SCIENCE PREPARING THE WAY FOR RELIGION.—The Albany Advertiser says that H. Rawls & Co. of that city, have prepared some very valuable philosophical apparatus which has been purchased for the use of the missionaries in India. One of the greatest obstacles to the spread of Christianity there has been the conflict between the Missionaries and Brahmins on questions of natural science.

Important to American Farmers. THE CORN LAW QUESTION IN ENGLAND.—It appears certain that there is now awakened throughout England a feeling such as has never before been aroused. The corn laws have had their wickedness pretty generally exhibited. The people are determined. They think that they have argued this corn law question long enough.

If the people are truly awake to their own interests, such a result is inevitable. If that national enthusiasm which their determination must produce, be evinced in time by a people awake to their own most vital concerns, we cannot but augur the happiest results. The returns of the political contest now raging there with so much virulence and bitterness, will be found to be productive of the deepest anxiety; and for the melioration of the condition of her multitudes, let us hope for the most auspicious results.

If there could be any thing like free trade between the United States and England, so far as our wheat and corn are concerned—we could not only be clear of debt to that country in a very short time, but we could bring to the agricultural districts of the United States, in less than six months, more than ten millions of dollars, for the sale of our pent-up products, which do not now command a fair price.

The following lines have been in our possession for twelve months or more, during which time we have endeavoured to find the author, but have not succeeded.

May heaven assist me in the enchanted song— Inspire my Muse and bring each line along; So that your charms, I thus, may proudly sing: So that your name, in these devoted lines I bring.

Let mine the pleasure be, to sing your praise, And call in aid, the poets tuneful lays; Untold the tale that in my heart abides, Relenting in my fate, my spirit often chides, And bids me tell the passion I approve,

And here I now confess, 'Tis that so sweet, No form so lovely and no smile so sweet— No fault to injure—every act discreet,

Which to your youthful charms (I learn) is joined In full perfection, every grace of mind; Let some their vows disclose, at fortune's shrine— Let others 'round ambition's stately altar Twine; I'll shun them all, and love, my motto hence shall be, And every sigh shall breathe in love sincere for thee.

May rival Angels guard your coming days! Such, as the glory of my Muse's lays.

The Illinois Bank Robbery.—From the St. Louis New Era, we learn that nearly all the money recently stolen from the Branch Bank, at Jacksonville, Ill., has been recovered.

It is added—"About fifty men immediately pursued Col. Mather, determined to bring him back at all hazards. They left under whip and spur, thinking to overtake him before he reached Springfield.

Lightning.—One of the most remarkable cases of a lightning stroke that ever came to our knowledge, is now occupying the attention of a portion of the medical faculty in and about Jersey city.

The remarkable features of the phenomenon are the circumstances attending the case of Mrs. Newkirk, who was struck by the fluid. She was standing about three feet from the window at which the fluid entered, and apparently received the entire charge, her whole body having been traversed, from the left temple to the extremities of the toes.

The National Intelligencer caught in a lie!—SEMI-OFFICIAL ACCURACY.—The National Intelligencer of this morning unscrupulously asserts that "The Bank bill, which has gone from the Senate to the House, and which we trust and believe will become a law, founds the power for establishing branches for local discount on the consent of the States respectively."

Now, this is directly in the teeth of Mr Clay's amendment, which, after providing as to asking the States for their assent or dissent unconditionally, goes on to add: "And provided nevertheless, that when it shall become necessary and proper, for carrying into execution any of the powers granted in the Constitution to establish an office or offices in any of the States whatever, and the establishment whereof shall be directed by law, it shall be the duty of the said directors to establish such office or offices accordingly."

Mrs. N. is still alive, though in a very precarious state, which was rendered more so by the birth, on Sunday night, of a dead infant, (within two months of the proper time of delivery) apparently killed by the shock when it was first received.

MARYLAND TOBACCO CROP.—The Marlboro' (Prince George's county) Gazette, of Thursday last, says: "The tobacco crop in the immediate vicinity of Marlboro', and the forest of this county, it is said, promises to be a good one; while from the lower section of the country, as also in the adjoining lower counties, we learn that nothing like a full crop can be made—therefore, while in some parts of the State the crop will be an average one, in others there will be a considerable falling off, and on the whole we are inclined to the opinion that the yield will be much less than last year."

The Post Office and the Press.—The Duty of Postmasters—Responsibility.

The able editor of the Louisville Journal states that it has been every where held by court that in an action for subscription money, it is sufficient to prove that the defendant took the paper from the post office. It makes no difference whether he ever subscribed at all, so that he receives the paper from the office. If one to whom a paper is sent refuse to take it from the office, the law makes it the duty of the Postmaster to notify the publisher of the fact; and should the Postmaster neglect to give this notice, he becomes liable for the subscription money. This also has been decided in all parts of the country.

These are the most material points of law bearing upon the newspaper business. We may remark that between subscriber and publisher, the trust is all on the side of the latter, and, therefore, that subscription debts ought to be classed by debtors among their 'debts of honor,' while judges ought to be liberal in construing the law and the evidence in such cases.—Sat. Courier.

"STILL THEY COME."—The Indiana Democrat says, that the Hon. JOHN McLEAN, a prominent Whig in that State, JAMES RARIDEN, Esq., a late member of Congress, and JONATHAN MCCARTY one of the Harrison Whig Electors, have abandoned the Whig party, as they conceive the Administration to have abandoned the ground on which it came into power.
