

Poetical.

From the Knickerbocker, for May.

In memory of the late Lieut. Wm. Hubbert, United States Army, who was murdered by a party of Seminole Indians, near Fort Frank Brooks, in Florida, in May 1839.

Not where the youthful soldier loves to yield
His final breath, and close his falling eye,
Mid martial sounds, upon the battle field,
Did he, the young and noble hearted, die.

The colors of his country did not waver
In triumph o'er the spot where Hubbert fell,
Yet shall his name be counted with the brave,
Who knew their duty and performed it well.

And though for him no marble pile may raise
His lofty summit to the southern sky,
No gaven lines of hyperbolic praise
Arrest the traveller's cold and tearless eye:

Better memorials of his name shall live;
Remembrances more durable and dear
Than all Marmorean eulogy can give,
Or all the monuments that art can rear.

For his had been the favored lot below,
Earth's purest and most sacred joys to find,
In all the fond affection that could flow
From hearts whose tendris round his own
Were twined.

And his the solace, an unending fund,
Beneath whatever skies destine to rove,
To know, to feel, he could not go beyond
A mother's blessing and a sister's love!

And at the toilsome day's desired close,
When with long vigils his young eye grew
dim,
He slept confiding in the prayer that rose,
Far in the green land of his native home,
for him.

And love, though unavailing to avert
The fortune he was fated to fulfil,
Survives the grave, with power to reassert,
Her dear prerogative of memory still.

Yes, love survives! and beautiful and green
Her wreath of recollected virtues wave:
And, smiling by her side, is even seen
Hope, pointing to the realms of bliss above!

From the Western Carolinian.

Mr. Editor: I am credibly informed, that a member of Congress by the name of Truman Smith, from Connecticut, and another by the name of C. Morgan, from New York, have franked a great number of Federal pamphlets and papers to this and the adjoining counties. I understand that both of these "frankers" are abolitionists—the names of the people to whom they send, have been furnished by certain federalists about Salisbury, and elsewhere. The fact that certain of our Salisbury federalists are in direct, or indirect, correspondence with Northern Abolitionists, and that these Abolitionists are sending on papers to our people, should not pass unnoticed. The intercourse may soon become more intimate, and their co-operation more general. Let the people look out, for we may soon see abolition pamphlets pouring in on us through the same channel. I know the names of the Federalists, who are in this manner keeping up a correspondence with Northern abolitionists, and they shall before long be exposed.

AN OBSERVER.

From the same.

Banks in North Carolina.—Mr. Editor: The capital stock of two of our North Carolina Banks, namely: the Bank of the State, and the Bank of Cape Fear, is three millions of dollars. These Banks, when the suspension took place, had notes issued to the amount of between three and four millions at least; or perhaps more. They have gone on, calling in this circulation, until now they have not much more than one million and a half of notes shewd—certainly not as much as two millions; and the process is still going on. With these facts before him, can any man wonder that money is scarce in North Carolina? Here is the plain cause of the scarcity of money among us, and yet these very bank-men are crying out "Hard Times," and charging it all on the Government.

JEFFERSON.

From the same.

Mr. Editor: The Federal supporters of "Old Tip" hereabouts, assert that General Harrison has always been a Republican; and they cite as evidence, that he was appointed to office by Mr. Jefferson, the father and great head of the Republican Party. Now, sir, I have yet to learn that Mr. Jefferson did ever appoint Gen. Harrison to office—I am of opinion that he never did. He contained him in an office to which he was appointed by old John Adams, the leading blue-light and black-cockade Federalist of that day, and the author of the odious Alien and Sedition Laws. This is the source from which Gen. Harrison first received office; and as it is well known that Adams never appointed any but Federalists of the deepest dye to office, what must have been General Harrison's principles—and what must they now be, since his friends say he has never changed any of his political opinions?

The following evidence, taken from the Journals of the Senate of the United States, will show what a favorite William Henry Harrison then was with old John Adams:

"United States, July 10, 1797.
"Gentlemen of the Senate: I nominate the following persons for promotions and appointments in the army of the United States:
"First Regiment of Infantry.
"William Henry Harrison, Esq. of Virginia, Captain, vice Kingsbury, removed."
JOHN ADAMS.
"The following written message was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. Malone, his Secretary.
"Gentlemen of the Senate: I nominate Wm. Henry Harrison, Esq. of Virginia to be Secretary of the Territory Northwest of the River Ohio."
JOHN ADAMS.
"United States, May 14, 1800.
"Gentlemen of the Senate: I nominate Wm.

