The Message.

It can be with no other than feelings of pride and pleasure that we present this document to our readers. We feel proud of the ability displayed in its diction. It is just such a beau ideal of a state paper, as we expected from our able Chief Magistrate. How chaste in style-how perspicuous and logical -how dignified-noble, and magnanimous, the bearing of its writer, our glorious democratic chieftain, under defeat! How different, in short, from the stump speeches of his adversary, at Cleaveland, Dayton, and elsewhere? The election is nowhere alluded to in the message. The President, still, as he has ever done, relies with unshaken confidence in the final correctness of the judgment which the American people will pronounce, upon his official

Even the whigs do not pretend to deny that it is an able paper, though their Journals areconfounded at the coolness and self possession of the man. They are vexed at his indifference to defeat. They, of course, affect to ridicule his adherence to the Sub-

We are informed in the message that every demand upon the Treasury, whether at home or from abroad, has been promptly met, and that the probable available balance in the Treasury on the first of January next will be $1,500,000. What then shall we call the many statements of Whigs and Whig Assembly might be finally, and at no remote period, Journals, during the late election, that the Treasury was bankrupt, and did not meet its liabilities? We think they may certainly be placed under the whig term, "lie."

It is perhaps expected of us to review the prominent features of the Message; but why should we? We can say nothing that will give half the pleasure than to our legislators which should speedily be reof the perusal of it, and therefore refrain. That Mr Van Buren honestly believes that the measures of his administration were for the good of he was right in that belief, shall after years decide. He said of his message to the extra session of 37. I write this message for posterity;" for his deep country can feel. But we say, emphatically, that

Raleigh, Dec. 17, 1840. GENTLEMEN: - Internal Improvement still engrosses much of the time of the Legislature. Of the various bills of this character which have passed the Commons, none will, probably, pass the Senate; the old sectional feeling of East and West, what evidences of deposite or credit, all or which was thought to have been buried with the old Constitution, is revived in full vigor, and runs into every measure designed to improve the internal ondition of the State.

Public Schools,

A very ingenious, talented and patriotic son o North Carolina has suggested an improvement the means of supplying public schools.

We have a large School Fund in the State, at in erest, and as yet have not hit on a plan that is likely o prove a successful investment of the annual in terest of that Fund for Schools. The act of Assembly laving off the State into Districts 6 miles square, we do not hesitate to say, cannot be put in practice with double the amount of our present means. It begins at the wrong end .-It is like beginning to build a house at the top first. Our population is too spare and our fund too small to carry out this plan, without great, indeed radical modifications, by way of amendment to the act.

We suggest the plan we allude to, for public con sideration at this time, while the Legislature is in session. It is as follows: Erect, (with the inter est of our School Fund, for two years,) one or two great schools. Let boys be sent (in numbers proportional to the population,) from every county without any charge for board. Or let the farmer send his March, 1841, in place of Hon. Henry Hubbard. son with provisions and bedding, and let a moderate charge for tuition with the annual interest of the fund support the institution. This system, prudently adopted would enable the State (with very moderate aid from the parents) to educate well two hundred and fifty boys annually, with our present means .-Let this be a beginning—and the public feeling its advantages, without the burthens of taxation, would soon be urgent for its further and rapid extension, until the system recommended in our act of put into practice.

Only think of this, North Carolinians. Massachusetts has 3.014 public schools, and the average number of scholars that attend them, in summer, is 93,814, and in winter, 116,855. This is certainly a cause of shame, no less to our people moved; for next to religion, the greatest comfort of man is a cultivated mind.

We feel as deeply interested in our American system of politics, as any man, or any editor in the penetration foretold him that the current of the mon- the whole nation is become too much agog in quest Thursday, Dec. 19, 1840.—Mr Calhoun, States be requested to communicate to the nobly sacrificed his popularity to what he conceived of political controversy. And what is more, we intend to serve up for our read is some other sort of dish in future. A sort of literary and miscellaneous patchpatch, as well concocted as our culinary skill can make it, with a regular infusion, or smart sprinkling of old fashioned Virginia politics, dashed weekly into the kettle, by way of cayene, or what the French call sauce piquant.

The good old North State is to furnish her quota | Morphes, Esq. of this slavish Roman retinue, in honor of the conqueror. We shall see them soon appointing Harrison Dictator (to conquer the Seminoles,) as the Romans did Pompey to conquer the pirates.

We earnestly hope, that the whigs will be content with the victory they have won, and forbear to set the first example of these useless and dangerous pageants in honor of their successful aspirant after power.
