar pleasure to introduce the distinguished governor of this state. He is a man known not only to us, but to every section of our country, honored everywhere. And tonight he is here, fresh from the north where he has been to teach Yarkees how to vote the democratic ticket." (Great applause.)

The governor began by saying he was a delicate man and must have quiet. He brought a laugh and a big cheer when he said: "They tell me that all the young men are going to vote the republican ticket this fall but I see enough before me to make this state democratic until Gabriel blows his trumpet.

"Like the preachers, I will make a few announcements before I begin. Take out your notebook and jot these down. On and after January 1st William W. Kitchin will be governor of North Carolina, elected by a majority from 40,000 to 50,000. (Applause.) After March 4, Hon. A. L. Brooks will be your representative in congress and—(applause) after March 4 you will be getting little envelopes with commissions signed by William Jennings Bryan, (great applause,) president of the United States.

"But break this news gently. Your postmaster here may die (laughter) if told too suddenly. Bad news should be told judiciously." And the governor gave a delightful recipe for it by telling the story of the old negro whose master came home and found things all intact until his favorite dog, Rover, was missed. And then it occurred to the negro servant that Rover had died from eating the burnt horse flesh of fourteen carcasses perishing in a barn set on fire by the dwelling house, which house was touched off while candles were being used at the wake of his mother who dropped dead when told that his wife had run off with a drummer. This story brought down the house.

"You have put up a fine ticket in this county, as good as there is in North Carolina. This aint a year for scratching. We have been away from the pie counter twelve years and we are getting mighty hungry. The man who scratches the ticket will get none

The series of meetings at the Memorial church are drawing large crowds and the preaching by Rev. D. H. Tuttle is produced strong and convincing by all that have heard him. Many of the unsaved are interested and much good to the members is the result so far of these meetings.

Death of Mrs Parrish.

Mrs. J. G. Parrish died at midnight Friday after an illness in which pneumonia, fever and paralysis were of malignant type. Mrs. Parrish had been kept to her home on Queen street ten weeks. The complication of diseases early told how difficult it would be to recover. Her illness began with partial paralysis and as she was in measure recovering, fever and pneumonia developed with the fatal results mentioned.

She was forty years old and is survived by a family of nine children with her husband and aged mother. She was a good church member and carried her name on the Mt. Tabor church roll. From that place she was buried Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This church is sixteen miles in the country and the funeral procession started early.

AFTER they have had time to cool down and view complacently what they did during a heated campaign, wonder how many fellows will realize how big a fool he was to act as he did?
