Political.
Extract from the Globe's Congressional Analysis.
"Immediately after the passage of the bill for the relief of Mrs Harrison, and the adoption of the resolution of the House for another funeral procession with President Harrison's remains to the limits of the District, Mr Clay's Bank of the United States charter began its actual progress by the first real reading of it by the Secretary.
We mark this circumstance, for there seems to be something of funeral and ill-boding augury attending every step of the new dynasty, and foreshadowing disaster to their principal men and measures. We have pointed to a multitude of instances before, but a fact which is now only ascertained carries back the mind to the period of their occurrence, to add another to the list of omens. The steamship which bore the name of the President, in honor of the American Chief Magistrate—which bore the first dispatches and Inaugural Address of the President—which bore the celebrated clergyman who first, after the inauguration, in the discharge of his official duties, called down the blessings of Heaven on the new administration, has been swallowed up in the great deep, and it may be, that, on the very day that President Harrison breathed his last, the President went down in the bosom of the deep. The same month certainly ended the career of both. We have marked these various singular coincidences merely as facts, but we do not yield to the superstitious feeling to which they give birth. We cannot, however, refrain from recording that this black Friday—the day on which the resolution passed, ordering the disinterment of General Harrison's remains—the day on which the first bill passed that ever granted a civil pension on the British system—Friday, the day on which the new funeral solemnities were ordered, is also the day on which "a charter for a fifty million National Bank was first read to the American Senate."

Another Step.
Mr Fillmore, from the Committee of Ways and Means has reported to the House of Representatives, a bill "authorising a loan not exceeding the sum of $12,000,000" (a 5 per cent. loan, for negotiating which, an agent or agents is to be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury, on a commission including all expenses of not exceeding twelve thousand dollars.) Another snag office, to be carved out for some spoils-hunting whig! Add to these twelve millions the ten millions scrip to be created for the capital of the new Bank; and the new whig administration starts with a funded debt of 22 millions. And yet this moment is selected for the purpose of giving away all the proceeds of the sales of the Public Lands. A new species of Political Economy, truly! A new discovery worthy of its compeer, viz: that of establishing a grand National Banking corporation, on the basis of the local territory of ten miles square.—What a magnificent and enlightened age is this!
Mark the consistency of these whig Politicians. On the same day that Mr Fillmore brought in his Loan Bill for $12,000,000—Mr William Cost Johnson reported a bill to distribute the net proceeds of the Public Lands!
Office Seekers.
We understand from Washington, that although Mr Tyler is not quite so thronged upon as was Gen. Harrison, yet the crowd of applicants for office from all parts of the Union continues to be immense. Perhaps Mr Tyler does not make removals quite as fast as they would wish, but probably he will find reasons enough in a few months for removing nearly every democrat from office and filling his place with a whig opponent of "proscription for opinion's sake." As to the post office department, the guillotine is understood to be in pretty brisk operation upon the few remaining democrats, but the administration appear ashamed to publish the removals and appointments, and consequently though the people of each township know who is removed in their own district, no one, except the officers at Washington, know what is done throughout the country.
This cowardly concealment was we believe never practiced by any other administration. It not only indicates a dastardly spirit, and a sense of conscious wrong, but it is an outrage, as withholding from the mercantile community and the public at large information which it is important that they should possess.—Pennsylvanian.

Seeing through the Wool.
The Vermont Spirit of the Age, says:
"Wool is down to about thirty-three cents! General Brewster said, at the Oxford convention, where the 'godlike' held forth—'Friend farmers, only vote for General Harrison, and I pledge you sixty-five cents for your wool!'"
In this way did the feds pull wool over the eyes of thousands, and secure the election of their Bank candidates. Having gained their objects, they are now as indifferent about the fulfilment of their promises as an insolvent bank.—Albany Argus.

REPEAL MEETINGS.—The people of Ohio are moving with much zeal and spirit against the establishment of another United States Bank. Large meetings have been held, and their resolutions breathe a spirit of determined resistance to any such institution, that show they are not ready to stand by tamely, and see the liberties of the country placed in danger by the creation of another monster. They have raised the flag of REPEAL, and nailed it to the mast head.—Balt. Rep.
The smiles of a pretty woman are glimpses of Paradise.

From the Richmond Enquirer.
Mr Clay is pushing his bank bill with an enthusiasm that nothing can abate, and an energy that admits of little or no delay. But, on Tuesday, he was induced himself to add a new scene to the drama, and to retard the progress of the denouement. He offered sudden amendments to make it more palatable to the Foreign Speculators.
Mr Clay's bill embraces a power over Foreign Exchange, which is denied in Mr Ewing's. We beg leave to advert to the impolicy of allowing the Bank to deal in these Foreign Exchanges. Such a power is not at all essential to the pretended object of regulating the Domestic Exchanges, while it will enable the Bank, from its immense capital, and its numerous branches, to command the market, to the great detriment of the Agricultural or Producing States. We all know that the value of our exportable products depends, in a measure, on the price of the bills drawn on shipments. When the crops of cotton, tobacco, flour, &c., come to Market, the Bank has only to make money scarce, by lessening the discounts at particular periods—to reduce the rate of Exchange by that process, and then to buy freely, when others cannot. When this operation is over, it can then increase its loans—render money abundant, and sell the bills at a great profit. Mr Clay was, no doubt, admonished of this effect, and, contrary to the views of the Treasury project, he has inserted the power as an inducement to Foreign subscriptions. Whenever the Government requires money abroad, for the uses of the public Functionaries or of our Navy, it is an easy matter for the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase foreign bills at the market rate; or, specially authorize the Bank to purchase for those purposes, as has been of late years without any inconvenience.

Perhaps Mr Tyler does not make removals quite as fast as they would wish, but probably he will find reasons enough in a few months for removing nearly every democrat from office and filling his place with a whig opponent of "proscription for opinion's sake." As to the post office department, the guillotine is understood to be in pretty brisk operation upon the few remaining democrats, but the administration appear ashamed to publish the removals and appointments, and consequently though the people of each township know who is removed in their own district, no one, except the officers at Washington, know what is done throughout the country.
This cowardly concealment was we believe never practiced by any other administration. It not only indicates a dastardly spirit, and a sense of conscious wrong, but it is an outrage, as withholding from the mercantile community and the public at large information which it is important that they should possess.—Pennsylvanian.