H. Harrison, of the North Western Territory, to be Governor of the Indian Territory.
JOHN ADAMS.
Does any Republican want further evidence of Harrison's Federalism? For one, I do not.
ROWAN.

Extract from an article in the Charleston Mercury.

"I am a Southern man, says Mr. P., a slaveholder—a South Carolina Senator. The declaration is not out of place, for the gentleman acts signally fail to establish his claims to the character of either.—What are the principles and policy of South Carolina, and as a Southern man, slaveholder and South Carolina Senator, how has he obeyed and followed them?"

South Carolina principles and policy declare that the Federal Government is one of limited power, derived from the Constitution, subject to the most rigid construction.

Mr. Preston, as the Senator and representative of South Carolina, is found acting and voting with, and following a party (Mr. Webster in the front car) professing principles directly opposite.

South Carolina denies the power to the Government, under the Constitution, to carry on a general system of internal improvement.

Mr. Preston votes, dodges, or acts as the case may be, with the Federal party, who go for internal improvement, and every thing else, under the general welfare clause.

South Carolina has contended against, and resisted to the death, the Tariff of protective duties.

Mr. Preston tells us that he can have no party purpose different from or opposed to Clay, Crittenden, Clayton, Dixon, Henderson and Merrick, the fathers of the American system.

South Carolina is opposed to a United States Bank, both upon principle and in practice. Mr. Preston was accidentally and unintentionally absent long since, when that question came up. On more recent occasions he was in his place, and openly avows his support and approval of that measure.

Mr. Preston is a Southern man, slaveholder, and South Carolina Senator, and is found allied and associated with—Abolitionists—incendiaries, supporting a party and candidate for the Presidency, hostile to all the principles that have formed the political creed of South Carolina, from the declaration of American Independence, to the present time.

Mr. Preston is fluent in oratory, and plausible and ingenious in expression, but he cannot escape the dilemma in which he has placed himself. As a Southern man—as a slave holder, and a Senator of South Carolina, he has either committed treason to his State, or been guilty of the most culpable and unpardonable dereliction of duty.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

From the Warrenton (Va.) Jeffersonian.

Mr. Editor: The following is an extract from a letter, written by a gentleman of the first respectability, and who is ready to substantiate the truth of the charge made against General Harrison. I hope every man will read it for himself, before he determines to support a man entertaining such principles.

"I am assured, by a gentleman of high standing in society, who travelled with General Harrison a few days ago, on board the steamer from North Bend to Cincinnati, that he was brought out on the subject of abolition, that he expressed himself freely upon that topic, and advocated every principle which characterizes the shameful doctrine, (if it be allowable to apply this term to such a faction) that he explained his vote in Congress upon the question of admitting Missouri into the Union as a slave-holding State, in the following way: He said that he voted in accordance with the wishes of the people of that State, but intimated that he voted against his conscience, declared that he was entirely opposed to the extension of slavery in the West, and boasted that he would get the support of the abolitionists. All this was in the presence of abolitionists, and I am further assured, that all who heard him were satisfied that he was thoroughly and radically an abolitionist.

"So much for General Harrison's abolition principles. Now, if the people are willing, with their eyes open, to take this man for their ruler, with all his odious doctrines, and his total want of capacity as a statesman, in the name of God, be it so! In so far as well as they will, they incur the consequences of their consummate folly, and in the bitterness of their souls will they be forced to cry "AMEN!" to their own ruin."

"Well friend B. how does whiggery flourish up in your town?"
"O. we are doing well—we drank thirteen barrels of hard cider at one log cabin meeting!"
"Well, really, that is encouraging. What'll you take?"—New Haven Register.

Absence of Mind.—Federalists forgetting to celebrate for more than 30 years, the battle of Fort Mifflin.

"That's the candidate I go for," as the loafer said to the hard cider.

STOP THE THIEF.

SOME second-rate horse from my stable, on Wednesday morning last, a small sorrel HORSE with a white streak in his face. Said horse is not in good order and consid'ably scarified by the gear, and has a sore back. The thief carried off a wagon on bridge with two brass tracks in each hind. I have every reason to believe that the notorious thief and horse breaker, Jonathan Parker, is the culprit, as he had been in the vicinity of my stable about the day before he had broke open a house not more than a mile from me, was detected and driven off on Wednesday evening, and has not been seen about here since. I will reward liberally any person who will deliver to me the thief and horse, or give me such information as will enable me to recover the horse.
